Morrison Dominates Early Returns

Adcock First In Senate Race Returns

Scattered returns from the Ouachita parish State Senate race gave Monroe businessmen Jamar W. Adcock and John Birdsong early leads last night as tabulations came in slowly in the 5-man bi-parish race.

Jackson parish returns had not been received at early press time.

Based on unofficial returns in 13 precincts, Adcock had gathered in 934 votes, Birdsong 809. John Hunt, Monroe attorney, was third with 606.

OTHERS

Nathan Ewing, political pro from Jackson parish, was running fourth with 361; Dick Ware, Monroe pilot, was fifth with 267.

Returns trickled in slowly at the News-Star World, with tabulations included here available at 10:30 p.m.

The earliest returns showed Adcock and Birdsong in the lead. The trend picked up sharply with the latest figures in.

Incumbent James Sparks, who climbed to prominence in the Senate under the Kennon administration and served a second term under Long, opened up this race when he chose against running for re-election.

Adcock was the first candidate to run and went about it in a big way, seeking his first public office. However, he once served as assistant director of commerce and industry under Gov. Earl K. Long.

OTHERS

With Adcock already in the running, Hunt, a young Monroe attorney and nephew of Earl Long, entered. Hunt said from the start that he was running as an independnet and his uncle

Area Senate Upsets Seen As Likelihood

Upsets may be in the making in area senate races as two incumbents are running second in the 29th and 32nd districts.

MADISON

Clerk of court Lewis B. Furr was defeated in his bid for re-election by Jerome K. Post Jr. in a tight race. Furr got 1,007 votes while Post tallied 1,014.

In the 29th Senatorial District, incumbent Hubert M. Sims ran second behind W. T. Carpenter. Sims polled 1,340 while Carpenter came home with 2,485.

Gail K. Gay tallied 283; Helem M. Kovac, 962; Carl A. Livingston, 322; and Johnnie O. Zagar, 112. Returns were complete but unofficial early last night. The district is composed of Morehouse and West Carroll Parishes.

32ND DISTRICT

In the 32nd District, incumbent Andrew L. Sevier was nominated unopposed, but his incumbent partner Brenham Crothers ran second to W. E. Person. Crothers polled 338 while Person tallied 929. Howard M. Jones, a third in the race drew 596 to throw the contest into a runoff.

In the 28th Senatorial District, composed on Lincoln and Union Parishes, incumbent B. R. Patton, completing his first term, was up against a former senator, James P. Hinton, and a Ruston attorney, Roy M. Talley.

In the Morehouse-West Carroll district, 29th, Hubert M. Sims, incumbent, was involved in a 6-way race that included a former female school teacher, an undertaker, a grocer, a radioman and a Bastrop businessman. The woman was the only lady to seek a senate seat four years ago when she competed with Sims.

Incumbent Speedy O. Long had his hands full in this contest with three able opponents in the persons of Gerald F. Myer, S. J. Smith and the incumbent LaSalle representative who

EARLY RETURNS SHOW

Davis And Long Lead In District

Jimmie H. Davis and Earl K. Long, two men synonamous with Louisiana politics, stepped out with slight leads in Northeast Louisiana last night for governor and lieutenant governor respectively.

Unofficial returns were slow, but seven parishes in the Fifth Congressional District sent Davis and Long ahead.

trend included Ouachita, Concor-Rainach, 2,182; Noe, 2,000; and gubernatorial candidate was W. Bowdon Morrison's man, 676.

Former-Gov. James A. Noe, Long's candidate for governor, was running third in his own home parish of Ouachita as Sen. W. M. Rainach pushed Davis for the district lead.

State Rep. C. C.(Taddy) Aycock, Davis' candidate for lieutenant governor, was hot on Long's heels.

HEAVY VOTE

A heavy vote was reported throughout the Fifth District, but returns dribbled in despite the speedy voing machine.

Davis was tops with 2,321; Rainach, 2,1832; Noe, 2,000; and Morrison, 829.

In the race for lieutenant governor, Long had 2,050; Aycock, 1,828; Cy Courtney, Rainach's running mate, 1,114; and George W. Bowden Morrison's man, 676.

In LaSalle Parish, Holt M. Allen, a Jena groceryman running for governor, polled 35 votes in 11 of 19 precincts.

Area House Incumbents Holding Edge

Returns in the Representatives' races throughout Northeast Louisiana trickled in slowly last night, but indications were that incumbent representatives were ahead in five parishes: Franklin, Concordia, East Carroll, Morehouse and Lincoln. Tensas parish returned Rep. J. C. Seaman to office.

Tensas parish has seven precincts.

RETURNS

In Morehouse parish, complete returns showed Rep. Woodrow Wilson has 2251 votes, not enough for a majority. He will enter the run-off with O. C. Nolan, 1431 votes.

Winn parish, where seven men are running for the post, showed a first return of 11 out of 31 precincts. P. K. Smith was ahead with 623. P. L. Ferguson received 244, Bowman Melton, 175; C. B. ayne, 339 D. E. Sikes, 425, Donald R. Thornton, 303 and Edd Tullos, 252. Registered voters: 7388.

Five precincts out of 19 reported by 10:15 p.m. from Franklin parish. Incumbent Rep. Lantz Womack was ahead, 845, to 226 for Joseph B. Parker and 224 for Solon L. Chambley. Registered voters: 8300.

West Carroll parish showed J. T. Borden barely ahead as one precinct out of 14 reported. Borden had 54, Rep. W. Spencer Myrick, 50 Lonnie Richmond, 45. Registered voters: 5018.

Six precincts from LaSalle parish sent in first returns. Twenty precincts still were unreported at 10:15 p.m. Leading was Chester F. Walters, 152.

Voting Rush Seen Around Twin Cities

Voters in the Twin Cities stood in lines at precincts as long as two and a half hours to vote yesterday as unprecedented numbers turned out for one of the most active elections in the history of the area.

All precinct voting officials reported a "long, hard day" at the polls during the 14 hours doors were open to the voting machines. Likewise, practically every precinct said that lines began thinning out during the last hour or two, and no one waiting in line failed to vote before the polls closed.

STEEL ISSUE

Negotiators Set For Confab Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Union and management negotiators who held "constructive" talks Saturday will meet again Monday in another effort to settle the steel strike.

Joseph F. Finnegan, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, declined to give any details on Saturday's discussions other than to say he thought they were constructive.

Finnegan had said earlier that he would offer some settlement proposals. He didn't say what they might be but added that his mediators had been suggesting peace plans to both sides right along.

R. Conrad Cooper, top industry negotiator, and David J. McDonald, Steelworkers president, said after Saturday's 2½-hour meeting they had no comment. Both said before going into the conference that they knew of no new grounds of hope of a quick settlement.

Renewal of the 166-day strike is threatened when a Taft-Hartley Act injunction expires Jan. 26.

Boyd Leedom, chairman of the National Labor Relations Board, estimated in a New York speech Saturday that the strike has cost workers 1¾ billion dollars, has cost industry 1½ billion dollars and the government $1,600,000,000—a total of $4,850,000,000.

Leedom said collective bargaining is threatened with a breakdown and that an adequate substitute must be worked out for strikes and lockouts.

Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont), assistant Senate Democratic leader, said in an interview that the mushrooming losses from the strike make it certain that the federal government will be in the red this fiscal year.

"And this is due," Mansfield said, "to the lack of leadership by this administration.

Gibbs Gains Early House Race Lead

On the basis of unofficial returns from 12 out of 51 precincts, in the contest to fill two posts, Gibbs had a total of 1,197 votes, John had 863, James (Jake) Ussery was in third position with 712.

Other totals were John F. McCormick, 534; John S. C. Massey, 412; Harvey E. "Cooney" White, 273, and C. E. Hathaway, 125.

Ouachita voters had a field of seven candidates from which to select their favorites. The parish sends two lawmakers to the house of representatives.

The 23,370 registered voters in the parish had 10 hours to get to the precincts and cast their ballots as the polls opened at 6 a.m. and closed at 8 p.m.

Gibbs, who is finishing up his first term as Ouachita representative, is a radio announcer who makes his home in Monroe.

McCormick, West Monroe City attorney, is a former state senator. Ussery, of Monroe, is a pharmacist. Massey, who entered the race as his first venture in politics is an attorney from West Monroe.

FCC Heading Into Seas Of Censorship

The proceeding, prompted by the TV quiz show scandals, is unique in the commission's 31-year history.

What it has now set out to do is to canvass opinion in and out of the broadcasting industry in whether it has powers under existing laws to control program content, and if not, whether the commission should recommend new legislation to Congress.

That it will run into a wide variety of views on these questions is certain. FCC's notice of last month inviting comment brought requests from more than 50 organizations and individuals for a chance to be heard.

SPOKESMEN

Spokesmen for church groups—Protestant, Roman Catholic, and Jewish—will be heard first Monday. They will be followed by the National Congress of Parents and Teachers and such organizations as the National Grange and the Association of Better Business Bureaus.

The radio and TV networks' spokesmen will appear later in the week, and President Harold E. Fellows of the National Association of Broadcasters personally will present that organization's views.

Fellows has repeatedly said the broadcasting industry "can and will clean its own house."

NAB has adopted broad revisions in its TV code of good practice, to which stations subscribe on a voluntary basis. These specifically rule out fixed quiz shows, payola practices, and deceptive advertising.

Industry spokesmen have insisted strenuously that self-regulation rather than greater government controls offers the best answer to any objectionable practices which may have developed in TV's infancy.

During all the uproar people have been asking, "Why doesn't the FCC do something?" The answer is that FCC always has interpreted its censorship powers as being sharply limited to obscenity, profanity, promotion of lotteries, and broadcasts of false distress calls.

FCC Chairman John C. Doerfer has said several times recently that in view of the constitutional guarantees of free speech, government censorship of broadcasting would be as obnoxious as censorship of newspapers and the pulpit.

But FCC now has gotten into the act by announcing it will re-

Two Parish Police Jurors Retain Posts

Comp'ete but unofficial returns from scattered precincts throughout Ouachita parish have returned two police jurors to office, with three others apparently selected from another ward.

F. G. Studdard, ward 1 incumbent, won by 12 over the majority over three other candidates. Studdard, a veteran of 16 years on the jury, polled 412 votes in the two precincts of ward 1, while W. E. Bonner had 122, M. S. Dixon, Jr., polled 182, and T. J. Williams had 96.

In ward 8, J. H. Brown, a former juror, won 267 over E. C. Wheeler, who polled a total of 133 in the two precincts.

HEAVY VOTING

Heavy balloting was reported throughout the parish.

Several of the jurors, particularly in ward 10, north Monroe, were expected to receive easy approval in their bids for re-election.

Twelve of sixteen police jurors from Ouachita parish were seeking election yesterday. Two others, C. A. Kincaid, Ward 4, and W. O. Roberts, Ward 7, were unopposed.

Two members of the present jury, Robert Irby of Ward 3, south Monroe, and Ralph Sims, ward 8, are not seeking re-election.

Heavy balloting was reported throughout the parish.

Several of the jurors, particularly in ward 10, north Monroe, were expected to receive easy approval in their bids for re-election.

In Ward 10 five men sought the positions for the three posts. However, A. E. Montgomery, Sr., L. U. Fourmy and Irving Kilpatrick were expected to be re-elected. Montgomery, a veteran of more than 30 years on the jury, has served as past president, from 1944 through 1957. He is presently first vice-president of the Louisiana Police Jury Association. Montgomery, 1304 Island Drive, is seeking his eighth term. (He was defeated early in the 1930's, but appointed during the four years to serve out an unexpired term, then has been re-elected since that time.

Fourmy, also a veteran of the jury, resides at 1100 Speed avenue. He is presently holds several positions on the jury.

Both Montgomery and Fourmy are in the insurance business in Monroe.

GOODFELLOWS REPORT

Needy Children Asking For Food

A plea has been received at Goodfellows headquarters for the mother of two young children. Her husband is in an institution, and the children are suffering for want of sufficient food and clothing.

Thousands of dollars are needed to help poor, unfortunate people have a pleasant Christmas in Ouachita parish.

A little girl writes that, "My Daddy has gone, we don't know where. He went to find work and hasn't come back."

NEEDS FOOD

She asks for shoes and groceries — "We are out of them. My little brother is wearing a pair of worn-out tennis shoes and a ragged jacket to school."

"Mama isn't able to work, so anything you could do to help would be appreciated."

Any checks or contributions may be sent to Goodfellows, care of News-Star—World. Drive workers receive no salary for their efforts, and all money will help the needy.

"My father works for the city but it takes all he gets for bills. Unless you help us we will not have needed food and clothing or any toys," writes a little girl. She asks for toys for her younger brother.

A mother with six children writes that her husband, "barely makes enough for house rent and a few groceries. We do without so many things. If it's not asking too much, please help my children. They are in bad need of clothing and food."

"The youngsters have asked for a few toys. They are not choicey, anything will be o.k. I have three girls, age 13, 3 and 2, and 3 boys, aged 10, 8 and 5. Without some help they won't even have any fruit and a nice Christmas dinner," she reveals.

"Even if the clothes were used and torn, I could fix them and the children would love to repair the toys," she adds. How can anyone refuse requests like these.

Large Increase In Population Of State Seen

WASHINGTON (Special) — The Census Bureau said yesterday that Louisiana's population stood at 3,107,000 on July 1, 1958, a gain of 423,000 since the last official census in 1950.

Louisiana's growth rate of 15.8 per cent was slightly ahead of the national average. As a result, the state advanced to 20th rank in population in the U.S., passing Kentucky.

The bureau also noted that Louisiana's nose count is expanding at an increasing rate. It is now climbing by 1.8 per cent each year. In the 1940's, the rate was only 1.4 per cent annually.

BIRTH RATE

Most of the increase, the bureau said, comes from the birth rate. Since 1950, 718,000 babies were born in the state, while only 211,000 persons died.

The birth rate has offset the loss from migration. According to the bureau, 84,000 more people left Louisiana since 1950 for other states than have settled there.

Among nearby states, Texas showed the strongest growth — A 20.9 per cent boost for a total population of 9,324,000. Arkansas lost 8.3 per cent of its 1950 populatioand is down to an estimated 1,751,000. Mississippi declined one per cent.

The national population in mid-1958 was estimated at 173,232,000, not counting Hawaii or Alaska. This was an increase of 15 per cent.

AGREE ON KEY POINTS

Ike Ends Meetings With Italian Heads

ROME (AP)—President Eisenhower and Italy's leaders called on their allies Saturday night to keep their defenses up until the Soviet Union agrees to disarm with "controls, inspection and safeguards."

With a final two-hour review of world problems, Eisenhower wound up two days of talks with President Giovanni Gronchi and Premier Antonio Segni. Italy was the first stop on the American leader's 11-nation good-will tour.

Eisenhower declared there can be no letup in the Western defensive position until Moscow agrees to a trustworthy peace.

Eisenhower also promised the Italian government to look favorably on Italy's desire to join any East-West summit conference that deals with European security as wel as disarmament problems.

Smiling and chipper, Eisenhower was host later at a formal dinner for the Italian leaders at Villa Taverna, the residence of the U.S. ambassador in Rome.

The final communique reported Eisenhower had agreed with the Italian officials on these key points:

1. The 15-nation Atlantic Pact must remain "the cornerstone of their foreign policies." An American spokesman said this means steps should be taken to avoid anything that might weaken the 10-year-old defense treaty.

2. More free countries should join in a coordinated plan for stepping up economic assistance to underdeveloped lands struggling to lift their living standards.

3. Further measures should be

Davis Shown Running In Second Spot

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Complete returns from 739 of 2103 precincts at 11:20 p.m. showed the five leaders:

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—New Orleans Mayor deLesseps Morrison raced way ahead of former Gov. Jimmie Davis as they led a field of 11 candidates for governor Saturday night.

Morrison and Davis, based on the heavy New Orleans vote which dominated early returns, were running ahead of the others as had been expected.

Gov. Earl K. Long, blocked by law from succeeding himself, was in third place in the six-man race for lieutenant governor.

A commanding lead in New Orleans is important because the vote is expected to be split up around the state among the five major rivals.

RECORD

For governor, complete returns from 512 of 2,103 precincts:

Morrison 98,963.
Davis 57,141.
Sen. W. M. Rainach 26,066.
Former Gov. James A. Noe 13,305.
State Comptroller William J. Dodd 17,557.

For lieutenant governor, 161 of 2,103 precincts:

C. C. Aycock 17,093
W. George Bowden 13,305
Long 9,076
Cy Courtney 7,097
William J. White 2,472
Frank Jordan 709.

The six lesser known candidates for governor, 433 of 2,103 precincts: Holt Allen 601, John Krey Jr. 493, the Rev. Mack P. Stewart Jr. 475, Allen LaCombe 425, Gale Berry 305, Roswell Thompson 249.

Ol' Earl, 64, energetic and sharp-tongued as ever after his tumultous confinement in two mental hospitals, can't succeed himself.

The law wouldn't let him, although he has served as governor three times—more than any man in state history. This time he's running for lieutenant governor.

A runoff Jan. 9th is almost certain. Five major rivals for governor are expected to take big shares of the vote, and Long himself has four rivals.

Public reaction to Long's summertime antics and profanity is uncertain. But for thousands, Long is looked upon as a political Santa Claus.

The vote may top predictions of a record 353,000 ballots. Reports

W. Monroe Man Burns To Death In Gas Mishap

The victim was identified as John Henry Wallace, who lived with a younger brother, Estes Wallace, just west of the Chapel Hill Church.

ALONE

Wallace was alone in the house at the time of the fire. His brother was reported to be visiting in Winnsboro.

Firemen on truck No. 107 who were combatting the blaze pointed to the butane gasoline tank as the probably cause of the fire. They said that the gas apparently exploded when Wallace attempted

Former-Gov. James A. Noe, Long's candidate for governor, was running third in his own home parish of Ouachita as Sen. W. M. Rainach pushed Davis for the district lead.

State Rep. C. C.(Taddy) Aycock, Davis' candidate for lieutenant governor, was hot on Long's heels.

HEAVY VOTE

A heavy vote was reported throughout the Fifth District, but returns dribbled in despite the speedy voing machine.

Davis was tops with 2,321; Rainach, 2,1882; Noe, 2,000; and Morrison, 829.

In the race for lieutenant governor, Long had 2,050; Aycock, 1,828; Cy Courtney, Rainach's running mate, 1,114; and George W. Bowden Morrison's man, 676.

In LaSalle Parish, Holt M. Allen, a Jena groceryman running for governor, polled 35 votes in 11 of 19 precincts.

Area House Incumbents Holding Edge

Returns in the Representatives' races throughout Northeast Louisiana trickled in slowly last night, but indications were that incumbent representatives were ahead in five parishes: Franklin, Concordia, East Carroll, Morehouse and Lincoln. Tensas parish returned Rep. J. C. Seaman to office.

Tensas parish has seven precincts.

RETURNS

In Morehouse parish, complete returns showed Rep. Woodrow Wilson has 2251 votes, not enough for a majority. He will enter the run-off with O. C. Nolan, 1431 votes.

Winn parish, where seven men are running for the post, showed a first return of 11 out of 31 precincts. P. K. Smith was ahead with 623. P. L. Ferguson received 244, Bowman Melton, 175; C. B. ayne, 339 D. E. Sikes, 425, Donald R. Thornton, 303 and Edd Tullos, 252. Registered voters: 7388.

Five precincts out of 19 reported by 10:15 p.m. from Franklin parish. Incumbent Rep. Lantz Womack was ahead, 845, to 226 for Joseph B. Parker and 224 for Solon L. Chambley. Registered voters: 8300.

West Carroll parish showed J. T. Borden barely ahead as one precinct out of 14 reported. Borden had 54, Rep. W. Spencer Myrick, 50 Lonnie Richmond, 45. Registered voters: 5018.

Six precincts from LaSalle parish sent in first returns. Twenty precincts still were unreported at 10:15 p.m. Leading was Chester F. Walters, 152.

Voting Rush Seen Around Twin Cities

Voters in the Twin Cities stood in lines at precincts as long as two and a half hours to vote yesterday as unprecedented numbers turned out for one of the most active elections in the history of the area.

All precinct voting officials reported a "long, hard day" at the polls during the 14 hours doors were open to the voting machines. Likewise, practically every precinct said that lines began thinning out during the last hour or two, and no one waiting in line failed to vote before the polls closed.

Gibbs Gains Early House Race Lead

On the basis of unofficial returns from 12 out of 51 precincts, in the contest to fill two posts, Gibbs had a total of 1,197 votes, John had 863, James (Jake) Ussery was in third position with 712.

Other totals were John F. McCormick, 534; John S. C. Massey, 412; Harvey E. "Cooney" White, 273, and C. E. Hathaway, 125.

Ouachita voters had a field of seven candidates from which to select their favorites. The parish sends two lawmakers to the house of representatives.

The 23,370 registered voters in the parish had 10 hours to get to the precincts and cast their ballots as the polls opened at 6 a.m. and closed at 8 p.m.

Gibbs, who is finishing up his first term as Ouachita representative, is a radio announcer who makes his home in Monroe.

McCormick, West Monroe City attorney, is a former state senator. Ussery, of Monroe, is a pharmacist. Massey, who entered the race as his first venture in politics is an attorney from West Monroe.

FCC Heading Into Seas Of Censorship

The proceeding, prompted by the TV quiz show scandals, is unique in the commission's 31-year history.

What it has now set out to do is to canvass opinion in and out of the broadcasting industry in whether it has powers under existing laws to control program content, and if not, whether the commission should recommend new legislation to Congress.

That it will run into a wide variety of views on these questions is certain. FCC's notice of last month inviting comment brought requests from more than 50 organizations and individuals for a chance to be heard.

SPOKESMEN

Spokesmen for church groups—Protestant, Roman Catholic, and Jewish—will be heard first Monday. They will be followed by the National Congress of Parents and Teachers and such organizations as the National Grange and the Association of Better Business Bureaus.

The radio and TV networks' spokesmen will appear later in the week, and President Harold E. Fellows of the National Association of Broadcasters personally will present that organization's views.

Fellows has repeatedly said the broadcasting industry "can and will clean its own house."

NAB has adopted broad revisions in its TV code of good practice, to which stations subscribe on a voluntary basis. These specifically rule out fixed quiz shows, payola practices, and deceptive advertising.

Industry spokesmen have insisted strenuously that self-regulation rather than greater government controls offers the best answer to any objectionable practices which may have developed in TV's infancy.

During all the uproar people have been asking, "Why doesn't the FCC do something?" The answer is that FCC always has interpreted its censorship powers as being sharply limited to obscenity, profanity, promotion of lotteries, and broadcasts of false distress calls.

FCC Chairman John C. Doerfer has said several times recently that in view of the constitutional guarantees of free speech, government censorship of broadcasting would be as obnoxious as censorship of newspapers and the pulpit.

But FCC now has gotten into the act by announcing it will re-

Two Parish Police Jurors Retain Posts

Comp'ete but unofficial returns from scattered precincts throughout Ouachita parish have returned two police jurors to office, with three others apparently selected from another ward.

F. G. Studdard, ward 1 incumbent, won by 12 over the majority over three other candidates. Studdard, a veteran of 16 years on the jury, polled 412 votes in the two precincts of ward 1, while W. E. Bonner had 122, M. S. Dixon, Jr., polled 182, and T. J. Williams had 96.

In ward 8, J. H. Brown, a former juror, won 267 over E. C. Wheeler, who polled a total of 133 in the two precincts.

HEAVY VOTING

Heavy balloting was reported throughout the parish.

Several of the jurors, particularly in ward 10, north Monroe, were expected to receive easy approval in their bids for re-election.

Twelve of sixteen police jurors from Ouachita parish were seeking election yesterday. Two others, C. A. Kincaid, Ward 4, and W. O. Roberts, Ward 7, were unopposed.

Two members of the present jury, Robert Irby of Ward 3, south Monroe, and Ralph Sims, ward 8, are not seeking re-election.

Heavy balloting was reported throughout the parish.

Several of the jurors, particularly in ward 10, north Monroe, were expected to receive easy approval in their bids for re-election.

Many of the jurors' positions were in doubt, with last minute opposition showing early yesterday.

In Ward 10 five men sought the positions for the three posts. However, A. E. Montgomery, Sr., L. U. Fourmy and Irving Kilpatrick were expected to be re-elected. Montgomery, a veteran of more than 30 years on the jury, has served as past president, from 1944 through 1957. He is presently first vice-president of the Louisiana Police Jury Association. Montgomery, 1304 Island Drive, is seeking his eighth term. (He was defeated early in the 1930's, but appointed during the four years to serve out an unexpired term, then has been re-elected since that time.

Fourmy, also a veteran of the jury, resides at 1100 Speed avenue. He is presently holds several positions on the jury.

Both Montgomery and Fourmy are in the insurance business in Monroe.

Warming Trend Seen For Today

Continued warming temperatures are expected for Monroe area residents today and tomorrow, along with partly cloudy skies and scattered showers.

Yesterday's low was 42 at 6 p.m., with the high for the day at 50. Temperatures were expected to drop during the night, however.

GOODFELLOWS REPORT

Needy Children Asking For Food

A plea has been received at Goodfellows headquarters for the mother of two young children. Her husband is in an institution, and the children are suffering for want of sufficient food and clothing.

Thousands of dollars are needed to help poor, unfortunate people have a pleasant Christmas in Ouachita parish.

A little girl writes that, "My Daddy has gone, we don't know where. He went to find work and hasn't come back."

NEEDS FOOD

She asks for shoes and groceries — "We are out of them. My little brother is wearing a pair of worn-out tennis shoes and a ragged jacket to school."

"Mama isn't able to work, so anything you could do to help would be appreciated."

Any checks or contributions may be sent to Goodfellows, care of News-Star—World. Drive workers receive no salary for their efforts, and all money will help the needy.

"My father works for the city but it takes all he gets for bills. Unless you help us we will not have needed food and clothing or any toys," writes a little girl. She asks for toys for her younger brother.

A mother with six children writes that her husband, "barely makes enough for house rent and a few groceries. We do without so many things. If it's not asking too much, please help my children. They are in bad need of clothing and food."

"The youngsters have asked for a few toys. They are not choicey, anything will be o.k. I have three girls, age 13, 3 and 2, and 3 boys, aged 10, 8 and 5. Without some help they won't even have any fruit and a nice Christmas dinner," she reveals.

"Even if the clothes were used and torn, I could fix them and the children would love to repair the toys," she adds. How can anyone refuse requests like these.

Large Increase In Population Of State Seen

WASHINGTON (Special) — The Census Bureau said yesterday that Louisiana's population stood at 3,107,000 on July 1, 1958, a gain of 423,000 since the last official census in 1950.

Louisiana's growth rate of 15.8 per cent was slightly ahead of the national average. As a result, the state advanced to 20th rank in population in the U.S., passing Kentucky.

The bureau also noted that Louisiana's nose count is expanding at an increasing rate. It is now climbing by 1.8 per cent each year. In the 1940's, the rate was only 1.4 per cent annually.

BIRTH RATE

Most of the increase, the bureau said, comes from the birth rate. Since 1950, 718,000 babies were born in the state, while only 211,000 persons died.

The birth rate has offset the loss from migration. According to the bureau, 84,000 more people left Louisiana since 1950 for other states than have settled there.

Among nearby states, Texas showed the strongest growth — A 20.9 per cent boost for a total population of 9,324,000. Arkansas lost 8.3 per cent of its 1950 populatioand is down to an estimated 1,751,000. Mississippi declined one per cent.

The national population in mid-1958 was estimated at 173,232,000, not counting Hawaii or Alaska. This was an increase of 15 per cent.

AGREE ON KEY POINTS

Ike Ends Meetings With Italian Heads

ROME (AP)—President Eisenhower and Italy's leaders called on their allies Saturday night to keep their defenses up until the Soviet Union agrees to disarm with "controls, inspection and safeguards."

With a final two-hour review of world problems, Eisenhower wound up two days of talks with President Giovanni Gronchi and Premier Antonio Segni. Italy was the first stop on the American leader's 11-nation good-will tour.

Eisenhower declared there can be no letup in the Western defensive position until Moscow agrees to a trustworthy peace.

Eisenhower also promised the Italian government to look favorably on Italy's desire to join any East-West summit conference that deals with European security as wel as disarmament problems.

Smiling and chipper, Eisenhower was host later at a formal dinner for the Italian leaders at Villa Taverna, the residence of the U.S. ambassador in Rome.

The final communique reported Eisenhower had agreed with the Italian officials on these key points:

1. The 15-nation Atlantic Pact must remain "the cornerstone of their foreign policies." An American spokesman said this means steps should be taken to avoid anything that might weaken the 10-year-old defense treaty.

2. More free countries should join in a coordinated plan for stepping up economic assistance to underdeveloped lands struggling to lift their living standards.

3. Further measures should be

Davis Shown Running In Second Spot

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Complete returns from 739 of 2108 precincts at 11:20 p.m. showed the five leaders:

Davis 79,628, Dodd 28,336, Morrison 125,504, Noe 27,565, Rainach 42,472.

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—New Orleans Mayor deLesseps Morrison raced way ahead of former Gov. Jimmie Davis as they led a field of 11 candidates for governor Saturday night.

Morrison and Davis, based on the heavy New Orleans vote which dominated early returns, were running ahead of the others as had been expected.

Gov. Earl K. Long, blocked by law from succeeding himself, was in third place in the six-man race for lieutenant governor.

A commanding lead in New Orleans is important because the vote is expected to be split up around the state among the five major rivals.

RECORD

For governor, complete returns from 512 of 2,103 precincts:

Morrison 98,963.
Davis 57,141.

Sen. W. M. Rainach 28,066.
Former Gov. James A. Noe 13,305.
State Comptroller William J. Dodd 17,557.

For lieutenant governor, 161 of 2,103 precincts:

C. C. Aycock 17,093
W. George Bowden 13,805
Long 9,076
Cy Courtney 7,097
William J. White 2,472
Frank Jordan 709.

The six lesser known candidates for governor, 433 of 2,103 precincts: Holt Allen 601, John Krey Jr. 498, the Rev. Mack P. Stewart Jr. 475, Allen LaCombe 425, Gale Berry 305, Roswell Thompson 249.

Ol' Earl, 64, energetic and sharp-tongued as ever after his tumultous confinement in two mental hospitals, can't succeed himself.

The law wouldn't let him, although he has served as governor three times—more than any man in state history. This time he's running for lieutenant governor.

A runoff Jan. 9th is almost certain. Five major rivals for governor are expected to take big shares of the vote, and Long himself has four rivals.

Public reaction to Long's summertime antics and profanity is uncertain. But for thousands, Long is looked upon as a political Santa Claus.

The vote may top predictions of a record 853,000 ballots. Reports

W. Monroe Man Burns To Death In Gas Mishap

The victim was identified as John Henry Wallace, who lived with a younger brother, Estes Wallace, just west of the Chapel Hill Church.

Ouachita Parish Coroner Dr. John P. Burton attributed death to accidental burning.

ALONE

Wallace was alone in the house at the time of the fire. His brother was reported to be visiting in Winnsboro.

Firemen on truck No. 107 who were combatting the blaze pointed to the butane gasoline tank as the probably cause of the fire. They said that the gas apparently exploded when Wallace attempted

STEEL ISSUE

Negotiators Set For Confab Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Union and management negotiators who held "constructive" talks Saturday will meet again Monday in another effort to settle the steel strike.

Joseph F. Finnegan, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, declined to give any details on Saturday's discussions other than to say he thought they were constructive.

Finnegan had said earlier that he would offer some settlement proposals. He didn't say what they might be but added that his mediators had been suggesting peace plans to both sides right along.

R. Conrad Cooper, top industry negotiator, and David J. McDonald, Steelworkers president, said after Saturday's 2½-hour meeting they had no comment. Both said before going into the conference that they knew of no new grounds of hope of a quick settlement.

Renewal of the 166-day strike is threatened when a Taft-Hartley Act injunction expires Jan. 26.

Boyd Leedom, chairman of the National Labor Relations Board, estimated in a New York speech Saturday that the strike has cost workers 1¾ billion dollars, has cost industry 1½ billion dollars and the government $1,600,000,000 —a total of $4,350,000,000.

Leedom said collective bargaining is threatened with a breakdown and that an adequate substitute must be worked out for strikes and lockouts.

Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont), assistant Senate Democratic leader, said in an interview that the mushrooming losses from the strike make it certain that the federal government will be in the red this fiscal year.

"And this is due," Mansfield said, "to the lack of leadership by this administration.

DECLINING MILITARY POSITION

America Faces Great Danger

WASHINGTON (AP)—A declining military position has left the United States facing the greatest danger in its history, a university research group said Saturday.

In a study prepared for the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, the group called for an all-out effort to develop a powerful, reliable ballistic missile and get it into full scale production.

"The military position of the United States has declined in the short span of 15 years from one of unchallenged security to that of a nation both open and vulnerable to direct and devastating attack," said the study prepared by a Johns Hopkins University research group.

At the same time, developments in military technology in the Soviet Union now make it appear that country will be the first to achieve a comprehensive missile arm, the study continued.

"It is this possibility that disturbs those who see in the 'missile gap' of the early 1960s the greatest danger to its security that the United States has ever faced," the study added.

The study is one of 15 to be used by the Foreign Relations Committee as background for hearings on U. S. global policy next year. The committee received an appropriation of $300,000 to finance the studies by private research organizations, universities and individuals. This is the eighth to be published.

The study strongly opposed an arms control policy aimed at total disarmament, as suggested by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev. It argued such policy would permit a violator to gain supremacy through concealed production of relatively few weapons.

Instead, it urged the United States to strive for an agreement with the Soviet Union calling for strategic forces "limited to retaliatory systems capable of surviving a first strike, but insufficient for employment in a first strike."

The Johns Hopkins researchers took issue with those who have urged a shift of emphasis from military to economic aid abroad.

"While military defense needs to be supplemented by economic, psychological, and other policies it said, "the provision of adequate and appropriate military strength is the precondition of world security."

The report called for the United States to give top priority to efforts to reduce the vulernability of U.S. and Allied strategic forces. Air bases, bombers, control centers, missile launching sites and personnel need "increased mobility, concealment, hardening and dispersal," it said.

At home, the report continued, the overriding objective of a U.S. strategic weapons program should not be to match assumed Soviet long range missile capabilities, but early attainment of "diverse and relatively secure retaliatory systems."

"It is unlikely that the United States could close the anticipated missile gap, or appreciably shorten this dangerous transitional period, merely by accelerating production of our present strategic weapons," the report said.

"Anticipated missile systems of the 1960s will be adaptable to hardened siting and to launching from mobile air, land, and sea-based delivery vehicles whose constant movement should give them a considerable measure of protection against location and destruction by the enemy in a first strike."

If such new weapons are deployed in strength on both sides of the Iron Curtain, the authors said, the devastation of a surprise attack could be modified.

This too was Hunt's first political venture.

It was the first for Birdsong, too. Well-known in the Ouachita area, Birdsong stressed agriculture, forestry, wildlife and Ouachita river development in his campaign.

The field was rounded out by Ware, a West Monroe airplane pilot, and Ewing, Jackson's lone entry. Ware oce ran for representative.

The Jackson candidate has had experience both in the Legislature and in the Jackson courthouse.

While state-level politics dropped to its usual dirt level, this senatorial race was conducted bn a high plane, void of mud-slinging and smearing of personalities.

night of 17 precincts throughout Monroe and West Monroe, roughly 85 per cent of the registered voters turned out to vote. Many precincts, however, had not tabulated totals for the day.

Many places reported that lines formed when the polls opened at 6 a.m. and were continuous through about 4 p.m., when they gradually thinned out.

More people apparently turned out to vote between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m., as all precincts contacted reported lines were longest during these hours.

Some voters were reported to have become tired of waiting in the long lines and left without voting, although most "stuck it out." Voting officials at the precincts said that the turnout this year was far greater than past elections, although one or two said the voting went "about as usual."

A mid-evening rain across the Twin City area did little to dampen the determination of the voters, who still appeared at the polls in "unprecedented numbers," precinct officials said.

This was the election that wrote a political afternote to Earl Long's tirades before the Legislature last spring. The Long dynasty was crumbling, observers felt, when Ole Earl bitterly lambasted legislators before going through three mental institutions and then taking off on a gay vacation through the West.

With Long shocking Louisiana as well as the nation, Jimmie Davis arose as the politician most likely to walk into the governorship, despite Long's own predictions that he would skirt the constitution to run for re-election.

Naturally, Long said he would be successful in his unprecedented bid for a second consecutive term as governor.

But a last-minute development sent Jimmy Noe off as the Long gubernatorial candidate — after Long admitted he had tried in vain to get several other political figures to represent the Longs in the race.

Dodd, a Long man turned "anti," was the first to announce for governor while Davis was actually the last major candidate to come out. The field originally included 12 candidates, but dropped to 11 when State Rep. J. Marshall Brown of New Orleans withdrew because of illness.

Davis and Morrison went into yesterday's first primary as the expected frontrunners, but there was a large number of undecided voters right up to election time.

This silent vote was interpreted by some as potential strength for Rainach, the darkhorse who ran on somewhat limited funds. Rainach, the state's segregation leader, came on strong at the end.

However, it was Noe who represented possibly the most unpredictable amount of strength. As the Long candidate, Noe, it was assumed, could not be discounted because of the Long appeal in Louisiana politics.

Dodd, however, prior to the election, was considered to be the candidate who fizzled the most.

The campaign, which failed to cause the usual amount of political discussion among the people, was reputed as one of Louisiana's most complex, a hard one to figure.

SPICE

Two unknows sprinkled spice in the political pudding — Roswell Thompson, a New Orleans cabbie, and Gale Berry, a Lake Charles insurance man.

Thompson blasted away regularly on New Orleans radio telling the people he was a second Huey P. Long, promising that he would carry out Huey's program of "every man a king."

This charge was refuted.

But the candidate that added that ole familiar flavor of Louisiana politics was Allen G. LaCombe, a racetrack tout. La Combe gave up giving tips on the horses to run for governor.

Big Four Shelve Try For Accord

LONDON (UPI)—Diplomatic sources said Saturday that the Big Four Western allies, still divided on Berlin policy, had shelved their efforts to reach accord until the Western summit conference in Paris, Dec. 19.

These sources said it was unlikely that even the Western heads of government would take a final stand on the Berlin question. Instead, they said, the Paris meeting may set up a special study group to hammer out a joint program for the East-West summit talks next year.

Continued differences between the United States and Britain on the one side and West Germany and France on the other were said to stand in the way of an agreed Western approach.

FOLDS

As a result, sources said, a four-power expert group that starts work in Washington last month to prepare for the Western summit talks, has quietly folded up.

Despite seeming recent accords, the positions on Berlin still remain divided and disaramament plans have not been completed.

West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, during his recent visit to London, withdrew his veto against discussing Berlin at the projected East-West summit conference. But he said he wanted it discussed only in the broader context of the German problem.

Since then, especially after his meeting this week with President Charles de Gaulle in Paris, the West German stand appears to have stiffened.

The United States and Britain want an interim settlement of the explosive Berlin problem in the projected talks with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

Adenauer and De Gaulle were believed to favor a return to the Western Geneva "package" peace plan which linked the Berlin question closely with an overall German settlement. The Russians have rejected this package plan.

In Paris, therefore, the Big Four were expected to have a hard time aligning their policies and strategy on major issues.

The Western summit meeting, scheduled for Dec. 19-21, was expected to produce agreement merely on a date for the East-West heads-of-government talks, the place and its agenda.

Democrats represent 1,095,747 of the 1,108,611 registered voters. In Louisiana, the Democratic nominee for state office always has won.

Louisiana is selecting all state officials, a Legislature, a Democratic State Central Committee, and hundreds of local offices. Some of the 64 parishes have more than 100 names crowded on the vote machine ballot.

Francis Grevemberg, onetime state police superintendent who smashed gambling, is the GOP nominee. For the first time, the GOP has offered a complete slate for top state offices. They'll face the Democratic nominees in the April 19 general election.

In 1956, before he switched party registration, Grevemberg ran fourth in the five-man Democratic governor's primary. Earl K. Long won in a landslide.

In the race for state treasurer, A. P. 'Pat' Tugwell, the capitol veteran, held a wide lead with 5,364 votes. His only opponent, Robert W. Sentilles, polled only 298 votes.

Atty. Gen. Jack Gremillion appeared headed for another term, as far as this district was concerned, with 2,893 votes. His nearest opponent, Noe-Long man Ben Bennett, had 1,659 votes.

For secretary of state, incumbent Wade O. Martin Jr., at one time considering running for governor himself, had 3,949 votes. His only opponent, Curt Sieglein, a Long man, had 1,667 votes.

The Noe-Long candidate for commissioner of insurance, Edgar Coco of Marksville, was running high in his race. Coco had 1,401 votes while Hardy N. Goff was second with 900.

In the race for register of state lands, Ellen Bryan Moore was running tops with 2,542 with Fred Dent Jr., son of the late Lucille Mae Grace who former held that office, in the second slot with 1,008 votes.

DECLINING MILITARY POSITION

America Faces Great Danger

WASHINGTON (AP)—A declining military position has left the United States facing the greatest danger in its history, a university research group said Saturday.

In a study prepared for the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, the group called for an all-out effort to develop a powerful, reliable ballistic missile and get it into full scale production.

"The military position of the United States has declined in the short span of 15 years from one of unchallenged security to that of a nation both open and vulnerable to direct and devastating attack," said the study prepared by a Johns Hopkins University research group.

At the same time, developments in military technology in the Soviet Union now make it appear that country will be the first to achieve a comprehensive missile arm, the study continued.

"It is this possibility that disturbs those who see in the 'missile gap' of the early 1960s the greatest danger to its security that the United States has ever faced," the study added.

The study is one of 15 to be used by the Foreign Relations Committee as background for hearings on U. S. global po... next year. The committee received an appropriation of $300,000 to finance the studies by private research organizations, universities and individuals. This is the eighth to be published.

The study strongly opposed an arms control policy aimed at total disarmament, as suggested by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev. It argued such policy would permit a violator to gain supremacy through concealed production of relatively few weapons.

Instead, it urged the United States to strive for an agreement with the Soviet Union calling for strategic forces "limited to retaliatory systems capable of surviving a first strike, but insufficient for employment in a first strike."

The Johns Hopkins researchers took issue with those who have urged a shift of emphasis from military to economic aid abroad.

"While military defense needs to be supplemented by economic, psychological, and other policies it said, "the provision of adequate and appropriate military strength is the precondition of world security."

The report called for the United States to give top priority to efforts to reduce the vulernability of U.S. and Allied strategic forces. Air bases, bombers, control centers, missile launching sites and personnel need "increased mobility, concealment, hardening and dispersal," it said.

At home, the report continued, the overriding objective of a U.S. strategic weapons program should not be to match assumed Soviet long range missile capabilities, but early attainment of "diverse and relatively secure retaliatory systems."

"It is unlikely that the United States could close the anticipated missile gap, or appreciably shorten this dangerous transitional period, merely by accelerating production of our present strategic weapons," the report said.

"Anticipated missile systems of the 1960s will be adaptable to hardened siting and to launching from mobile air, land, and sea-based delivery vehicles whose constant movement should give them a considerable measure of protection against location and destruction by the enemy in a first strike."

If such new weapons are deployed in strength on both sides of the Iron Curtain, the authors said, the devastation of a surprise attack could be modified.

It was the first for Birdsong, too. Well-known in the Ouachita area, Birdsong stressed agriculture, forestry, wildlife and Ouachita river development in his campaign.

The field was rounded out by Ware, a West Monroe airplane pilot, and Ewing, Jackson's lone entry. Ware too enjoyed his second campaign, but it was just another political war for Ewing. Ware oce ran for representative.

The Jackson candidate has had experience both in the Legislature and in the Jackson courthouse.

While state-level politics dropped to its usual dirt level, this senatorial race was conducted on a high plane, void of mud-slinging and smearing of personalities.

night of 17 precincts throughout Monroe and West Monroe, roughly 85 per cent of the registered voters turned out to vote. Many precincts, however, had not tabulated totals for the day.

Many places reported that lines formed when the polls opened at 6 a.m. and were continuous through about 4 p.m., when they gradually thinned out.

More people apparently turned out to vote between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m., as all precincts contacted reported lines were longest during these hours.

Some voters were reported to have become tired of waiting in the long lines and left without voting, although most "stuck it out." Voting officials at the precincts said that the turnout this year was far greater than past elections, although one or two said the voting went "about as usual."

A mid-evening rain across the Twin City area did little to dampen the determination of the voters, who still appeared at the polls in "unprecedented numbers," precinct officials said.

This was the election that wrote a political afternote to Earl Long's tirades before the Legislature last spring. The Long dynasty was crumbling, observers felt, when Ole Earl bitterly lambasted legislators before going through three mental institutions and then taking off on a gay vacation through the West.

With Long shocking Louisiana as well as the nation, Jimmie Davis arose as the politician most likely to walk into the governorship, despite Long's own predictions that he would skirt the constitution to run for re-election.

Naturally, Long said he would be successful in his unprecedented bid for a second consecutive term as governor.

But a last-minute development sent Jimmy Noe off as the Long gubernatorial candidate — after Long admitted he had tried in vain to get several other political figures to represent the Longs in the race.

Dodd, a Long man turned "anti," was the first to announce for governor while Davis was actually the last major candidate to come out. The field originally included 12 candidates, but dropped to 11 when State Rep. J. Marshall Brown of New Orleans withdrew because of illness.

Davis and Morrison went into yesterday's first primary as the expected frontrunners, but there was a large number of undecided voters right up to election time.

This silent vote was interpreted by some as potential strength for Rainach, the darkhorse who ran on somewhat limited funds. Rainach, the state's segregation leader, came on strong at the end.

However, it was Noe who rep-

Northeast Louisiana had a second candidate in the race Holt M. Allen, a groceryman from Jena. There was a Baptist preacher too, Mack P. Stewart, Jr. of Baton Rouge. The field was rounded out by John B. Krey, Jr., a New Orleans music company man.

resented possibly the most unpredictable amount of strength. As the Long candidate, Noe, it was assumed, could not be discounted because of the Long appeal in Louisiana politics.

Dodd, however, prior to the election, was considered to be the candidate who fizzled the most.

The campaign, which failed to cause the usual amount of political discussion among the people, was reputed as one of Louisiana's most complex, a hard one to figure.

SPICE

Two unknows sprinkled spice in the political pudding — Roswell Thompson, a New Orleans cabbie, and Gale Berry, a Lake Charles insurance man.

Thompson blasted away regularly on New Orleans radio telling the people he was a second Huey P. Long, promising that he would carry out Huey's program of "every man a king."

This charge was refuted.

But the candidate that added that ole familiar flavor of Louisiana politics was Allen G. LaCombe, a racetrack tout. La Combe gave up giving tips on the horses to run for governor.

Birth Control Issue Flares

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower declared this week that as long as he sits in the White House, no country with over-population problems will get birth control advice from the federal government.

"That's not our business," he said.

A national controversy had arisen over whether U.S. foreign aid funds should be used to promote birth control in underdeveloped countries with population pressures.

The controversy stemmed from charges by the Catholic bishops of the United States that a systematic campaign was afoot to use such funds to promote contraception, rather than economic development, to ease population stresses.

The dispute spilled over into the political arena and threatened to become an issue with strong overtones in the 1960 presidential race. Several Democratic presidential candidates felt compelled to take a stand.

Among them was the front-running Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, a Catholic whose religious affiliation could be decisive in whether he wins either nomination or election.

Kennedy answered a challenge by a Protestant leader by declaring "the use of public funds for birth control in other nations would not be a wise or good policy." The Right Rev. James A. Pike, Episcopal bishop of San Francisco and chairman of the Clergymen's Advisory Committee for the Planned Parenthood Federation of America, had demanded to know whether the Catholic bishop's statement was binding on a Catholic candidate for president.

Kennedy did not reply directly but he said "it would be objectionable to interfere in the lives of any other nation in something which should be entirely the problem of that nation."

There was no reaction from Vice President Richard M. Nixon, leading candidate for the Republican presidential nomination. But Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, regarded as Nixon's chief rival, asserted that it was "unfortunate and unfair" that the question of a political candidate's religion and views on birth control "should come into the political arena."

Rockefeller reiterated his belief that a Roman Catholic can become president. He said religion "has no place in politics."

The President did not discuss the issue in a political sense. He told a press conference that he could not "imagine anything more emphatically a subject that is not a proper political or governmental activity or function or responsibility."

He conceded that over - population is an "almost explosive world problem" but said nations wanting to do something about it "ought to go to professional groups, not the government, for help."

Seldom had reporters seen Ike so blunt and denunciatory. He asserted that birth control was a subject that had deep religious implications with some denominations, notably the Catholics, and that he had no quarrel with them.

The press conference topic had been raised by a reporter who referred to the foreign aid recommendations made in July by a special Presidential study committee headed by William H. Draper, a retired Army general.

The Draper Report said the United States should, upon request, assist other countries faced with difficult population expansion problems. Committee members said this referred to birth control.

Ike said sternly that the subject had nothing to do with contact between one government and another and that he did not intend for the United States to interfere with any other government in such a manner. He added that this government, as long as he has anything to do with it, will have no positive doctrine relating to birth control.

A U. S. foreign aid spokesman said, "Not a penny of government funds had been used for such purposes and no such action is contemplated."

John Holcombe Named To Key Labor Position

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John L. Holcombe, top defense Department aide and career civil servant, was named Friday to a key "watchdog" job in enforcement of the new labor reform law.

Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell appointed Holcombe as commissioner of the Bureau of Labor-management reports. He will take over the $17,000-a-year job Jan. 1.

Mitchell said Holcombe will be in charge of policing the anti-corruption provisions of the statute applying to unions, employers and labor consultants.

Holcombe, 48, pledged absolute fairness in carrying out his duties.

"I am going to make sure this law is administered right down the middle of the road with no undue restrictions on anyone affected by it," he told reporters.

Holcombe, who began his government career in 1936 with the old Works Progress Administration, said he has always been interested in industrial relations.

He had government jobs dealing with workers before he became an army officer during World War II. He left the Army with the rank of Colonel at the age of 33.

He now is director of the Defense Department's office of programming and control. Previously he helped establish a common budgeting and reporting system for the Army, Air Force and Marine Corps.

MANY TAKE STANDS

Birth Control Issue Flares

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower declared this week that as long as he sits in the White House, no country with over-population problems will get birth control advice from the federal government.

"That's not our business," he said.

A national controversy had arisen over whether U.S. foreign aid funds should be used to promote birth control in underdeveloped countries with population pressures.

The controversy stemmed from charges by the Catholic bishops of the United States that a systematic campaign was afoot to use such funds to promote contraception, rather than economic development, to ease population stresses.

The dispute spilled over into the political arena and threatened to become an issue with strong overtones in the 1960 presidential race. Several Democratic presidential candidates felt compelled to take a stand.

Among them was the front-running Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, a Catholic whose religious affiliation could be decisive in whether he wins either nomination or election.

Kennedy answered a challenge by a Protestant leader by declaring "the use of public funds for birth control in other nations would not be a wise or good policy." The Right Rev. James A. Pike, Episcopal bishop of San Francisco and chairman of the Clergymen's Advisory Committee for the Planned Parenthood Federation of America, had demanded to know whether the Catholic bishop's statement was binding on a Catholic candidate for president.

Kennedy did not reply directly but he said "it would be objectionable to interfere in the lives of any other nation in something which should be entirely the problem of that nation."

There was no reaction from Vice President Richard M. Nixon, leading candidate for the Republican presidential nomination. But Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, regarded as Nixon's chief rival, asserted that it was "unfortunate and unfair" that the question of a political candidate's religion and views on birth control "should come into the political arena."

Rockefeller reiterated his belief that a Roman Catholic can become president. He said religion "has no place in politics."

The President did not discuss the issue in a political sense. He told a press conference that he could not "imagine anything more emphatically a subject that is not a proper political or governmental activity or function or responsibility."

He conceded that over - population is an "almost explosive world problem" but said nations wanting to do something about it "ought to go to professional groups, not the government, for help."

Seldom had reporters seen Ike so blunt and denunciatory. He asserted that birth control was a subject that had deep religious implications with some denominations, notably the Catholics, and that he had no quarrel with them.

The press conference topic had been raised by a reporter who referred to the foreign aid recommendations made in July by a special Presidential study committee headed by William H. Draper, a retired Army general.

The Draper Report said the United States should, upon request, assist other countries faced with difficult population expansion problems. Committee members said this referred to birth control.

Ike said sternly that the subject had nothing to do with contact between one government and another and that he did not intend for the United States to interfere with any other government in such a manner. He added that this government, as long as he has anything to do with it, will have no positive doctrine relating to birth control.

A U. S. foreign aid spokesman said, "Not a penny of government funds had been used for such purposes and no such action is contemplated."

John Holcombe Named To Key Labor Position

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John L. Holcombe, top defense Department aide and career civil servant, was named Friday to a key "watchdog" job in enforcement of the new labor reform law.

Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell appointed Holcombe as commissioner of the Bureau of Labor-management reports. He will take over the $17,000-a-year job Jan. 1.

Mitchell said Holcombe will be in charge of policing the anti-corruption provisions of the statute applying to unions, employers and labor consultants.

Holcombe, 48, pledged absolute fairness in carrying out his duties.

"I am going to make sure this law is administered right down the middle of the road with no undue restrictions on anyone affected by it," he told reporters.

Holcombe, who began his government career in 1936 with the old Works Progress Administration, said he has always been interested in industrial relations.

He had government jobs dealing with workers before he became an army officer during World War II. He left the Army with the rank of Colonel at the age of 33.

He now is director of the Defense Department's office of programming and control. Previously he helped establish a common budgeting and reporting system for the Army, Air Force and Marine Corps.

Turkey Premier Man In Hurry

ANKARA (AP)—Turkey's Premier Adnan Menderes is Turkey's man in a hurry. Since he came to power in a big election upset in 1950, he has tried with sometimes feverish haste to speed his country towards modernization.

An anecdote told in Ankara illustrates his drive and his one-man approach to details of state.

After midnight recently a cruising taxi was hailed on a quiet residential street. The passenger told the driver to take him into the outlying sections of Ankara, where men were working around the clock building and widening roads.

"Look here," the passenger told the driver, "at all that's been done. People don't understand all that I am doing."

The passenger was Menderes. It was close to 5 a.m. when the driver took him back to his home after a 4½ hour inspection of Ankara's street improvement program. A few hours later Menderes was off on another inspection tour, this time of villages near Ankara in the company of Ankara's governor.

This awesome energy has carried Menderes in a relatively short time from the role of a gentleman farmer to that of prime minister of a key American ally.

Born in Aydin in southwestern Turkey in 1899, scion of a land owner's family, he attended school at the American College in Izmir. There he learned the English he speaks with careful precision. Later he was graduated from the faculty of law at the University of Ankara.

Menderes first was known as a progressive farmer who used to supervise his lands with the personal attention to detail he now tries to give to government.

He has been in Parliament since 1931.

With Celal Bayar, now Turkey's president, and two other deputies Menderes helped form the Democratic party. The new party failed in 1946 to unseat the Peoples Republicans under Ismet Inonu, heirs to the one-party system of government remaining from the days of the great Kemal Ataturk.

But in 1950 after a tireless campaign, the Democrats came to power in what was modern Turkey's first truly democratic election. Menderes' platform called for allowing free private enterprise and greater personal freedom.

His record since then has been dynamic—and controversial. By vast American aid, his government has built dams, highways and factories that have greatly increased Turkey's productive capacity. But the country fell into an economic crisis of such proportions that in 1958 the Western Allies again had to supply more long-term loans and a plan to stabilize the failing economy.

During the same period the political honeymoon that characterized Menderes' first days in office ended. His political foes accused him of going back on his early promises. Newspapers which had almost unanimously supported him turned against him after the Menderes government clamped strict restrictions on the press and arrested journalists who offended it.

Despite his battles at home, Menderes never has swerved from his policies abroad. He remains one of the strongest advocates of the Atlantic Pact. He helped form the Baghdad Pact (now CENTO) as a bulwark against Communist inroads in the Midwest.

President Eisenhower Monday will find Menderes and his nation firm, if troubled, allies.

Five Ministers Inspect Debris Along Riviera

FREJUS, France (AP)—Five grim-faced government ministers today inspected the flood-stricken Reyran River Valley and stood silently at the cemetery where open graves await more victims of the Malpasset Dam disaster.

The helicopters bringing in the top-level investigators from Paris landed shortly after weary rescue workers began their third day of probing in silt and debris for those still missing.

Official figures list 221 dead and 80 to 90 missing.

The governmental delegation was hardly noticed by the stricken populace of Frejus and the Reyran Valley. Only district officials, newsmen—and a military honor guard—greeted the ministers as they landed.

Leader Says Time Ripe For Revolt

TAICHUNG, Formosa (AP) — President Chiang Kai-shek said today the time is ripe for revolt on the Communist-ruled mainland.

At the same time, however, the president said the revolt must start before he could move across Formosa Strait to help against Mao Tze-tung, the Red ruler.

Chiang reminded a group of visiting U. S. reporters that his Nationalist government has a commitment with the United States. This was a reference to a Chiang pledge not to attack the mainland.

Meeting for more than an hour with reporters in this central Formosan city, Chiang said he has a large underground network on the mainland which is particularly strong along the coasts. He expressed confidence his forces could handle Red China's armies even on a three against one ratio, but he hinted he thought he should have the help of other Asian nations.

Answering questions, Chiang said that any concessions made by President Eisenhower in his forthcoming meeting with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev could have a serious effect on all peoples behind the Iron Curtain. But he believes Eisenhower's visit to Asia will promote better understanding by peoples throughout Asia.

He expects no break between Red China and the Soviet Union. He insists Khrushchev is able to dominate and control the Chinese Communist regime.

On the subject of a mainland revolt, Chiang said he believes the uprising will spread much faster than the one in Hungary.

Addison Nervous At Dinner

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — John Milton Addison, a smiling but tense young man in short sleeves, attended a $100-a-plate dinner here Friday night with 220 of the persons he is accused of bilking.

Addison is on trial here for theft and is charged in a three-count indictment with violation of the state's security laws.

The charges against Addison grew out of his efforts to finance uranium holdings in Colorado, New Mexico, Utah and Arizona and a so-called Benson upgrader which he claims can produce high grade uranium from low grade, unprofitable ore.

State authorities charge he obtained millions of dollars from hundreds of persons on the promise of returning their money and payment of 10 per cent interest and what they call vague promises of sharing in wealth from the uranium holdings. They charge this constituted the sale of unregistered securities to the public in violation of state laws.

Addison claims the money he obtained was a personal loan. Many of his lenders contend they have faith in Addison and gave him the money to use as he saw fit.

Testimony started Friday in Addison's trial. The accusing witness, Dr. Cliff Ochsenbein, Austin, Tex., rejected a promise of immunity from court action for false swearing at the trial.

Asst. Dist. Atty. James Barlow proposed immunity for Ochsenbein after Addison lawyers had hammered relentlessly at the dentist over affidavits Ochsenbein signed March 21 when he lent Addison $1,250.

The dentist at first evaded direct answers but later conceded on cross-examination that the affidavits he had signed were false.

Two Addison attorneys who attended the dinner called it a huge success. William Yelderman of Austin said he had come on a ticket supplied by one of the Addison followers.

A 35-member delegation arrived from Louisiana Friday to join the hundreds of other supporters who are attending the trial. Many attended the dinner.

SOLOIST — Mrs. Mary Shelton will appear as contralto solist in the college-community performance of "The Messiah" next Sunday (Dec. 13) at Northeast. Mrs. Shelton has appeared with symphonic and choral groups throughtout the mid-South and Midwest and is now living in Camden, Ark. The production of Handel's oratorio is scheduled for 3:30 p.m. in Brown Auditorium at Northeast as a project of the Division of Fine Arts.

Mary Shelton To Appear In 'Messiah'

Mrs. Mary Shelton of Camden, Ark., an accomplished classical performer who also sings commercial jingles, will appear as contralto soloist in the college community performance of Handel's "Messiah" at Northeast Louisiana State College.

The performance will be held at 3:30 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 13, in Brown Auditorium on the Northeast campus.

Davis Bingham of the Northeast music faculty is directing the production of Handel's well-known oratorio, which is a project of the Division of Fine Arts at Northeast. No admission will be charged.

The Northeast State choir will be featured, augmented by singers from the community, the Messiah orchestra and outstanding soloists.

Mrs. Shelton, since moving to Camden two years ago, has performed for civic and college groups in the area. Her husband is executive vice president of the Chamber of Commerce in Camden.

She has had experience in concert, oratorio and lecture-music programs and is a student of folk music, playing the zither as her accompaniment. Mrs. Shelton has appeared with symphonic and choral groups throughout the Midwest and mid-South.

HOSTESS

She is hostess on the "At Home With Mary" show on KAMD in Camden and is the radio voice of a Power and Light Co. She writes, produces, accompanies and sings the jingles used by various beverage companies in this country, Hawaii and Canada.

Mrs. Shelton is also a versatile convention performer, using a light, humorous style of patter and singing to her own accompaniment on piano and organ.

Mrs. Shelton was born in Princeton, Ind., and started her professional singing career at 16. Frankie Masters arranged a theater tour of the Midwest with the Ted Weems orchestra, which was riding the crest of the popular "Heartaches."

Later she was a featured soloist in the Mark Hopkins Hotel in San Francisco. After returning to school at the University of Illinois, she was graduated with high honors in speech and music.

At the time of her marriage to Bill Shelton, then a popular young orchestra leader, the couple recorded four sides on the Universal label and was selected to star in a sound-and-color film, "Kentucky Lake," produced by the Kentucky State Parks Commission.

FORMOSA'S CAPITAL

Changes Noted Taipei In 10 Years

By SPENCER MOOSA

TAIPEI (AP) — From Noodle street to Haggle alley, great changes have come over Formosa's capital city of Taipei in 10 years.

On Dec. 7, 1949, the Chinese Nationalist government transferred here from mainland China, followed by floods of Chinese escaping Communist rule. Changes were inevitable. They showed first in population growth.

At the end of World War II Formosa was returned to China after 50 years of Japanese occupation. Taipei then had a population of 335,000. Today it's more than 828,000 and still growing.

One of the biggest changes is in the physical aspect of the city. Areas which were farmland in 1949 have become congested built-up areas.

A dozen streets, once narrow and potholed, have been widened into well-built asphalt roads.

But some of the old eyesores remain: Shantytowns of almost incredible squalor and rows of clapboard [illegible] sanitation and other facilities.

A row of such restaurants lines a section of Hwaining road, not far from the Friends of China Club. On Noodle street, as it is nick-named, waiters often take dishes into the street to wash them, not too thoroughly, in buckets of water.

Most of the sewers built during the Japanese occupation remain. Now and then some unwary person falls into one and qualifies for membership in what old-time foreign residents call the sewercide club.

Taipei probably has more shops than any other city of its size. One of the more picturesque shopping districts is an almost mile-long stretch of Chung Hua (China) road lined with one-story open-front shops. It is nicknamed Haggle alley by foreigners because bargaining is the order of the day.

The city doesn't have the gay night life of Tokyo or Hong Kong. Places of amusement must be closed by midnight. Dancing is allowed only in certain clubs. Gambling is strictly forbidden.

Taipei does its full share in maintaining Formosa's alarming birth rate (more than 3½ per cent a year.)

Another source of supply for its burgeoning population is the steady influx of people from smaller towns and the country-

Solon Gives Bright View For Arkansas

Acknowledging the loss of population, during the last few years, particularly from the small farms where agricultural labor-saving machinery has forced many small farmers out of business, McClellan stated, "We have reached the bottom in the trend towards loss in our population." He expressed the opinion that most small farmers have readjusted to conditions and that Arkansas faces great industrial growth because of the tremendous growth in the nation.

LINE OF MARCH

He pointed out that Arkansas lies in the "line of march and across the path of industrial development of the country."

Arkansas has the water resources necessary for industry and as new industrial development seeks areas away from the congested population centers, this area has but to meet the challenge," he said.

He said Arkansas must offer a "stable political climate" and a community where "law and order are preserved." He called for a place where newcomers would know that they "would be treated like citizens and that no taxes would be passed to penalize them."

He closed by pointing with pride toward his part in passing the labor reform bill, passed by Congress shortly before adjournment of Congress. He stated emphatically that labor and management must sit down together to "work out problems because of the great forces working against us." He said in the past 13 years investment in foreign countries has jumped from $8-billion to $28-billion for industrial plants where products can be manufactured to compete on the world market. This trend, he said, has reached "distressing proportions."

"Business and labor would do well to sit down and solve their joint problems to meet the challenge," he declared.

Rental Funds Distributed By Authority

A total of $15,589.93 will be distributed among the taxing bodies by The Housing Authority of the City of Monroe, La. The City of Monroe will receive $9,448.91, the Parish $3,405.80 and the State will receive $2,735.22.

The payment represents 10 per cent of shelter rents charged to tenants in the low-rent projects, George Breece Manor, Dr. Arthur Johnson Manor, Carver Homes, Louis Lock Homes and Foster Homes.

The annual payment is made each year in accordance with the Authority's Cooperation Agreement with the City of Monroe in return for services such as streets, schools, fire and police protection.

The 526 units were built to provide safe, decent homes for people of low income. Rents are based on income and family size.

The Housing Authority of the City of Monroe, La. is governed by a Board of Commissioners who receive no compensation for their many and valuable services. Samuel Rubin Sr. is chairman, J. Arthur Smith Jr. is vice-chairman, Joseph S. Amman, Ira Cagle, Sr. and Fred Fudickar Jr. are commissioners.

PIONEER REAR ENGINE CAR

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A rear engine automobile built in Detroit 25 years ago has gone on display at the Brooks Stevens Automotive Museum here.

A Boston syndicate hired R. C. Hoffman, an automotive engineer, to develop the auto with the hope that three of the major companies of the mid-1930s would combine and produce it.

DECEMBER 17

NE Orphans' Day Program Scheduled

Between 75 and 100 children from two area orphanages will be guests of college students on the Northeast State campus for the annual Orphans' Day program scheduled December 17.

In the program, a college couple "adopts" one of the children for the day and accompanys him or her through a planned schedule developed especially for the young visitors and their "foster parents."

HEADS PROJECT

According to members of a committee which is heading the project, the event this year will include a special stage show in Brown Auditorium, a holiday Christmas luncheon, and a large-scale Christmas party for the visiting orphans and their "parents."

The foster parent couples buy their adopted son or daughter for the day a Christmas gift, which is placed under the large tree in the Student Center and later given out by Santa Claus, who visits the affair each year to distribute the presents and take charge of the party activities.

Usually held on Saturday, the Orphans' Day program this year is to be staged on Thursday evening after classes have been dismissed so that more people will be able to take part, college officials said.

The children are scheduled to arrive on the campus at 3:30 p.m., when they meet their parents for the day and begin an evening of entertainment which is slated to continue through 7:30 p.m

Mary Shelton To Appear In 'Messiah'

Mrs. Mary Shelton of Camden, Ark., an accomplished classical performer who also sings commercial jingles, will appear as contralto soloist in the college community performance of Handel's "Messiah" at Northeast Louisiana State College.

The performance will be held at 3:30 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 13, in Brown Auditorium on the Northeast campus.

Davis Bingham of the Northeast music faculty is directing the production of Handel's well-known oratorio, which is a project of the Division of Fine Arts at Northeast. No admission will be charged.

The Northeast State choir will be featured, augmented by singers from the community, the Messiah orchestra and outstanding soloists.

Mrs. Shelton, since moving to Camden two years ago, has performed for civic and college groups in the area. Her husband is executive vice president of the Chamber of Commerce in Camden.

She has had experience in concert, oratorio and lecture-music programs and is a student of folk music, playing the zither as her accompaniment. Mrs. Shelton has appeared with symphonic and choral groups throughout the Midwest and mid-South.

HOSTESS

She is hostess on the "At Home With Mary" show on KAMD in Camden and is the radio voice of a Power and Light Co. She writes, produces, accompanies and sings the jingles used by various beverage companies in this country, Hawaii and Canada.

Mrs. Shelton is also a versatile convention performer, using a light, humorous style of patter and singing to her own accompaniment on piano and organ.

Mrs. Shelton was born in Princeton, Ind., and started her professional singing career at 16. Frankie Masters arranged a theater tour of the Midwest with the Ted Weems orchestra, which was riding the crest of the popular "Heartaches."

Later she was a featured soloist in the Mark Hopkins Hotel in San Francisco. After returning to school at the University of Illinois, she was graduated with high honors in speech and music.

At the time of her marriage to Bill Shelton, then a popular young orchestra leader, the couple recorded four sides on the Universal label and was selected to star in a sound-and-color film, "Kentucky Lake," produced by the Kentucky State Parks Commission.

SOLOIST — Mrs. Mary Shelton will appear as contralto solist in the college-community performance of "The Messiah" next Sunday (Dec. 13) at Northeast. Mrs. Shelton has appeared with symphonic and choral groups throughtout the mid-South and Midwest and is now living in Camden, Ark. The production of Handel's oratorio is scheduled for 3:30 p.m. in Brown Auditorium at Northeast as a project of the Division of Fine Arts.

FORMOSA'S CAPITAL

Changes Noted Taipei In 10 Years

By SPENCER MOOSA

TAIPEI (AP) — From Noodle street to Haggle alley, great changes have come over Formosa's capital city of Taipei in 10 years.

On Dec. 7, 1949, the Chinese Nationalist government transferred here from mainland China, followed by floods of Chinese escaping Communist rule. Changes were inevitable. They showed first in population growth.

At the end of World War II Formosa was returned to China after 50 years o' Japanese occupation. Taipei then had a population of 335,000. Today it's more than 828,000 and still growing.

One of the biggest changes is in the physical aspect of the city. Areas which were farmland in 1949 have become congested built-up areas.

A dozen streets, once narrow and potholed, have been widened into well-built asphalt roads.

But some of the old eyesores remain: Shantytowns of almost incredible squalor and rows of clapboard [illegible] lacking sanitation and other facilities.

A row of such restaurants lines a section of Hwaining road, not far from the Friends of China Club. On Noodle street, as it is nick-named, waiters often take dishes into the street to wash them, not too thoroughly, in buckets of water.

Most of the sewers built during the Japanese occupation remain. Now and then some unwary person falls into one and qualifies for membership in what old-time foreign residents call the sewercide club.

Taipei probably has more shops than any other city of its size. One of the more picturesque shopping districts is an almost mile-long stretch of Chung Hua (China) road lined with one-story open-front shops. It is nicknamed Haggle alley by foreigners because bargaining is the order of the day.

The city doesn't have the gay night life of Tokyo or Hong Kong. Places of amusement must be closed by midnight. Dancing is allowed only in certain clubs. Gambling is strictly forbidden.

Taipei does its full share in maintaining Formosa's alarming birth rate (more than 3½ per cent a year.)

Another source of supply for its burgeoning population is the steady influx of people from smaller towns and the country-

Solon Gives Bright View For Arkansas

Acknowledging the loss of population, during the last few years, particularly from the small farms where agricultural labor-saving machinery has forced many small farmers out of business, McClellan stated, "We have reached the bottom in the trend towards loss in our population." He expressed the opinion that most small farmers have readjusted to conditions and that Arkansas faces great industrial growth because of the tremendous growth in the nation.

LINE OF MARCH

He pointed out that Arkansas lies in the "line of march and across the path of industrial development of the country."

Arkansas has the water resources necesary for industry and as new industrial development seeks areas away from the congested population centers, this area has but to meet the challenge," he said.

He said Arkansas must offer a "stable political climate" and a community where "law and order are preserved." He called for a place where newcomers would know that they "would be treated like citizens and that no taxes would be passed to penalize them."

He closed by pointing with pride toward his part in passing the labor reform bill, passed by Congress shortly before adjournment of Congress. He stated emphatically that labor and management must sit down together to "work out problems because of the great forces working against us." He said in the past 13 years investment in foreign countries has jumped from $8-billion to $28-billion for industrial plants where products can be manufactured to compete on the world market. This trend, he said, has reached "distressing proportions."

"Business and labor would do well to sit down and solve their joint problems to meet the challenge," he declared.

Rental Funds Distributed By Authority

A total of $15,589.93 will be distributed among the taxing bodies by The Housing Authority of the City of Monroe, La. The City of Monroe will receive $9,443.91, the Parish $3,405.80 and the State will receive $2,735.22.

The payment represents 10 per cent of shelter rents charged to tenants in the low-rent projects, George Breece Manor, Dr. Arthur Johnson Manor, Carver Homes, Louis Lock Homes and Foster Homes.

The annual payment is made each year in accordance with the Authority's Cooperation Agreement with the City of Monroe in return for services such as streets, schools, fire and police protection.

The 526 units were built to provide safe, decent homes for people of low income. Rents are based on income and family size.

The Housing Authority of the City o' Monroe, La. is governed by a Board of Commissioners who receive no compensation for their many and valuable services. Samuel Rubin Sr. is chairman, J. Arthur Smith Jr. is vice-chairman, Joseph S. Amman, Ira Cagle, Sr. and Fred Fudickar Jr. are commissioners.

Ike Ends Meetings With Italian Heads

Eisenhower's three separate talks with Italian officials were conducted in a warm, friendly atmosphere, unaffected by the deluge of rain that fell throughout the visit.

The heavy stress on the need for trustworthy disarmament controls stood out as a main point in the discussions.

"The participants expressed their determination to pursue policies aimed at reducing the burden of armaments throughout the world," the communique said.

Both sides promised to strive for success in the work of the 10-nation U.N. Disarmament Commission which is to tackle that problem next month.

U.S. Forces In Iceland May Be Withdrawn

WASHINGTON (AP) — Withdrawal of a substantial part of the American military force now stationed in Iceland is under consideration at the highest U.S. and Atlantic Alliance levels, informed officials revealed Saturday.

The Defense Department declined to discuss this development in view of President Eisenhower's absence on his good-will tour in Europe, Africa and Asia. But a reduction in the 6,000-man force in the North Atlantic island is understood to be one of the matters that will come before the NATO starting Dec. 14.

U.S. troops first went to Iceland in the months before the United States officially entered World War II 18 years ago Monday. The U.S. forces now in Iceland are there under terms of the North Atlantic Treaty Alliance of which Iceland is a member.

Iceland furnishes no combat forces to the alliance but her geographical position has served as a vital link in East-West hemispheric defenses.

ARMY

Most of the Americans in Iceland belong to the Army and the Air Force. There is an Army group and engineers whose main functions is to look after the air base and supporting facilities centered at Keyflavik.

In addition to providing ground support at the air base, Army and Air Force personnel man radar and communications installations in Iceland.

The Navy has a much smaller group ashore, but is concerned with communications and the constant antisubmarine surveillance of the North Atlantic passages.

Several years ago strong political pressures developed in Iceland for withdrawal of the U.S. forces, but that situation was quieted down through diplomatic means.

The general's removal followed an incident in which two Icelandic civil defense officials said they had been forced to lie face down on wet ground by an American sentry while he took time to find out whether they had authority to enter a U.S. military base.

The current discussion over the removal of U.S. forces was understood to have no connection with the early September incident. And there was no official word that the Icelandic government had made any formal request for the departure of American troops.

However, there is no getting away from the fact that the people of Iceland have never become reconciled to having U.S. troops stationed in their midst.

In recent years, the United States has sought to avoid any situations that might lead to the exchange of formal documents, with possibly embarrassing results, between this government and Iceland.

A case in point is the question of stationing U.S. Negroes in Iceland. Administration sources said Saturday there are no Negroes presently assigned to American units in Iceland.

However, both the Defense Department and the Icelandic Embassy in Washington have denied the existence of any agreement defining the identity of Americans in Iceland.

The Icelandic Embassy said the United States has been requested, in selecting personnel for duty in Iceland, to send men of "a high degree of culture and discipline." This understanding has placed on the United States a responsibility for careful selection of military men for duty in Iceland.

WITH NEHRU

Eisenhower Set For Ringside Seat

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower will get a firsthand report from Prime Minister Nehru this week on the extent of the threat posed by Red China to India's non-Communist neighbors.

What he learns may have a vital bearing on the prospects for starting a worldwide disarmament system during Eisenhower's last year in office.

For as Communist China's hostility and aggressiveness toward the outside world increase, there is increasing concern in official quarters here over the possibility of setting up an effective inspection system to police any kind of disarmament accord—even a relatively simple undertaking to refrain from testing nuclear weapons.

Every major Western plan for disarmament, as well as the nuclear test ban treaty now under negotiation at Geneva, provides for the establishment of inspection stations manned by international teams in Red China as well as the Soviet Union.

Questions concerned with Red China's policies and attitudes are expected to be fully discussed by Eisenhower and Nehru during the President's four-day visit to New Delhi beginning next Wednesday. These questions even enter into calculations about the amount of foreign aid, including U. S. help, which India may require in the next few years to carry out its economic expansion plans.

New aggression by Red Chinese forces in disputed border areas between the two countries could force Nehru into an armament program he has long avoided. The cost of this could cut into India's economic plan, unless the burden were offset by more outside aid.

Disarmament issues also are expected to come up because both Eisenhower and Nehru advocate bringing the nuclear arms race under control as a means of providing a global nuclear war.

Eisenhower made a new appeal for disarmament in his radio-TV speech before leaving on the good-will tour Thursday night. He called it the way to bring about a general relaxation of tensions in the world. But he said the first requirement for a disarmament agreement with the Communist bloc is provision for a mutually effective controls system.

Secretary of State Christian A. Herter told a news conference Nov 24 that it is "very much of a question" whether any kind of a disarmament agreement would be practical without Red China's participation. He declined any further discussion.

But the fact is that of about 130 inspection stations which would be necessary to police the nuclear test ban being negotiated at Geneva, approximately 8 would have to bet set up in Red China. That is according to the number and distribution worked out in the Geneva talks already. By way of illustration there would be about 12 on U.S. territory and 20 to 24 on Soviet Territory.

Experts here say the positions projected for Red China are necessary in part to police some of the Soviet Union's territory. They also are essential to give reasonable assurance that Red China does not become the scene of sneak Communist test explosions.

So long as it appeared that the Red Chinese were following the Soviet lead in world affairs, it was assumed here that once a beginning disarmament agreement — like the nuclear test pact — was worked out with Moscow the Soviet Union would arrange for Red China's adherence and cooperation in the inspection system.

But ever since Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's visit to the United States in September, the Chinese Communists have been demonstrating an unwillingness to follow his lead, or so it appears on the surface at least.

Two Parish Police Jurors Retain Posts

10, Irvin W. Kilpatrick, is seeking his second term. First elected in 1956, Kilpatrick assumed the post vacated by H. M. James, who refused to seek re-election.

Kilpatrick lives at 812 Rochelle avenue.

In ward 2, W. J. Vinson, also a veteran of many years on the jury, is opposed by three men. L. T. Carpenter, O. E. Towery, and Lucian Sawyer are seeking the post. A run-off election is expected in this ward.

Seven persons are trying for the three positions from ward 3. Incumbents are L. P. Pettit and M. W. Montgomery. Both are seeking the post for the third time. Montgomery has been president of the jury for the past three years. Pettit resides 4201 South Grand street. Montgomery's address is 1510 South Grand Street.

In ward 5, West Monroe, all three incumbents seek re-election. They are Percy Nichols, seeking his second term, Ollie C. Carter, asking for re-election for a third time; and Tom E. Hicks, a veteran of 20 years, and past president of the jury.

Ward 6 juror W. F. Golson, Jr., seeking a second term, is opposed by L. W. Coon.

In Ward 8, J. H. Brown, who held office from 1948 to 1952 when he was defeated by the present juror, is seeking re-election.

He is opposed by E. B. Wheeler.

In Ward 9, Juror G. Hilton Owens is opposed by Jesse W. Wilson.

Negotiators Set For Confab Again

"If the Taft-Hartley Act was to be invoked, it should have been used earlier."

Mansfield said that if the strike resumes after the 90-day cooling-off period, Congress will have to find a way to handle it "through some sort of arbitration or special labor courts able to deal with these problems with full authority."

A proposal Thursday by McDonald that the government-appointed fact-finding board for the strike suggest settlement terms was backed Saturday night by two Republican senators.

Sens. Jacob K. Javits (R-NY) and George Aiken (R-Vt) said in a statement they consider McDonald's proposal "the first real break in the steel strike which could lead to settlement."

They said resumption of the strike would be "an unmitigated and major blow to the American economy and our peace leadership. The national interest just will not stand it."

"We are confident that the Congress, if faced with this problem, may well authorize actions in the steel dispute to protect the national interest which would make both management and labor very unhappy."

The industry is standing firm on its offer of a three-year contract with benefits it values at 30 cents an hour and the union values at 24 cents. The union demands the terms of its Kaiser Steel Corp. Agreement calling for 22½ cents hourly gain over 20 months. There also is disagreement on work rules.

Castro Kin Linked To Plotting

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The brother of Cuban Premier Fidel Castro and another high Cuban official were accused Saturday of plotting with a group of Communists and left wing revolutionaries to overthrow the government of Guatemala.

The charge was made by Guatemala in a note read to the Organization of American States (OAS) by the Guatemalan representative, Dr. Guillermo Saenz de Tejada.

Saenz named Raul Castro, chief of Cuba's armed forces, and Ernesto (Che) Guevara, president of the Bank of Cuba, as having given financial and arms aid to a left-wing group which allegedly is setting up an armed force to invade Guatemala.

Cuba rejected the charges as completely false and asserted they were made primarily to influence Guatemala's congressional elections, scheduled Sunday.

Saenz asserted that his government is prepared to deal with any assault and was not asking the OAS to take action.

But he said Guatemala was officially informing the OAS to see if the Castro regime will take steps to prevent the plans from being carried out.

According to Saenz, intelligence reports have proved that both Raul Castro and Guevara "have been granting the help that was required by them of groups of Communits and pro-Commu-

The victim was the uncle of Fire Captain Woodrow Greer, who was among the fire detail combatting the blaze.

The wooden frame house was considered a total loss, having burned to the ground. Firemen remained on the scene fighting the fire until about 3 p.m.

Funeral arrangements for the victim will be under the direction of Hixson Brothers Funeral Home. Time for services will be announced at a later date.

Eisenhower's three separate talks with Italian officials were conducted in a warm, friendly atmosphere, unaffected by the deluge of rain that fell throughout the visit.

The heavy stress on the need for trustworthy disarmament controls stood out as a main point in the discussions.

"The participants expressed their determination to pursue policies aimed at reducing the burden of armaments throughout the world," the communique said.

Both sides promised to strive for success in the work of the 10-nation U.N. Disarmament Commission which is to tackle that problem next month.

U.S. Forces In Iceland May Be Withdrawn

WASHINGTON (AP) — Withdrawal of a substantial part of the American military force now stationed in Iceland is under consideration at the highest U.S. and Atlantic Alliance levels, informed officials revealed Saturday.

The Defense Department declined to discuss this development in view of President Eisenhower's absence on his good-will tour in Europe, Africa and Asia. But a reduction in the 6,000-man force in the North Atlantic island is understood to be one of the matters that will come before the NATO starting Dec. 14.

U.S. troops first went to Iceland in the months before the United States officially entered World War II 18 years ago Monday. The U.S. forces now in Iceland are there under terms of the North Atlantic Treaty Alliance of which Iceland is a member.

Iceland furnishes no combat forces to the alliance but her geographical position has served as a vital link in East-West hemispheric defenses.

ARMY

Most of the Americans in Iceland belong to the Army and the Air Force. There is an Army group and engineers whose main functions is to look after the air base and supporting facilities centered at Keyflavik.

In addition to providing ground support at the air base, Army and Air Force personnel man radar and communications installations in Iceland.

The Navy has a much smaller group ashore, but is concerned with communications and the constant antisubmarine surveillance of the North Atlantic passages.

Several years ago strong political pressures developed in Iceland for withdrawal of the U.S. forces, but that situation was quieted down through diplomatic means.

The general's removal followed an incident in which two Icelandic civil defense officials said they had been forced to lie face down on wet ground by an American sentry while he took time to find out whether they had authority to enter a U.S. military base.

The current discussion over the removal of U.S. forces was understood to have no connection with the early September incident. And there was no official word that the Icelandic government had made any formal request for the departure of American troops.

However, there is no getting away from the fact that the people of Iceland have never become reconciled to having U.S. troops stationed in their midst.

In recent years, the United States has sought to avoid any situations that might lead to the exchange of formal documents, with possibly embarrassing results, between this government and Iceland.

A case in point is the question of stationing U.S. Negroes in Iceland. Administration sources said Saturday there are no Negroes presently assigned to American units in Iceland.

However, both the Defense Department and the Icelandic Embassy in Washington have denied the existence of any agreement defining the identity of Americans in Iceland.

The Icelandic Embassy said the United States has been requested, in selecting personnel for duty in Iceland, to send men of "a high degree of culture and discipline." This understanding has placed on the United States a responsibility for careful selection of military men for duty in Iceland.

WITH NEHRU

Eisenhower Set For Ringside Seat

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower will get a firsthand report from Prime Minister Nehru this week on the extent of the threat posed by Red China to India's non-Communist neighbors.

What he learns may have a vital bearing on the prospects for starting a worldwide disarmament system during Eisenhower's last year in office.

For as Communist China's hostility and aggressiveness toward the outside world increase, there is increasing concern in official quarters here over the possibility of setting up an effective inspection system to police any kind of disarmament accord—even a relatively simple undertaking to refrain from testing nuclear weapons.

Every major Western plan for disarmament, as well as the nuclear test ban treaty now under negotiation at Geneva, provides for the establishment of inspection stations manned by international teams in Red China as well as the Soviet Union.

Questions concerned with Red China's policies and attitudes are expected to be fully discussed by Eisenhower and Nehru during the President's four-day visit to New Delhi beginning next Wednesday. These questions even enter into calculations about the amount of foreign aid, including U. S. help, which India may require in the next few years to carry out its economic expansion plans.

New aggression by Red Chinese forces in disputed border areas between the two countries could force Nehru into an armament program he has long avoided. The cost of this could cut into India's economic plan, unless the burden were offset by more outside aid.

Disarmament issues also are expected to come up because both Eisenhower and Nehru advocate bringing the nuclear arms race under control as a means of providing a global nuclear war.

Eisenhower made a new appeal for disarmament in his radio-TV speech before leaving on the goodwill tour Thursday night. He called it the way to bring about a general relaxation of tensions in the world. But he said the first requirement for a disarmament agreement with the Communist bloc is provision for a mutually effective controls system.

Secretary of State Christian A. Herter told a news conference Nov 24 that it is "very much of a question" whether any kind of a disarmament agreement would be practical without Red China's participation. He declined any further discussion.

But the fact is that of about 130 inspection stations which would be necessary to police the nuclear test ban being negotiated at Geneva, approximately 3 would have to bet set up in Red China. That is according to the number and distribution worked out in the Geneva talks already. By way of illustration there would be about 12 on U.S. territory and 20 to 24 on Soviet Territory.

Experts here say the positions projected for Red China are necessary in part to police some of the Soviet Union's territory. They also are essential to give reasonable assurance that Red China does not become the scene of sneak Communist test explosions.

So long as it appeared that the Red Chinese were following the Soviet lead in world affairs, it was assumed here that once a beginning disarmament agreement — like the nuclear test pact — was worked out with Moscow the Soviet Union would arrange for Red China's adherence and cooperation in the inspection system.

But ever since Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's visit to the United States in September, the Chinese Communists have been demonstrating an unwillingness to follow his lead, or so it appears on the surface at least.

Two Parish Police Jurors Retain Posts

10, Irvin W. Kilpatrick, is seeking his second term. First elected in 1956, Kilpatrick assumed the post vacated by H. M. James, who refused to seek re-election.

Kilpatrick lives at 812 Rochelle avenue.

In ward 2, W. J. Vinson, also a veteran of many years on the jury, is opposed by three men. L. T. Carpenter, O. E. Towery, and Lucian Sawyer are seeking the post. A run-off election is expected in this ward.

Seven persons are trying for the three positions from ward 3. Incumbents are L. P. Pettit and M. W. Montgomery. Both are seeking the post for the third time. Montgomery has been president of the jury for the past three years. Pettit resides 4201 South Grand street. Montgomery's address is 1510 South Grand Street.

In ward 5, West Monroe, all three incumbents seek re-election. They are Percy Nichols, seeking his second term, Ollie C. Carter, asking for re-election for a third time; and Tom E. Hicks, a veteran of 20 years, and past president of the jury.

Ward 6 juror W. F. Golson, Jr., seeking a second term, is opposed by L. W. Coon.

In Ward 8, J. H. Brown, who held office from 1948 to 1952 when he was defeated by the present juror, is seeking re-election. He is opposed by E. B. Wheeler.

In Ward 9, Juror G. Hilton Owens is opposed by Jesse W. Wilson.

Science Hit By Soviet Physicists

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Some of the wonder and excitement will go out of the news from Russia if three Soviet scientists have their way.

The scientists, academrians Igor Tamm, Lev Artsimovich, and Pyotr Kapitsa, complained in a letter to the Moscow newspaper Pravda about sensational treatment of science by the Russian press.

They denounced reports of a hot water heater that was said to give off more heat energy than it took in. They objected to the publicity given a theory, by astronomer Nikolai Kozyrev, that the universe gets energy from the passage of time.

The three scientists voiced their complaints toward the end of a year that has been fruitful in sensational science stories from Russia.

Perhaps the most sensational was a declaration by physicist I. S. Shklovsky that the moons of Mars are artificial satellites.

This story was published by Pravda and circulated here by the Soviet embassy.

Shklovsky said a study of the orbital motions of the Martian moons, Phobos and Deimos, proved that they were hollow. He suggested they were the creations "of a once - existent highly developed civilization" which arose on Mars two or three billion years ago.

U.S. astronomers said Shklovsky based his conclusions on wrong data for the movements of Lhobos and Deimos. A Soviet astronomer, Gavril Tikhov, also took issue with Shklovsky.

But months later the story was still appearing in print in this country.

Another story which got considerable notice in the United States was entitled "The Mystery of the 'Tungus Wonder'" in a translated version distributed by the Soviet embassy.

It concerned what had been known as the "Tungus Meteorite" which exploded with devastating effect over the swampy forests of eastern Siberia on the morning of June 30, 1908.

Radioactivity higher than normal background was found at the center of the site, the story said. It added that the "bold hypothesis" had been advanced that what happened on that morning more than half a century ago "could have been caused by a nuclear explosion in a space ship approaching the earth."

Child's Wish Is On Way To Reality

Mike was born without the hand, and his right one is deformed. Now, thanks to contributions from all over the country, he will get an artificial hand and corrective surgery on the deformed one. He will be treated at the Crippled Children's Clinic at Richmond.

The Rev. Henry S. Amidon of Springfield, Va., who is handling a special "Mike Plaugher" fund, told United Press International Friday that contributions still are pouring in.

Six persons have offered to pay the total cost of Mike's treatment, he said, and one has volunteered to finance the work "as long as it is needed."

The minister pointed out that Mike will outgrow his artificial hand every 9 to 12 months, and will have to be re-fitted. Any funds not spent on the original treatment will be held in reserve for these changes, he said.

"Members of my church are arranging to answer every letter that Mike and his family have received," Amidon said.

Mike's case brought nationwide attention after his 5 - year - old brother, Donnie, took a hand from a department store manniquin. When his mother asked why he did it, Donnie said he wanted to give it to Mike for Christmas.

UPI and the Washington Post and Times Herald carried stories about the incident earlier this week. Since then, scores of persons have sent money or made offers.

Mike's father, an $85-a-week radio and television repairman in nearby Alexandria, Va., had been unable to finance the treatment.

SPAGHETTI AND POPCORN

Ike Will View Modern Italy

ROME (AP) — Opera has its hand out for government aid. But the corner bar juke box is raking in a fortune.

Spaghetti is still a big first dish in the restaurants. But they are hawking popcorn in the movie houses.

Junior still carries his books of Greek and Latin. But he motor scoots to school in tight blue jeans.

That's the new Italy that President Eisenhower will see when he makes Rome the first stop on his 20,000 mile, 11-nation tour.

Things have changed from that chill morning in early February 1952 when Eisenhower reviewed Italy's armed forces at Udine in his farewell as NATO's European commander.

There will be a strong note of personal achievement in his welcome back.

Italy takes credit for leading the world out of the dark ages and into the Renaissance of culture 500 years ago. But many Italians credit Eisenhower's World War victory and America's postwar aid with leading Italy into a second renaissance of social and industrial development.

A changed diet, plus more "growing years' in school before having to help hustle for the family's food, has brought its change in the new generation of Italians.

Supermarkets are beginning to pop up in the suburbs. The housewife in many cases has an electric refrigerator. Her husband drives a car, even if only a two-cylinder midget. Fiats, Lancias and Alfa Romeos by the thousands teem the streets of a land where the Italian of today drives the car of tomorrow on the roads of yesterday.

With massive American economic aid—73 million dollars in direct loans and credits last year along exclusive of military grants—Italy has built her postwar way back to a solid currency and sound economy.

Italy is hauling in millions from tourism. A record 15 million tourists, almost one for every three Italians in this country, came here this year. Next year, with the Olympic Games in Rome, the figure is expected to go far higher.

The country still has some stiff problems to solve.

Unemployment is over half that of the United States which has almost four times Italy's population.

Wages are low. The average Italian earner takes home less than $100 a month.

Education is still expensive, difficult and insufficient. A survey published by Il Messaggero said 28.37 per cent of Italy's population never completed elementary school. Nearly 13 per cent can neither read nor write. That 5½ million Italians.

Italy's government since the war has been stable, dominated by the Christian Democrat party, and pledged to the hilt to NATO and the West.

That is despite the still ringing challenge of Italy's powerful Communist party, probably the strongest in any Western country. It gets nearly 23 per cent of the popular vote. The Christian Democrats, themselves short of a majority, poll 42 per cent.

The Communist challenge is strengthened by the party's long-time alliance with the Socialists, which have over 14 per cent of the vote and could muster almost 20 per cent if they could patch up differences among splinter factions within their own ranks.

The Communist-Socialist left has baited Eisenhower bitterly in the past. They smeared streets with "Down with Ike" signs when he visited her as NATO commander. They called riot-ridden, nationwide strikes against NATO arms and NATO bases here.

Even that has changed. When the President drives through Rome's ancient streets many Communists will be out there cheering for him.

Since his Washington meeting with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev the Communist party has done a fast double take. The Communists are calling Ike and Nikita the new co-workers for peace.

Call Girl Is Dismissed From Hospital

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (UPI) — Former New York call girl Pat Ward was dismissed from a hospital here Saturday after recovering from a near-lethal dose of sleeping pills.

Her husband greeted her with the announcement that he wanted a divorce.

Miss Ward, who was a key witness in the vice trial of oleo heir Mickey Jelke, was admitted to a private hospital Wednesday after swallowing 20 barbituate tablets. It was the fourth such overdose in recents months for the 27-year-old blonde beauty.

Dr. Charles Savarese, Miss Ward's osteopath husband, said there "definitely will be a divorce." But he said he didn't know whether he or his wife will file the suit.

"I have made every attempt to settle this thing amicably," he said. "I have bent over backwards. But now it's time to start thinking about my son."

Savarese said he would insist on custody of the four-month-old boy.

Miss Ward, who admitted to once serving as a $100 a night call girl for Jelke, has filed for divorce several times against Savarese in the past year. Each time, however, the couple patched things up and she withdrew her petition.

Savarese said his wife would leave for New York City next week to stay with her mother pending the divorce.

Miss Ward married Savarese, her second husband, in Mexico, Nov. 11, 1958.

Food Problem Still Unsolved In China

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. experts see little chance that Communist China will give its hungry masses more food despite a desperate campaign to boost food production.

The Red Chinese food problem was pointed up by recent reports from Nationalist Chinese sources which told of food rioting on the mainland.

China's farm production probably will increase, Assistant Secretary of State Thomas C. Mann predicted in a recent speech, "but neither the peasant nor the city dweller may expect to benefit."

Mann said the Communist regime has "made it clear that austerity and hard work are the watchwords for the Chinese people." What surpluses there may be will be fed to the growing industrial plant, he said.

An even bleaker picture was painted in a report on Communist China's agriculture by Hughes H. Spurlock, Far Eastern expert in the Agriculture Department's Foreign Agricultural Service.

Mainland China's fast-growing population is estimated at about 650,000,000. Eighty per cent of these people live directly on the land, trying to feed themselves and the remaining 20 per cent. (In contrast, only about 10 per cent of the U.S. population live on farms.)

"Unless population growth is checked, China will be hard pressed at best to stay even with demands and to provide for exports," Spurlock predicted.

Food Perhaps Inadequate

"In the long run, without a check on population, China may well run out of food and fiber because its population could well reach one billion people by 1980. This could make China a net importer of food before it reaches major industrial status," Spurlock said.

Mann pointed out that increases in China's farm production so far have come largely through the sweat of hundreds of millions of peasants working under the iron control of the government. But the Communist rulers must "face up to the fact that the day may not be far off when large increases in farm output cannot be had, so to speak, on the cheap," Mann added.

The State Department official said some of Communist China's top economic planners have shown recent signs of realizing that new strides in agriculture will need capital to pay for machines, irrigation, and fertilizer.

But the heart of the Communist program in China has been the use of practically all available capital for developing heavy industry, Mann pointed out.

Students Pray On Steps Of State Capitol

CONCORD, N. H. (AP — A group of teen-age Quaker school students prayed on the steps of the State Capitol Friday, then went inside to plead the cause of a man who has refused to answer questions asked him in a state subversive activities probe.

The students, including a group of nine from the meeting school in West Ridge, N. H., and their headmaster, George I. Bliss, talked briefly with Atty. Gen. Louis C. Wyman, but failed to change his stand.

Bliss said the students felt the threatened court action against Uphaus is "a violation of freedom of conscience."

Wyman conducted a state Red probe at the direction of the State Legislature. At that time Dr. Willard Uphaus of New Haven, Conn. 68, a pacifist, refused to answer some of the questions he was asked.

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—When Malcolm Heisman says, as he always does, that business is slow he means that it takes four years for a bullfrog to reach marketable maturity.

Cuban Leaders Won't Give Verdict Yet

HAVANA (UPI) — Two Cuban revolutionary tribunals have mysteriously postponed until next Tuesday verdicts in the trials of counter - revolutionary activities against the regime of Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

The government has demanded death by firing squads for two of the Americans, Austin Young, and Cuban-born Rafael del Pino, both of Miami. It asked a 30-year prison sentence for Peter J. Lambton, a British-born American from Nassau, Bahamas.

Young and Lambton and 38 Cubans were tried by a military tribunal in Pinar del Rip. Del Pino's trial was held in La Cabana fortress in Havana.

Both trials ended earlier this week and verdicts originally were supposed to have been handed down Friday. The government gave no explanation for the postponements

Young, 38, and Lambton, were charged with leading an anti-Castro conspiracy in Pinar del Rio. They were captured last September after a clash with government troops in Los Organos mountains. Both claimed they came to Cuba only as free-lance photographers.

Del Pino, a one-time close friend of Fidel Castro, was seized when his small plane crashed and burned July 25 on a highway outside Havana. Del Pino was accused of trying to fly enemies of the government out of the country.

Dual Life Led By Storekeeper

By NORMA GAUHN

NEW YORK (AP)—Times have changed and a thriving sign of the shift is country storekeeper Joseph Petermann.

He shows up in a gray flannel suit to scout for customers in their big city habitats.

Then back he goes to West Townshend, Vermont - population 140 - and dons his storekeeping clothes of jeans and flannel shirt.

"We get a summer crowd of 1,500 to 2,000," says Petermann. "That's where the money is—the people from the city. I don't count on the townspeople."

As proprietor of West Townshend's Country Store, Petermann has shown hard-bitten Vermonters that old country thrift and diligence matches theirs.

He claims he thinks up ideas for staying in business "while I'm asleep — I don't have time when I'm awake."

Some of his policies: "Absolutely no credit. Don't let townsfolk hang around and keep the paying customers out. Cater to tourists—they're the healthiest business you can find. Do all the work yourself—pay somebody for it and there's less for you."

These, he says, have helped him buck the modern trend by moving to the country instead of the suburbs for his fortune. Petermann once worked as an interpreter for Dutch embassies in major European capitals. He came to the United States in 1936 and worked five years as chauffeur in New York.

Recovering from a back injury suffered as a U.S. Army sergeant in World War II, he got doctor's orders to take life easy. He combed the want ads and found a general store with post office up for sale in Vermont.

"It sounded interesting," Petermann says, "so I decided to try it."

He and his Irish wife, Betty, found the store was a rundown two-story building dating back to 1848. It features a dusty stock of horse medicine. Two recent owners had failed to make a go of it.

Petermann couldn't get a bank loan so he borrowed from friends. He tended store days, worked as a lens grinder at night, raised chickens in his spare time. His wife passed the Civil Service test and was appointed postmistress.

He acquired a stock of antiques and he supplied Vermont pine furniture of his own design.

Petermann feels his masterstroke was purchasing quantities of Vermont cheddar cheese which he ages himself for one year in a temperature and humidity controlled cellar beneath the store.

The first year he sold 500 pounds; now sales are a walloping six to seven tons. With his wife—who does all paperwork for the store—he keeps busy packaging the cheese for mail orders that tide them over the winter. Store mail orders also form more than half the post office business.

From his original savings of $7,000 and a $3,500 loan, Petermann figures he has built a $45,000 to $50,000 business.

After a tough year waiting for the village to take them into its community life, the Petermanns found themselves accepted.

"I don't know how much we're liked," he says. "But we are respected."

SHIP RIGHTED — The motorship National Pride which overturned in the Gulf of Mexico last week while taking nearly 500 tons of obsolete ammunition to a dumping site is righted by a large marine crane here. A Coast Guard inspection team reported they had located a body of one of the 11 crewmen who were aboard the vessel when it capsized. (AP Wirephoto)

Solon Accuses Butler, Claims 'Distortion'

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—Sen. Thruston B. Morton of Kentucky, the Republican national chairman, today accused Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler of a "distortion of facts, figures and history."

Morton assailed in a prepared speech Butler's assertion that only money lenders have prospered under the GOP.

"Now the truth is that no appreciable economic growth took place under either Truman or the Roosevelt administration except in time of war," Morton said.

The senator was a speaker before the National Warm Air Heating and Air Conditioning Assn., the same group addressed by Butler.

The GOP chairman said Butler "re-arranged history on a considerable scale" to sustain Butler's thesis that every major depression since the Civil War began with a Republican in the White House.

"Depression is not the only kind of catastrophe known to mankind," Morton said. "And if Mr. Butler wants to relate catastrophe to the political party in power, let him call the roll of presidents who occupied the White House during the three major wars of this century."

Odd Accident Incidence Up

CHICAGO (UPI) — Miss June Sandy, 17, was riding a bicycle in the main street of Whitstable, England, when a passing motor scooter brushed against her and whisked off her dress.

That was one of the more unusual accidents which occurred during 1959, according to the National Safety Council's annual list of freak accidents. The others:

Mrs. Florence Hill, Denver, Colo., heard her dog barking in the kitchen and went in and turned on the light. She saw a mouse. She opened her mouth to scream. The mouse jumped in.

Air Marshal William MacDonald, commander in chief of the British Royal Air Force in the Middle East, was the starter at an RAF cross country meet at Nicosia, Cyprus. MacDonald, a crack shot, lined up the runners, told them to get jolly well ready and pulled the trigger of his pistol. He shot himself in the foot.

A bus passenger in Rome, Italy, sought refuge from overcrowding by going to the top of the double - decker bus where freight was stored. He climbed into an empty coffin to escape a downpour. He lifted the lid and stuck out a hand just as two other passengers got to the top. They jumped over the side of the moving bus. Both were hospitalized.

Golfer Buddy Graham, Huntington, W.Va., got two birdies on one shot when his booming drive brought down two sparrows.

Baldasaro Palmentere, Kansas City, Mo., was hurled 60 feet into a treetop when his car blew a tire near Joplin, Mo. He suffered only cuts and bruises, some of which he incurred climbing down.

A Model T was in collision with a more modern convertible near Pembroke, Mass. Robert B. Richmond, Winchester, Mass., driver of the Model T, was hurled into the rear seat of the other car. His son, John, 6, was thrown into the lap of the other driver, John Swan Jr. Nobody was seriously hurt.

A Petersburg, Va., policeman asked the names, ages and addresses of two motorists whose cars had collided. "William Ashby, 35, Petersburg," said one driver. "William Ashby, 35, Petersburg," said the other. They weren't related.

Mrs. Ted Goreau, Hampton, S.C., told her husband a dent was put in their car when a house ran into it. The house was being moved down the street and struck their parked car.

A baby was born to Mrs. Jens Peter Lund, Fresno, Calif., before she and her husband got to the hospital in their car. Lund, hearing the baby's squawls, roared into the driveway, leaped from the car and dashed into the hospital lobby—smashing through a plate glass window he had mistaken for a dor. Mother and son got along fine, but Lund suffered a bloody nose.

Paperhanger Leo Beasley, Omaha, Neb., had to make a quick stop in heavy traffic. A five-gallon can of quick-dry paste tipped over in the front seat. Beasley had to slip out of his pants to get out of the car.

Dual Life Led By Storekeeper

By NORMA GAUHN

NEW YORK (AP)—Times have changed and a thriving sign of the shift is country storekeeper Joseph Petermann.

He shows up in a gray flannel suit to scout for customers in their big city habitats.

Then back he goes to West Townshend, Vermont - population 140 - and dons his storekeeping clothes of jeans and flannel shirt.

"We get a summer crowd of 1,500 to 2,000," says Petermann. "That's where the money is—the people from the city. I don't count on the townspeople."

As proprietor of West Townshend's Country Store, Petermann has shown hard-bitten Vermonters that old country thrift and diligence matches theirs.

He claims he thinks up ideas for staying in business "while I'm asleep — I don't have time when I'm awake."

Some of his policies: "Absolutely no credit. Don't let townsfolk hang around and keep the paying customers out. Cater to tourists—they're the healthiest business you can find. Do all the work yourself—pay somebody for it and there's less for you."

These, he says, have helped him buck the modern trend by moving to the country instead of the suburbs for his fortune. Petermann once worked as an interpreter for Dutch embassies in major European capitals. He came to the United States in 1936 and worked five years as chauffeur in New York.

Recovering from a back injury suffered as a U.S. Army sergeant in World War II, he got doctor's orders to take life easy. He combed the want ads and found a general store with post office up for sale in Vermont.

"It sounded interesting," Petermann says, "so I decided to try it."

He and his Irish wife, Betty, found the store was a rundown two-story building dating back to 1848. It features a dusty stock of horse medicine. Two recent owners had failed to make a go of it.

Petermann couldn't get a bank loan so he borrowed from friends. He tended store days, worked as a lens grinder at night, raised chickens in his spare time. His wife passed the Civil Service test and was appointed postmistress.

He acquired a stock of antiques and he supplied Vermont pine furniture of his own design.

Petermann feels his masterstroke was purchasing quantities of Vermont cheddar cheese which he ages himself for one year in a temperature and humidity controlled cellar beneath the store.

The first year he sold 500 pounds; now sales are a walloping six to seven tons. With his wife—who does all paperwork for the store—he keeps busy packaging the cheese for mail orders that tide them over the winter. Store mail orders also form more than half the post office business.

From his original savings of $7,000 and a $3,500 loan, Petermann figures he has built a $45,000 to $50,000 business.

After a tough year waiting for the village to take them into its community life, the Petermanns found themselves accepted.

"I don't know how much we're liked," he says. "But we are respected."

SHIP RIGHTED — The motorship National Pride which overturned in the Gulf of Mexico last week while taking nearly 500 tons of obsolete ammunition to a dumping site is righted by a large marine crane here. A Coast Guard inspection team reported they had located a body of one of the 11 crewmen who were aboard the vessel when it capsized. (AP Wirephoto)

LITTLE-KNOWN DISEASE

Attention Given To Aphasiacs

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

He was a handsome, blond-haired boy, and he looked as healthy as a child can be. He sat at a front row desk, smiling expectantly at Mrs. Edna K. Monsees, his teacher.

"What is your name?" asked Mrs. Monsees, looking directly at him and forming each syllable carefully with her lips.

"My . . .name . . .is . . .Paul," he gasped, strugg'ing for every word.

"How old are you, Paul?"

"I . . .am . . .10 . . .years . . . old." His face was alight with triumph as he reached the end of the sentence.

Paul is a victim of aphasia, a little-understood condition that afflicts hundreds of thousands of children. It is characteried by inability to use and-or understand spoken language. While professionals are still arguing among themselves about the details of diagnosis, there is fairly wide agreement that aphasia results from some defect or damage to the central nervous system.

Many aphasic children, like Paul, seem perfectly normal at birth. They don't learn to talk at the usual age, but that is not of itself alarming since many bright children are late talkers. The handicap becomes fully apparent, however, when an aphasic child reaches his third or fourth birthday, still silent and cut off from the world of verbal communication.

Deafness and mental retardation can also keep a child from learning to talk, and both of these handicaps are more common than aphasia. It is only when these possible diagonses are eliminated — by hearing and intelligence tests — that a child is known to be suffering from aphasia.

An aphasic child usually cannot be taught to speak by the methods which are successful with deaf children. But he can be taught. In fact, he can overcome his handicap completely, and go on to live a fully normal life — with the right kind of teaching.

That has been demonstrated in recent years by a handful of pioneering schools for aphasic children. One of these schools — the one Paul attends — is the Children's Hearing and Speech center of Washington, D. C. It was founded by Mrs. Monsees two years ago under the sponsorship of the Children's Hospital, and now has four teachers and 25 pupils.

Mrs. Monsees said the painstaking technique used in her school was developed by Miss Mildred McGinnis at the Central Institute for the Deaf in St. Louis, Mo.

"The St. Louis school, which has 65 pupils, was the first and is still the largest institution for teaching Aphasic children," she said. "There are now similar schools in Atlanta, Ga., and Boston, but I do not know of any others."

The combined capacity of these schools is fewer than 200 children Mrs. Monsees offered the "conservative guess" that there are upwards of 500,000 children in the nation who need this kind of teaching.

No New Movie Planned For Top Star

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Now that the multi-million dollar production of "Ben Hur" has hit the nation's movie screens, Hollywood film folk are asking star Charlton Heston what he plans for an encore.

"That's a good question," the rangy actor answers. "I'm talking with three buttoned suit boys from my agent's office now about some future plans.

"I just don't know what I'll do," he said, shaking his head. "One thing I'm sure of is that my next picture won't be of 'Ben Hur's' magnitude.

"As far as the predictable future is concerned, I would avoid any picture of that size. Anything that big would be compared to 'Ben Hur' right off the bat.

"As a matter of fact, I really don't think I could do any better work in another large scale spectacle.

"One of the problems in doing a big picture is getting a director who can handle it," he claimed. "I don't know of too many who can.

"It takes more than talent to control a spectacle. The director has to be careful not to let the picture engulf the main characters.

"What I mean is that it's difficult to make the people bigger than the spectacle."

Heston takes no pride in the fact that "Ben Hur" has a 15 million dollar production cost.

"Unfortunatley, it's the most expensive picture ever made," the actor said. "I wish it weren't.

"I say that because the cost is a statistic that seems to fascinate people. What they don't know is that much of the money was spent, not on the picture's chariot race, or extras, or costumes, but on time. We took nine and a half months filming the story."

Negro Victim Of Play With Gun On Bus

BATON ROUGE (AP) — As a school bus rolled along the highway here from a state championship football game Saturday, a youth played with a sawed-off shotgun. The result was death.

Officers said the game was to slip a live shell into one of the two short barrels—the one with a broken hammer—and to point and pull the trigger at other youths in the crowded bus.

Somehow, the shell fell into the other barrel—the one with the working hammer.

The shell exploded and the charge struck Calvin Lee Johnson, 16-year-old Shreveport Negro, in the chin. He died.

Officers said the blast came as the bus traveled up Airline Highway from New Orleans to Shreveport. The bus was loaded with Negroes who went to see Shreveport's Booker T. Washington High School football team play New Orleans' L. B. Landry High for the state Negro triple-A title. Landry won 28-8.

Ronald Johnson, 17, no relative of the victim, was held for federal authorities for violation of a firearms statute and as a material witness. He was identified as owner of the weapon.

The old-fashioned 12-gauge shotgun's barrels were sawed off to eight inches in length. The handle of the gun was carved to pistol grip size.

'Big City' Look Goes Suburban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A New look in apartment houses is boosting their popularity in the suburbs

New designs, larger rooms, air conditioning and landscaping are making people forget about the unimaginative conventional apartment houses of yesteryear, according to the Urban Land Institute, a private research organization.

The new features of multiple dwelling construction are just in time to attract millions of people who, in the decade of the sixties, will be ready to move into apartments.

Population trends show that there will be lots of young couples in the next decade — the newly married "war babies" — who will want separate residences but who will not be able to afford a house.

Thanks to pensions, social security and other economic factors, more retired people than ever before will be living on their own. Fewer of them will be forced to double up with their children or married kinfolk. Apartments for them may be the ideal residence.

This will also be true for many of the war babies' parents. They may find that with the children grown up and moved out, a compact apartment is more to their liking than a house.

According to the institute, apartment dwelling will be possible without sacrificing suburban life. In contrast to the traditional city apartments, air-conditioned units with larger rooms, gadget-filled kitchens, ample storage space, outdoor terraces and other appurtenances of a single-family, suburban house are appearing. Frequently these new apartments have a swimming pool and other club-like features for the exclusive use of the tenants.

"With these improvements, plus low land coverage and attractive landscaping, the architectural appearance of these new garden apartments holds lures for the suburban-oriented tenant," the institute said.

"Where land is too expensive for single-family houses," it added, "new construction in garden aparmtent forms, or row houses offers development possibilities for a growing market."

The institute also suggests that more emphasis be placed on apartment living in downtown areas. Living close to shops and work places reduces travel time and expense, land economist Homer Hoyt said.

Apartment dwelling also eliminates the upkeep work and cost of lawn mowing, house repairing and painting, Hoyt adds, and may also remove some of the "keep up with the Joneses" pressures that bedevil many a suburban householder.

Government figures show that construction of multi-family buildings has risen sharply in the past three years. The 195,000 units started in 1958 almost matched the 1950 record. In the first eight months of 1959, construction on apartment houses was begun at an annual rate of 164,200 units, the second highest level since 1950.

Gov. Brown Is Viewed As Favorite Son

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown of California may be a favorite son candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Brown, here to deliver a "nonpolitical" address at Harvard Friday night, told newsmen he is seriously considering such a move, but emphasized that he has not asked any other potential candidate to stay out of the race.

He said Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass) is the only other "likely candidate for the support of the California delegation to the Democratic National Convention."

"He would make a great president," Brown said then added "but that doesn't mean I'm for him."

It was founded by Mrs. Monsees two years ago under the sponsorship of the Children's Hospital, and now has four teachers and 25 pupils.

Mrs. Monsees said the painstaking technique used in her school was developed by Miss Mildred McGinnis at the Central Institute for the Deaf in St. Louis, Mo.

"The St. Louis school, which has 65 pupils, was the first and is still the largest institution for teaching Aphasic children," she said. "There are now similar schools in Atlanta, Ga., and Boston, but I do not know of any others."

The combined capacity of these schools is fewer than 200 children Mrs. Monsees offered the "conservative guess" that there are upwards of 500,000 children in the nation who need this kind of teaching.

No New Movie Planned For Top Star

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Now that the multi-million dollar production of "Ben Hur" has hit the nation's movie screens, Hollywood film folk are asking star Charlton Heston what he plans for an encore.

"That's a good question," the rangy actor answers. "I'm talking with three buttoned suit boys from my agent's office now about some future plans.

"I just don't know what I'll do," he said, shaking his head. "One thing I'm sure of is that my next picture won't be of 'Ben Hur's' magnitude.

"As far as the predictable future is concerned, I would avoid any picture of that size. Anything that big would be compared to 'Ben Hur' right off the bat.

"As a matter of fact, I really don't think I could do any better work in another large scale spectacle.

"One of the problems in doing a big picture is getting a director who can handle it," he claimed. "I don't know of too many who can.

"It takes more than talent to control a spectacle. The director has to be careful not to let the picture engulf the main characters.

"What I mean is that it's difficult to make the people bigger than the spectacle."

Heston takes no pride in the fact that "Ben Hur" has a 15 million dollar production cost.

"Unfortunatley, it's the most expensive picture ever made," the actor said. "I wish it weren't.

"I say that because the cost is a statistic that seems to fascinate people. What they don't know is that much of the money was spent, not on the picture's chariot race, or extras, or costumes, but on time. We took nine and a half months filming the story."

Negro Victim Of Play With Gun On Bus

BATON ROUGE (AP) — As a school bus rolled along the highway here from a state championship football game Saturday, a youth played with a sawed-off shotgun. The result was death.

Officers said the game was to slip a live shell into one of the two short barrels—the one with a broken hammer—and to point and pull the trigger at other youths in the crowded bus.

Somehow, the shell fell into the other barrel—the one with the working hammer.

The shell exploded and the charge struck Calvin Lee Johnson, 16-year-old Shreveport Negro, in the chin. He died.

Officers said the blast came as the bus traveled up Airline Highway from New Orleans to Shreveport. The bus was loaded with Negroes who went to see Shreveport's Booker T. Washington High School football team play New Orleans' L. B. Landry High for the state Negro triple-A title. Landry won 28-8.

Ronald Johnson, 17, no relative of the victim, was held for federal authorities for violation of a firearms statute and as a material witness. He was identified as owner of the weapon.

The old-fashioned 12-gauge shotgun's barrels were sawed off to eight inches in length. The handle of the gun was carved to pistol grip size.

'Big City' Look Goes Suburban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A New look in apartment houses is boosting their popularity in the suburbs

New designs, larger rooms, air conditioning and landscaping are making people forget about the unimaginative conventional apartment houses of yesteryear, according to the Urban Land Institute, a private research organization.

The new features of multiple dwelling construction are just in time to attract millions of people who, in the decade of the sixties, will be ready to move into apartments.

Population trends show that there will be lots of young couples in the next decade — the newly married "war babies" — who will want separate residences but who will not be able to afford a house.

Thanks to pensions, social security and other economic factors, more retired people than ever before will be living on their own. Fewer of them will be forced to double up with their children or married kinfolk. Apartments for them may be the ideal residence.

This will also be true for many of the war babies' parents. They may find that with the children grown up and moved out, a compact apartment is more to their liking than a house.

According to the institute, apartment dwelling will be possible without sacrificing suburban life. In contrast to the traditional city apartments, air-conditioned units with larger rooms, gadget-filled kitchens, ample storage space, outdoor terraces and other appurtenances of a single-family, suburban house are appearing. Frequently these new apartments have a swimming pool and other club-like features for the exclusive use of the tenants.

"With these improvements, plus low land coverage and attractive landscaping, the architectural appearance of these new garden apartments holds lures for the suburban-oriented tenant," the institute said.

"Where land is too expensive for single-family houses," it added, "new construction in garden aparmtent forms, or row houses offers development possibilities for a growing market."

The institute also suggests that more emphasis be placed on apartment living in downtown areas. Living close to shops and work places reduces travel time and expense, land economist Homer Hoyt said.

Apartment dwelling also eliminates the upkeep work and cost of lawn mowing, house repairing and painting, Hoyt adds, and may also remove some of the "keep up with the Joneses" pressures that bedevil many a suburban householder.

Government figures show that construction of multi-family buildings has risen sharply in the past three years. The 195,000 units started in 1958 almost matched the 1950 record. In the first eight months of 1959, construction on apartment houses was begun at an annual rate of 164,200 units, the second highest level since 1950.

Gov. Brown Is Viewed As Favorite Son

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown of California may be a favorite son candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Brown, here to deliver a "nonpolitical" address at Harvard Friday night, told newsmen he is seriously considering such a move, but emphasized that he has not asked any other potential candidate to stay out of the race.

He said Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass) is the only other "likely candidate for the support of the California delegation to the Democratic National Convention."

"He would make a great president," Brown said then added "but that doesn't mean I'm for him."

RED GERMAN SAYS

Girl May Write To Boy First

BERLIN (AP) — Communist East Germany's top propagandist says it's all right for a girl to write to a boy she met on vacation, even if he hasn't written to her first.

This weighty question was raised recently in Junge Welt (Young World), the East German youth daily. Ingeborg Velde of Magdeburg complained in a letter to the paper that the young man had promised to correspond and to visit her, but had done neither. Should she write to him?

Gerhart Eisler, who is 62, took up the matter in a column he writes regularly for the paper. Behind his opinion stand long years of experience as a Communist agent—including one spent in an American prison for contempt of Congress. Later he jumped bail and escaped the United States aboard the Polish liner Batory.

Eisler condemned the boy's conduct as "not only unbeautiful, but dishonorable and quite inappropriate to our times." If the affair had been just a "fire in the straw" so far as he was concerned, the boy should have made that clear.

"But I don't see anything wrong if Ingeborg just writeehis youn priate to our times." If the affair had been just a "fire in the straw" so far as he was concerned, the boy should have made that clear.

"But I don't see anything wrong if Ingeborg just writes this young man a letter and asks why he acted that way," Eisler opined.

His viewpoint is a bit daring. Communism, a doctrine of Bohemians when Eisler was young, has shifted to a puritanism seen at its strictest in East Germany.

Here is an account of the good life as the German Communists see it, from the party daily Neues Deutschland (New Germany):

"We girls hardly had any idea of construction work before we got on the job. But we learned, and now two of us are working as mechanics. All the others are eager to get their papers as specialists in concrete.

"Most of the women in my brigade had never been to a political meeting, never seen a theater from the inside. Now all that is changed. None of the women stands aside. We go to important meetings together and attend the party school.

"Every two weeks we meet with our husbands and discuss a book. We get together whenever some member of the brigade has a birthday. Now we have agreed, with two other brigades working for the title of "Brigade of Socialist Labor," to go to the theater once a month."

This type of existence is held up as a model to replace older German ideas of family life. Western observers think it is making only slow headway.

Like the other Communist countries, East Germany takes the problem of alcohol very seriously. Heavy drinking is a tradition in Eastern Europe, and the drabness of life under communism has done little to destroy it.

This summer party chief Walter Ulbricht came up with a solution other Communist countries have also tried: putting more fruit juice on the market.

The campaign comes bang up against another: the efforts of Communist sales organizations, including those that sell alcohol, to "fulfill the plan."

Till Eulenspiegel, East Berlin's satirical weekly, has taken the lead in ridiculing over-eager salesmen of schnapps. Once it printed a poem with this chorus at the end of each verse: "We're 5,000 drunkards over the quota."

The Communists have the idea that energy expended in physical exercise leaves that much less for undesirable activities. So sports and calisthenics get a powerful official boost.

Ulbricht himself is enthusiastic about sports, despite his glasses and professorial-looking beard. He likes to set the example, sometimes in short gym pants.

He has been known to whip off jacket and glasses to join his wife, 15-year-old daughter and a large crowd in 10 minutes of setting-up exercises.

He is also a tennis player and a practiced skier. Once he challenged West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, now 83 years old, to ski against him. Adenauer prefers boccia, an Italian form of bowls.

Ulbricht is a strict Stalinist in doctrine. Like Stalin he has opinions on everything, and has the means to make them stick. He laid down the East German line on the sack dress in a speech last August, some months after it had gone out of fashion everywhere else.

"Any woman can wear a sack if she likes," he said. "There is complete freedom. But, dear comrades, if a woman wants to wear a sack, she should please pay a higher price."

FOR PHOTOGRAPHER

Pavement Rich In Subjects

"PHOTOVIEWS"
By ALBERT W. McCOLLOUGH

Photo subjects, like gold, are where you find them—even underfoot.

Charles B. Reynolds, a young photographer and painter in Chicago, has proved this afresh with a collection of photos made with his camera lens focused on what might seem to be an utter blank—the paved surfaces of city streets.

But with his camera directed by the imaginative eye of an artist, Reynolds has brought to life a host of strong and active images formed by cracks in concrete, puddles of tar or oil, or weirdly shaped flaws and pits in pavement pounded by hurry of feet and and rolling wheels of a busy city.

A dozen samples of Reynolds' pavement photos have been published in Infinity, monthly magazine of the American Society of Magazine Photographers. Of them Burt Kramer, Infinity's art director, writers:

"Here are fragmented heads, figures compartmentalized (some of them dissolving into their background), totem - like heads, primitive monster-features, and an animal such as may be seen in the caves of Altimira in Spain. Here is a world of dream creatures moving unnoticed beneath our feet, constantly changing, aging, being reborn—a fecund world which speaks to those who will take the time to listen and observe."

Such is the case with "Cronapaque" print film, a photo printing material introduced a few months ago by Du Pont for technical professional uses including aerial photomaps, plant layout charts and other applications requiring a print base that won't shrink or stretch.

Cronapaque has the same print emulsion as that of Du Pont's high - speed varigam variable contrast photographic paper. The base, instead of being paper, is a white semi-opaque film that is tough and durable.

Further, the new print film's surface accepts ink, pencil, water color and airbrush pigments, permitting designs combing both photos and drawings.

Prints made on cronapaque, whether black and white or hand-tinted, can be viewed by either rejected or transmitted light, making lamp shades attractive whether the lamp is turned off or on.

Here is a world of dream creatures moving unnoticed beneath our feet, constantly changing, aging, being reborn—a fecund world which speaks to those who will take the time to listen and observe."

Such is the case with "Cronapaque" print film, a photo printing material introduced a few months ago by Du Pont for technical professional uses including aerial photomaps, plant layout charts and other applications requiring a print base that won't shrink or stretch.

Cronapaque has the same print emulsion as that of Du Pont's high - speed varigam variable contrast photographic paper. The base, instead of being paper, is a white semi-opaque film that is tough and durable.

Further, the new print film's surface accepts ink, pencil, water color and airbrush pigments, permitting designs combing both photos and drawings.

Prints made on cronapaque, whether black and white or hand-tinted, can be viewed by either rejected or transmitted light, making lamp shades attractive whether the lamp is turned off or on.

It's becoming increasingly popular to write off the United States as a nation of dollar-chasers. But does the American way of life mean only the highest material standard of living in the world? Here is an unusual report, based on a nationwide survey by Associated Press bureaus during one specified week, which indicates that simple unselfishness remains a striking part of the national character.

By HUGH A MULLIGAN
Associated Press Newsfeatures Writer

They say we are a nation of materialists.

To many a non-American, the American way of life has come to mean flashy cars, chrome-plated bathrooms, television sets and all the other blessings from an industrial cornucopia.

Hostile propagandists harp on this theme, but some of our sincerest critics, at home and abroad, say materialism has weakened us spiritually and physically.

This is the picture that a large segment of the world seems to have of America at the close of the sixth decade of the 20th Century.

But the picture fails to take into account one little - publicized but widely employed facet of the American character: our constant preoccupation with doing good.

It fails to take into account the number of American husbands who in any given week come home to a supper of warmed leftovers and get stuck with putting the kids in bed so their wives can push book wagons through a hospital ward, or march enmasse on the neighborhood porch lights to collect for some worthy charity, or stuff food baskets or wrap bandages or perform any of a thousand odd works of mercy.

It fails to take into account the number of American wives who sit alone at home night after night while their husbands run Boy Scout troops, teach boxing or swimming at the "Y", repair toys for the orphans, attend Community Chest meetings or nurse a reformed alcholic through a long night of temptation.

The one - sided picture of a money - mad America reckons without people like Joseph G. Anthony.

Anthony is a 47 - year - old barber in Richmond, Va. Six days a week he cuts hair for a living in a modest shop across the street from an elementary school. On the seventh day, Sunday, he tucks his tools into a small leather case and heads to the local hospital to ply his trade for free.

He's been doing it for 30 years, seldom missing a Sunday. Sometimes, to vary the routine, he accompanies a doctor on house calls, looking for someone to help.

Why?

There's no explaining people like Joseph Anthony in terms of a materialistic America.

And yet in any given week there must be hundreds, thousands of similar examples of selfless Americans gladly and willingly giving of their time, talent and efforts to help others.

ONE WEEK'S RECORD

To get some idea of the scope and variety of the unsung unmaterialistic side of the American character, Associated Press bureaus across the country concentrated attention for one week on the good things that people do for others, the things that don't ordinarily make news.

The week chosen was Oct. 25-31. As it turned out, it was a week of some soul searching in America. It was a week when Americans waited for Charles Van Doren to make his appearance before a congressional committee investigating rigged quiz shows. It was a week when a sleazy side of the American character was gradually unfolding.

On the face of it, hardly a week for the do-gooders.

Yet, at almost the same hour that quiz whiz Van Doren was in tearful conference with the district attorney of Manhattan, changing his grand jury testimony, Dr. Milo Fritz was bringing the miracle of sight to an Indian woman in an Anchorage, Alaska, hospital.

It was more than a miracle of modern medicine. It was a miracle of giving that stretched across the continent. Totally blind in both eyes, Mrs. Daria Nell Alex, a 51-year-old mother of five children, underwent a cornea transplant.

NO ONE MADE MONEY

The cornea came from the Eye Bank for Sight Restoration, a nonprofit organization in New York City. The person who willed his eyes to the bank — such operations must be performed within a few hours after death — never knew who the beneficiary would be. An airline flew the eye in a nine-pound box free of charge from New York to Alaska. Through arrangements made by the local Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat Foundation, Mrs. Alex was taken to Providence Hospital in Anchorage, where the transplant was made without fee by Dr. Fritz.

In the big state of Alaska, where big things are constantly happening for the little people, the incident was barely out of the ordinary. It was all in a day's duty for Dr. Fritz, a former Air Corps surgeon who has a private practice in Anchorage but spends weekends visiting remote Eskimo and Indian villages. Flying his own plane, the 50-year-old doctor brings medical care to isolated settlements.

On a recent trip to the village of Cheneliak, Dr. Fritz piled 600 pounds of equipment, a male nurse and assorted medical supplies into his plane for a weekend of free clinic work. He examined 37 villagers, found 31 in need of various types of surgery, 24 who needed glasses.

Each in his own way, each according to his time and talents, the barber in Virginia and the eye specialist in Alaska were practicing a flourishing American art form — the art of giving. And that same week, as in all other weeks of the year, they were joined by thousands of others throughout the land.

FINE ART OF GIVING

In Valley Stream, N. Y., 150 suburbanites crowded into a church basement for a "blood session" and sweated out a two-hour line to donate blood to two little boys, victims of hemophilia. Most of them didn't even know the family involved. One man, an aircraft worker hurrying home to supper, heard the appeal on his car radio left the higaway at the next exit and drove to the church.

"I'm gonna get hell when I get home," he told the others in line.

In this same week, the blood donor department of Chicago's Swedish Covenant Hospital broadcast an urgent appeal for donors with a rare blood type to aid 12-year-old Mary Leventis, brought over from Athens, Greece, last July for a delicate heart operation.

The operation would close a hole in the upper chamber of her heart and prolong her life beyond the normal 30-year expectancy for such conditions. Three times surgery was postponed because of a shortage of type B positive blood with a factor P-negative. Finally, as often happens with rare blood types, nameless people many miles away heard of the need and responded.

The donors, 15 men and 9 women, included an accountant, a clerk, a housewife, a chemist, a building materials executive, a receptionist, a high school teacher.

One of the donors, Joseph Baumstark, a 40-year-old brick worker, has donated his blood 25 times in the last 10 years. This was his seventh time this year.

Why does he do it?

Because 10 years ago his brother died in a hospital with a heart condition and kidney illness. "He needed blood, too," said Baumstark. "There were so few donors I made a pledge to him that I would give mine whenever I had the opportunity."

On Wednesday, in this week of quiet wonders, the Gallonger Club of Great Falls (pop. 39,214), Mont., enrolled nine new members, bringing to 541 the number of residents who have given a gallon or more of blood to the Red Cross. Eight members are now working on their fifth gallon.

Folks in Billings, Mont., this same week, were signing up for a new eye bank begun by the Altruse Club to serve a five - state area. Members received a small identification card for their wallets so that, in event of death, the Highway Patrol could rush them to St. Vincent's Hospital to have their eyes removed. Not a pretty thought to carry around with you every day, but a generous one.

The world has heard all about America's terrible teen - agers and what a growing menace they are, but it probably never has heard of the Pueblo County Muscular Dystrophy Service Club at Pueblo, Colo.

The club idea came to 16-year-old Steve Pittwood Jr. when he saw some children in wheel chairs at a carnival. "I pushed one of them around and took him to see the monkeys. Some of the kids seemed embarrassed because they were in wheel chairs and crippled. I thought something ought to be done .... a club maybe."

Starting with 17 members, the club obtained the addresses of local crippled children, began dropping by their homes on Saturday afternoons to chat, play games, spin records. Now there are branches throughout the city.

Nobody can ever again sell teen-agers short to Lester Moyer of Cadillac, Mich.

Moyer, an all-state football player from Cadillac High, was working and hitchhiking his way across the country to accept an athletic scholarship at Wyoming University when he was critically injured in a truck accident at Farmington, N.M.

Flat on his back in a strange town, Moyer was alone in the world with his broken body and broken dreams. Both his parents were dead. His friends miles away.

Then the kids from Farmington High began dropping in. Just a few at a time. Kind of informal, disorganized, the way teen-agers do things. But they never let a day go by without having someone stop in. The kids brought him malts, newspapers, books and lots of cheerful small talk. They even arranged for him to sit on the sidelines in a wheel chair at the Farmington-Durango game.

Moyer doesn't know if he'll ever play football again or even get to attend Wyoming U. But he does know that whatever the future holds, he's coming back to Farmington to settle down.

NEIGHBORLY SPIRIT NOT DEAD

In New Britain, Conn., $20,000 was raised in less than two weeks for a family partially wiped out in a fire. In Vancouver, B. C., people began dropping presents off on the porch of Mr. and Mrs. Stan Fistravec after reading how thieves stole the gifts they had bought for a daughter expected home from Yogeslavia after an absence of six years. In Lincoln, Neb., high school students went door to door collecting for a family who lost virtually all their possessions in an apartment fire.

In Springfield, Vt., 20 men showed up at Henry Ferguson's farm to haul wood, harvest corn, finish putting on the roof of his new silo. Ferguson, father of four children, lost both legs in the whirling blades of a corn blower last year. Cake sales and tag days raised $4,000 to fit him with artificial legs. "Not as a charity," explained Ralph Lashua, chairman of the drive, "but to help rehabilitate a useful citizen."

UNORGANIZED BUT IMPRESSIVE

America's organized charities and service organizations are without parallel in the world: Kiwanis, Lions, Red Cross, Boy Scouts, YMCA, Heart Fund, Cancer Society, the various church, civic and veterans' groups that number into the thousands. But the nation's unorganized charities are as varied and numberless as the people who perform them.

Former Navy football coach Eddy Erdelatz teaches crippled kids to swim in San Carlos, Calif. Ex-cop Al Gittrich studies law six days a week at Tulsa University, holds down a full time job with a printing firm and still finds time to help kids as a volunteer investigator for the Tulsa juvenile court. A Des Moines dentist, Dr. Bernard Hermann, opens his office a few hours earlier every Thursday to treat kids from the YMCA Boys Home.

Charles Spector, a retired postman of Wethersfield, Conn., tours hospital wards with a tape recorder taking messages from patients, which he cuts onto a record and mails to their loved ones. Mrs. Harold Linsley, who has been in show business all her life, puts on a marionette show every week for retarded children in Dallas Tex.; frequently gets a response that seems worth months of treatment. Service station operator Frank Rowland runs a free ambulance service in Kenmore, N. Y., with an ambulance he rescued from a junk heap and outfitted at his own expense.

ONE QUIZ ABOVE SUSPICION

In the week of the quiz show scandals, Mrs. Roy Shoults drove 89 miles from her home in Millersbert, Mo., to the Veterans Hospital at Poplar Bluff to conduct one quiz show that wasn't fixed. The show, carried over the hospital's closed circuit radio, offers 50-cents prizes for correct answers to the questions Mrs. Shoults writes and announces. Since 1953, when she started the program, she has shelled out more than $1,000 of her own money and logged 781 hours of volunteer service at the hospital.

The week of Oct. 25-31 would have been notable at the Little Rock Veterans Hospital if Mrs. Freeman Mize hadn't shown up to write letters for the patients. read to them, do errands, shop for them. She's there five days a week, has put in more than 3,000 hours as a hospital volunteer since 1952.

Few hospitals in the country could keep their fiscal heads above water without people like Mrs. Mize and her thousands of fellow volunteers. In an era of rising hospital costs and chronic staff shortages, the volunteers stage ward parties, teach dancing, arrange flowers, help with the food trays, chat with lonely patients, take the ambulatory on walks and fishing trips, wheel the crippled about the grounds or take them for drives and in countless other ways administer the still unbeatable therapy of "tender loving care."

GIVING WHEN IT HURTS

After a lifetime of charitable work, 93-year-old Ann C. Murray is no longer able to get out and solicit contributions for the Cumberstone, Md., United Fund drive. So she writes personal letters to the people on her list and still gets 100 per cent return.

Mrs. Eiley Estep, a former teacher in Huntington, W. Va., spends three days a week teaching retarded children how to speak, but there are some things she can't do for herself. She has one leg 2½ inches shorter than the other, the result of two dislocated hips. "I can't take off my shoes by myself," she said, but I'm not proud. I ask someone to help me."

At Hun Pavillion, the tuberculosis section of the Albany, N. Y. Hospital, patients were looking forward to the 10th annual Christmas party staged by Miss Ronnie Ceglais. They call her "The Angel of Hun." A gay, charming woman, crippled since childhood, Miss Ceglais whirles around the city in a wheel chair arranging food, music, entertainment, gifts for her party. She works as a receptionist in the state attorney general's office, does volunteer work for several other hospitals, the Cancer Fund, the local Boys and Girls Club, keeps house for herself in an apartment near the state capitol. "Mopping a floor from a wheel chair isn't as hard as it sounds," she says.

Mrs. May Barker, a plump, grey haired widow of 72, lives alone but not in loneliness on an $80 a month old age pension in a Toledo, Ohio, apartment. The week of Oct. 25-31 found her busy as usual helping others. On Sunday she went to St. Paul's Methodist Church, stayed on after services to wash cups and saucers left over from the coffee hour. Monday she baked cookies for the neighborhood kids. Tuesday she attended a meeting of the Golden Youth Club, a social group for elderly persons, but not before she had whipped up a cake for the occasion. Wednesday evening she went to choir practice, not to sing but to babysit in the church basement with 15 children of the choir members. Again, a batch of cookies was called for. And so the week went, a day-by-day chronicle of small favors from a large heart.

UNSEASONAL GOODNESS

Christmas was still two months away in the week that AP reporters kept check on America's spontaneous benevolence, but the spirit of giving was everywhere in evidence.

In Boston a Catholic priest and Protestant public relations man took turns at the telephone waiting for suicides to call. Their Rescue, Inc., organization has talked numerous despondent people out of ending their lives.

In Boise, Idaho, Mrs. James Hendry offered to loan her wheelchair to others in her predicament who might want to tour the new two - million - dollar First Methodist Church now under construction.

In Tallahassee, Fla., an elderly Negro couple opened their home and hearts to seven foster children, aged 10 months to 8 years. In the past 16 years, the Rev. J. J. Sanders and his wife have helped rear 23 dependent children referred to them by the Leon County Juvenile Court.

In Austin, Minn., Mrs. Albert Horwitz sat down at an odd shape machine to help a blind girl in California through four years of music school. For 25 years, Mrs. Horwitz has volunteered her time to the Braille Institute of America, translating books and musical pieces into the touch language of the blind. She has never met any of those who benefit from her service.

In Atlanta that week Mrs. Malcolm Bryan received the papal cross, a citation from Pope John XIII for selfless years of opening her home to unwed mothers, teen-agers in trouble and other daily acts of charity. "You see," she explained, "I have a big house. There is plenty of room."

SANTA FOR KOREANS

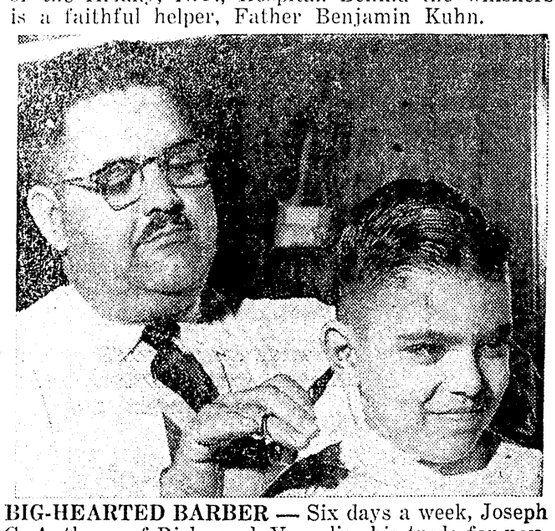
At Fort Dix, N. J., M-Sgt. Nector Morales prepared to leave his wife and three children alone at Christmas once again to return to his beloved orphans in Korea. Morales, born and raised in Puerto Rico, did two tours of duty in Korea, never got over the tragic plight of the war orphans. With the help of the post engineers, he repaired an orphanage building, built a chapel and playground. When he returned to the United States in 1958, he organized a huge toy and clothing drive that now has become an annual event. This year the Air Force will fly 1,400 pounds of clothing and toys collected by Sgt. Morales and his buddies to the Sun Ae orphanage at Inchen, where the sergeant will play Santa Claus, as he has ever since the Korean War.

And in San Francisco, toys began piling up in gasoline stations and fire houses as members of the Marine Corps Reserve and their wives began the annual drive that last year brought joy to 13,000 poor kids. Some of the toys were brand new. Those that need fixing were taken to Almeda County's Santa Rita Prison Farm, where the inmates jumped at the chance of doing something for somebody else.

"Charity," says St. Paul, "vaunteth not, is not puffed up."

In a thousand different ways, in a thousand different places, the apostle's words seemed to apply to so-called materialistic America during the last week of October, 1959.

ANGEL OF HUN — Miss Ronnie Ceglais, crippled since childhood, is arranging her 10th annual Christmas party at Hun Pavilion, the tuberculosis section of the Albany, N.Y., Hospital. Behind the whiskers is a faithful helper, Father Benjamin Kuhn.



BIG-HEARTED BARBER — Six days a week, Joseph G. Anthony of Richmond, Va., plies his trade for pay. For 30 years he has devoted the seventh day to free haircuts at local hospitals.

But the picture fails to take into account one little - publicized but widely employed facet of the American character: our constant preoccupation with doing good.

It fails to take into account the number of American husbands who in any given week come home to a supper of warmed leftovers and get stuck with putting the kids in bed so their wives can push book wagons through a hospital ward, or march enmasse on the neighborhood porch lights to collect for some worthy charity, or stuff food baskets or wrap bandages or perform any of a thousand odd works of mercy.

It fails to take into account the number of American wives who sit alone at home night after night while their husbands run Boy Scout troops, teach boxing or swimming at the "Y", repair toys for the orphans, attend Community Chest meetings or nurse a reformed alchonic through a long night of temptation.

The one - sided picture of a money - mad America reckons without people like Joseph G. Anthony.

Anthony is a 47 - year - old barber in Richmond, Va. Six days a week he cuts hair for a living in a modest shop across the street from an elementary school. On the seventh day, Sunday, he tucks his tools into a small leather case and heads to the local hospital to ply his trade for free.

He's been doing it for 30 years, seldom missing a Sunday. Sometimes, to vary the routine, he accompanies a doctor on house calls, looking for someone to help.

Why?

There's no explaining people like Joseph Anthony in terms of a materialistic America.

And yet in any given week there must be hundreds, thousands of similar examples of selfless Americans gladly and willingly giving of their time, talent and efforts to help others.

ONE WEEK'S RECORD

To get some idea of the scope and variety of the unsung unmaterialistic side of the American character, Associated Press bureaus across the country concentrated attention for one week on the good things that people do for others, the things that don't ordinarily make news.

The week chosen was Oct. 25-31. As it turned out, it was a week of some soul searching in America. It was a week when Americans waited for Charles Van Doren to make his appearance before a congressional committee investigating rigged quiz shows. It was a week when a sleazy side of the American character was gradually unfolding.

On the face of it, hardly a week for the do-gooders.

Yet, at almost the same hour that quiz whiz Van Doren was in tearful conference with the district attorney of Manhattan, changing his grand jury testimony, Dr. Milo Fritz was bringing the miracle of sight to an Indian woman in an Anchorage, Alaska, hospital.

It was more than a miracle of modern medicine. It was a miracle of giving that stretched across the continent. Totally blind in both eyes, Mrs. Daria Nell Alex, a 51-year-old mother of five children, underwent a cornea transplant.

NO ONE MADE MONEY

The cornea came from the Eye Bank for Sight Restoration, a nonprofit organization in New York City. The person who willed his eyes to the bank — such operations must be performed within a few hours after death — never knew who the beneficiary would be. An airline flew the eye in a nine-pound box free of charge from New York to Alaska. Through arrangements made by the local Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat Foundation, Mrs. Alex was taken to Providence Hospital in Anchorage, where the transplant was made without fee by Dr. Fritz.

In the big state of Alaska, where big things are constantly happening for the little people, the incident was barely out of the ordinary. It was all in a day's duty for Dr. Fritz, a former Air Corps surgeon who has a private practice in Anchorage but spends weekends visiting remote Eskimo and Indian villages. Flying his own plane, the 50-year-old doctor brings medical care to isolated settlements.

On a recent trip to the village of Cheneliak, Dr. Fritz piled 600 pounds of equipment, a male nurse and assorted medical supplies into his plane for a weekend of free clinic work. He examined 37 villagers, found 31 in need of various types of surgery, 24 who needed glasses.

Each in his own way, each according to his time and talents, the barber in Virginia and the eye specialist in Alaska were practicing a flourishing American art form — the art of giving. And that same week, as in ol other weeks of the year, they were joined by thousands of others throughout the land.

FINE ART OF GIVING

In Valley Stream, N. Y., 150 suburbanites crowded into a church basement for a "blood session" and sweated out a two-hour line to donate blood to two little boys, victims of hemophilia. Most of them didn't even know the family involved. One man, an aircraft worker hurrying home to supper, heard the appeal on his car radio left the higaway at the next exit and drove to the church.

"I'm gonna get hell when I get home," he told the others in line.

In this same week, the blood donor department of Chicago's Swedish Covenant Hospital broadcast an urgent appeal for donors with a rare blood type to aid 12-year-old Mary Leventis, brought over from Athens, Greece, last July for a delicate heart operation.

The operation would close a hole in the upper chamber of her heart and prolong her life beyond the normal 30-year expectancy for such conditions. Three times surgery was postponed because of a shortage of type B positive blood with a factor P-negative. Finally, as often happens with rare blood types, nameless people many miles away heard of the need and responded.

The donors, 15 men and 9 women, included an accountant, a clerk, a housewife, a chemist, a building materials executive, a receptionist, a high school teacher.

One of the donors, Joseph Baumstark, a 40-year-old brick worker, has donated his blood 25 times in the last 10 years. This was his seventh time this year.

Why does he do it?

Because 10 years ago his brother died in a hospital with a heart condition and kidney illness. "He needed blood, too," said Baumstark. "There were so few donors I made a pledge to him that I would give mine whenever I had the opportunity."

On Wednesday, in this week of quiet wonders, the Galloneer Club of Great Falls (pop. 39,214), Mont., enrolled nine new members, bringing to 541 the number of residents who have given a gallon or more of blood to the Red Cross. Eight members are now working on their fifth gallon.

Folks in Billings, Mont., this same week, were signing up for a new eye bank begun by the Altruse Club to serve a five - state area. Members received a small identification card for their wallets so that, in event of death, the Highway Patrol could rush them to St. Vincent's Hospital to have their eyes removed. Not a pretty thought to carry around with you every day, but a generous one.

The world has heard all about America's terrible teen - agers and what a growing menace they are, but it probably never has heard of the Pueblo County Muscular Dystrophy Service Club at Pueblo, Colo.

The club idea came to 16-year-old Steve Pittwood Jr. when he saw some children in wheel chairs at a carnival. "I pushed one of them around and took him to see the monkeys. Some of the kids seemed embarrassed because they were in wheel chairs and crippled. I thought something ought to be done .... a club maybe."

Starting with 17 members, the club obtained the addresses of local crippled children, began dropping by their homes on Saturday afternoons to chat, play games, spin records. Now there are branches throughout the city.

Nobody can ever again sell teen-agers short to Lester Moyer of Cadillac, Mich.

Moyer, an all-state football player from Cadillac High, was working and hitchhiking his way across the country to accept an athletic scholarship at Wyoming University when he was critically injured in a truck accident at Farmington, N.M.

Flat on his back in a strange town, Moyer was alone in the world with his broken body and broken dreams. Both his parents were dead. His friends miles away.

Then the kids from Farmington High began dropping in. Just a few at a time. Kind of informal, disorganized, the way teen-agers do things. But they never let a day go by without having someone stop in. The kids brought him malts, newspapers, books and lots of cheerful small talk. They even arranged for him to sit on the sidelines in a wheel chair at the Farmington-Durango game.

Moyer doesn't know if he'll ever play football again or ever get to attend Wyoming U. But he does know that whatever the future holds, he's coming back to Farmington to settle down.

NEIGHBORLY SPIRIT NOT DEAD

In New Britain, Conn., $20,000 was raised in less than two weeks for a family partially wiped out in a fire. In Vancouver, B. C., people began dropping presents off on the porch of Mr. and Mrs. Stan Fistravec after reading how thieves stole the gifts they had bought for a daughter expected home from Yogoslavia after an absence of six years. In Lincoln, Neb., high school students went door to door collecting for a family who lost virtually all their possessions in an apartment fire.

In Springfield, Vt., 20 men showed up at Henry Ferguson's farm to haul wood, harvest corn, finish putting on the roof of his new silo. Ferguson, father of four children, lost both legs in the whirling blades of a corn blower last year. Cake sales and tag days raised $4,000 to fit him with artificial legs. "Not as a charity," explained Ralph Lashua, chairman of the drive, "but to help rehabilitate a useful citizen."

UNORGANIZED BUT IMPRESSIVE

America's organized charities and service organizations are without parallel in the world: Kiwanis, Lions, Red Cross, Boy Scouts, YMCA, Heart Fund, Cancer Society, the various church, civic and veterans' groups that number into the thousands. But the nation's unorganized charities are as varied and numberless as the people who perform them.

Former Navy football coach Eddy Erdelatz teaches crippled kids to swim in San Carlos, Calif. Ex-cop Al Gittrich studies law six days a week at Tulsa University, holds down a full time job with a printing firm and still finds time to help kids as a volunteer investigator for the Tulsa juvenile court. A Des Moines dentist, Dr. Bernard Hermann, opens his office a few hours earlier every Thursday to treat kids from the YMCA Boys Home.

Charles Spector, a retired postman of Wethersfield, Conn., tours hospital wards with a tape recorder taking messages from patients, which he cuts onto a record and mails to their loved ones. Mrs. Harold Linsley, who has been in show business all her life, puts on a marionette show every week for retarded children in Dallas Tex.; frequently gets a response that seems worth months of treatment. Service station operator Frank Rowland runs a free ambulance service in Kenmore, N. Y., with an ambulance he rescued from a junk heap and outfitted at his own expense.

ONE QUIZ ABOVE SUSPICION

In the week of the quiz show scandals, Mrs. Roy Shoults drove 89 miles from her home in Millersbert, Mo., to the Veterans Hospital at Poplar Bluff to conduct one quiz show that wasn't fixed. The show, carried over the hospital's closed circuit radio, offers 50-cents prizes for correct answers to the questions Mrs. Shoults writes and announces. Since 1953, when she started the program, she has shelled out more than $1,000 of her own money and logged 781 hours of volunteer service at the hospital.

The week of Oct. 25-31 would have been notable at the Little Rock Veterans Hospital if Mrs. Freeman Mize hadn't shown up to write letters for the patients, read to them, do errands, shop for them. She's there five days a week, has put in more than 3,000 hours as a hospital volunteer since 1952.

Few hospitals in the country could keep their fiscal heads above water without people like Mrs. Mize and her thousands of fellow volunteers. In an era of rising hospital costs and chronic staff shortages, the volunteers stage ward parties, teach dancing, arrange flowers, help with the food trays, chat with lonely patients, take the ambulatory on walks and fishing trips, wheel the crippled about the grounds or take them for drives and in countless other ways administer the still unbeatable therapy of "tender loving care."

GIVING WHEN IT HURTS

After a lifetime of charitable work, 93-year-old Ann C. Murray is no longer able to get out and solicit contributions for the Cumberstone, Md., United Fund drive. So she writes personal letters to the people on her list and still gets 100 per cent return.

Mrs. Eiley Estep, a former teacher in Huntington, W. Va., spends three days a week teaching retarded children how to speak, but there are some things she can't do for herself. She has one leg 2½ inches shorter than the other, the result of two dislocated hips. "I can't take off my shoes by myself," she said, but I'm not proud. I ask someone to help me."

At Hun Pavillion, the tuberculosis section of the Albany, N. Y. Hospital, patients were looking forward to the 10th annual Christmas party staged by Miss Ronnie Ceglais. They call her "The Angel of Hun." A gay, charming woman, crippled since childhood, Miss Ceglais whirles around the city in a wheel chair arranging food, music, entertainment, gifts for her party. She works as a receptionist in the state attorney general's office, does volunteer work for several other hospitals, the Cancer Fund, the local Boys and Girls Club, keeps house for herself in an apartment near the state capitol. "Mopping a floor from a wheel chair isn't as hard as it sounds," she says.

Mrs. May Barker, a plump, grey haired widow of 72, lives alone but not in loneliness on an $80 a month old age pension in a Toledo, Ohio, apartment. The week of Oct. 25-31 found her busy as usual helping others. On Sunday she went to St. Paul's Methodist Church, stayed on after services to wash cups and saucers left over from the coffee hour. Monday she baked cookies for the neighborhood kids. Tuesday she attended a meeting of the Golden Youth Club, a social group for elderly persons, but not before she had whipped up a cake for the occasion. Wednesday evening she went to choir practice, not to sing but to babysit in the church basement with 35 children of the choir members. Again, a batch of cookies was called for. And so the week went, a day-by-day chronicle of small favors from a large heart.

UNSEASONAL GOODNESS

Christmas was still two months away in the week that AP reporters kept check on America's spontaneous benevolence, but the spirit of giving was everywhere in evidence.

In Boston a Catholic priest and Protestant public relations man took turns at the telephone waiting for suicides to call. Their Rescue, Inc., organization has talked numerous despondent people out of ending their lives.

In Boise, Idaho, Mrs. James Hendry offered to loan her wheelchair to others in her predicament who might want to tour the new two - million - dollar First Methodist Church now under construction.

In Tallahassee, Fla., an elderly Negro couple opened their home and hearts to seven foster children, aged 10 months to 8 years. In the past 16 years, the Rev. J. J. Sanders and his wife have helped rear 23 dependent children referred to them by the Leon County Juvenile Court.

In Austin, Minn., Mrs. Albert Horwitz sat down at an odd shape machine to help a blind girl in California through four years of music school. For 25 years, Mrs. Horwitz has volunteered her time to the Braille Institute of America, translating books and musical pieces into the touch language of the blind. She has never met any of those who benefit from her service.

In Atlanta that week Mrs. Malcolm Bryan received the papal cross, a citation from Pope John XIII for selfless years of opening her home to unwed mothers, teen-agers in trouble and other daily acts of charity. "You see," she explained, "I have a big house. There is plenty of room."

SANTA FOR KOREANS

At Fort Dix, N. J., M-Sgt. Nector Morales prepared to leave his wife and three children alone at Christmas once again to return to his beloved orphans in Korea. Morales, born and raised in Puerto Rico, did two tours of duty in Korea, never got over the tragic plight of the war orphans. With the help of the post engineers, he repaired an orphanage building, built a chapel and playground. When he returned to the United States in 1958, he organized a huge toy and clothing drive that now has become an annual event. This year the Air Force will fly 1,400 pounds of clothing and toys collected by Sgt. Morales and his buddies to the Sun Ae orphanage at Inchen, where the sergeant will play Santa Claus, as he has ever since the Korean War.

And in San Francisco, toys began piling up in gasoline stations and fire houses as members of the Marine Corps Reserve and their wives began the annual drive that last year brought joy to 13,000 poor kids. Some of the toys were brand new. Those that need fixing were taken to Almeda County's Santa Rita Prison Farm, where the inmates jumped at the chance of doing something for somebody else.

"Charity," says St. Paul, "vaunteth not, is not puffed up."

In a thousand different ways, in a thousand different places, the apostle's words seemed to apply to so-called materialistic America during the last week of October, 1959.

ANGEL OF HUN — Miss Ronnie Ceglais, crippled since childhood, is arranging her 10th annual Christmas party at Hun Pavilion, the tuberculosis section of the Albany, N.Y., Hospital. Behind the whiskers is a faithful helper, Father Benjamin Kuhn.

BIG-HEARTED BARBER — Six days a week, Joseph G. Anthony of Richmond, Va., plies his trade for pay. For 30 years he has devoted the seventh day to free haircuts at local hospitals.

Protecting The Guilty

If peace officers throughout the United States were as squeamish as the members of the supreme court, criminals in this country would have a perpetual Roman holiday.

Peace officers often must make split-second decisions. When they are chasing a hot suspect they don't have several months to ponder the legal technicalities involved.

If, in such a chase, the officers grab a man who is undoubtedly guilty, especially if he is caught with the goods, the public can't see why he should be freed on some minor legal technicality. No one doubts that an innocent man should be freed on some minor legal technicality. No one doubts that an innocent man should be granted the full protection of law, and, under the law, each man is presumed innocent until proved guilty but when a criminal is caught redhanded, to set him free because of a technicality goes beyond the intent of the founders of the constitution.

This is a fact which our supreme court overlooks. That body strains mightily for the rights of criminals, Communists and minorities and, in doing so, often neglects the rights of the majority.

It should be laid down as a maxim that if the rights of the majority can be upheld without doing an injustice to the individual or to the minority the rights of the people as a whole should be sustained. If the evidence against a suspect is irrefutable, no injustice is done by finding him guilty, if there has been no duress.

During the progress of a recent investigation in Chicago, agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation stopped an automobile and found in it three cartons of radios stolen from an interstate shipment. The discovery eventually led to the conviction of a man in the car for unlawful possession of stolen radios.

The man had been acting in a suspicious manner for some time. Laws of most states provide that a person may be taken into custody for "acting in a dangerous and suspicious manner," and no requirement is made ordinarily for a search warrant. There are thousands upon thousands of instances in which a requirement for a search warrant would allow the criminal to escape. The search warrant is intended primarily to protect the sanctity of the home and there should be no invasion of such privacy without a warrant, but chasing a known criminal or a person acting in a dangerous and suspicious manner on the highway is certainly a far different situation.

The man convicted of possessing the stolen radios was ordered freed by the supreme court because the arresting officers did not have a warrant authorizing them to search for stolen radios. Because of his actions, the officers suspected the man was guilty of a crime and they later proved he was guilty but because they did not have foreknowledge of the theft, he was set free. Often dozens of burglaries and thefts are solved by a single arrest without the officers having any knowledge beforehand that the person might be implicated in more than one theft. To absolve the suspect would be to break down our system of combatting crime.

If the supreme court were unanimous in decisions of this sort, the public might say that the nine wise men were wiser than ordinary citizens. This was another of the court's frequent split decisions. It is doubtful if there has ever been a body of men in the history of the world more frequently divided than the present U.S. supreme court. Because of that, its opinions are not held in very high regard. The personal beliefs of one man, without regard to law or precedent, can often change the whole decision.

If the average layman is confused by the intellectual vagaries and legal gymnastics of the high court in some of its more recent search and seizure decisions, it is no wonder. Too often the court majority thinks only in terms of out according the real rights of the the "rights" of the accused, with accusers any consideration.

Youthful Lawlessness

An FBI Law Enforcement Bulletin, dated October, 1959, signed by J. Edgar Hover, says: "One of the most shocking developments in our present American society is the volcanic upheavel of youthful lawlessness. Long indifferent to the problem of juvenile crime, the public now stands appalled at the spectacle of rampaging teenage criminals. This tragic consequence of public apathy is now at a crisis and calls for an all-out counterattack against vicious young thugs.

"Blazing headlines of torture, sadism, murder, and gang warfare toll the depredations of teen-age menaces. The black figures of crime statistics present an even more doleful account. In 1958, arrests of juveniles under the age of 18 increased 8 per cent, while arrests of adults rose 1.8 per cent. Alarmingly, not only the frequency of youth crimes but the savagery of these offenses is mounting day by day, year by year.

"Action against this youth menace must not be delayed. Past public ignorance of the problem, misguided sentiment for the 'tender age' of these lawbreakers, and the falacy of economizing in the quantity and quality of our juvenile courts must be abolished. It is imperative that the American public stand shoulder to shoulder with the undermanned and overburdened law enforcement authorities in combating the youth crime attack.

"It is my firm conviction that the all-out campaign against these flagrant young criminals who commit serious crimes must include publishing their names and crimes for public information, the ready availability of past records for the information of appropriate law enforcement officers, and fingerprinting of these young lawbreakers for future identification."

Gvernment Study

A new government study, ordered by President Eisenhower, will urge greater competitive freedom in transportation. John J. Allen, Undersecretary of Commerce for Transportation says the study will "try to make recommendations to create an environment under our free enterprise system so that each mode of transportation in the industry may develop transportation capacity it can most econmically produce to meet the needs of the using public."

It remains to be seen what specific legislative proposals the report will offer. But the general principle touched on in Mr. Allen's statement is an all-important one if we are to have the kind of improving, growing transportation service — on rail, air, land and water — this surging country needs. Too many of our present regulatory laws and policies stem from an era as dead as the stone-age, when the railroads had a virtual monopoly of the business. Now transportation is one of the most competitive of enterprises. Yet the carriers are still prevented from making the most of their own inherent competitive advantages, and the public is denied the better service that would follow.

The Transportation Act of last year was widely heralded as a major reform. There is no doubt that it contains good things, and is of some value. But the basic problem has not yet been solved by a long shot.

Confusing Men's Minds

Rate of Growth

Just as a decade ago, Americans believed that we possessed a quality referred to blatantly as "know-how," which other nations did not possess, so today we grow pessimistic over a phrase "rate of growth." The power of phrases to confuse men's minds is very potent indeed. It is almost paralytic. It makes some of us despondent because we assume that we are no longer as good as we used to be.

When we believed that we possessed the extraordinary quality, know-how, which others did not possess, we were suffering from an inexcusable egotism. Actually, there is no monopoly of brains. Intelligence is individual not collective. There is no American intelligence or British intelligence or Russian intelligence. There was the intelligence of Thomas Edison, of Albert Einstein, of Guglielmo Marconi, of Dmitri Mendeleyev, of Sigmund Freud, of Ludwig van Beethoven. And so one goes through names, lists of names in every category of intellectual activity. The names represent persons, not committees; men or women, not nations.

The most that can be said about any nation is that within its geographic confines, conditions obtained which made it possible for genius to expose itself and blossom. In the United States, since the Civil War, mechanical inventiveness and mass production developed more rapidly than in many other countries but not more rapidly than in Germany or Japan.

During much of that period, Russia remained a primitive agricultural country with a small but negligible volume of industrial productivity. Indeed, the greatest degree of Russian productivity in those remote days was in Russian Poland and the Ukraine. Warsaw, Lodz, Bialystok, Kiev, Odessa were cities of small manufactures. There were others. The largest iron works was in Petrograd but there was no modern steel plant anywhere. On the other hand, small Czechoslovakia possessed one of the greatest steel units in Europe, the Skoda Works.

It is therefore true that the Soviet rate of growth since 1917 has been swifter than ours. If they did anything at all, percentagewise, it could be a thousand per cent improvement. When the base is zero, every move upward is rapid growth. For instance, we can, if there are no strikes, produce about 140,000,000 tons of steel a year. The probability is that we do not need to produce much more than that for our own use, no matter how prosperous we may be. In fact, other metals are being used as substitutues for steel, for instance, aluminum. This represents no loss in the national economy or in the quality of the goods produced. Soviet Russia's development from a primitive economy to a 20th century industrial base for 200,000,000 people requires more steel than that. Therefore Russia, to be a modern nation, must have a more rapid growth than we have. A baby grows more rapidly than a man does. A new industrial system must grow faster than a well-established one.

The rate of growth is a fallacious figure. If one wants to note the swiftest rate of growth among nations, he should look at Japan from 1868 to 1914—that is from the Meiji Revolution to World War I. When Commodore Perry opened Japan to world trade in 1853, Japan had a primitive island economy, based on household production. By 1914, Japan was one of the five principal powers on earth based on an economy second only to Great Britain and third in all the world. The rate of growth in Japan exceeded that of Great Britain where the industrial Revolution and modern capitalism got their start. Unfortunately, to maintain its position, Japan had to conquer China. This involved Japan on the wrong side disastrously during World War II.

As it is, the gross national product of the United States is about twice that of Soviet Russia. Khrushchev is more modest than those unrealistic Americans who are frightened by the progress of any other nation. Khrushchev says that Russia will pass the United States; he does not claim that this has already happened.

Khrushchev once said of the capitalists: "If there were a God and He could act, He would take a good broom and sweep you out." It was a peasant's campaign argument. Perhaps the best answer is that as there is a God, He knows what to do about his errant children.

Santa Claus, Inc., Grids For Another Big Yuletide Season

ST. NICK AND THE MAILS—The Post Office Department reports that Santa Claus, Indiana, is girding for another big Yuletide season. A preliminary check shows that more than 5,000 youngsters already have directed letters to the little post office at Santa Claus hoping that St. Nicholas will hear their pleas. For the first time many letters are coming in from foreign children. Most of these letters are in foreign language but this has posed no problem. The postmaster simply sends them to nearby St. Meinrad Monastery where they are translated by monks. As it has for years the American Legion handles the job of answering all the kiddy's letters to Santa Claus. The gaily-decorated letter from Santa Claus assures the children Santa's Brownies are already hard at work making toys for them. It also admonishes them to be good and say their prayers regularly. Last year the Indiana post office handled approximately 60,000 Santa Claus letters. Adults also like to have their Christmas cards mailed from the Santa Claus post office. It handled about 3,000,000 pieces of Christmas mail last year and may exceed this figure this year.

REAL CRANBERRY PROBLEM — The National Institute of Drycleaning has moved in on the cranberry scare. It says, "You're more likely to stain your clothes by spilling cranberries, than you are to get cancer by eating them." Gordon Leonhardt, an NID expert in spot removal techniques, points out, "It's simple to spill cranberries but it's often hard to remove the stain since different fabrics and various dyes complicate the matter." Leonhardt offers this advice, "Gently sponge off the cranberry stain with cool water and go back to your meal. Maybe you should get a bigger napkin, but don't try anything more." The real problem with cranberries is not so much the berries but the sugar used in preparing the sauce. This sugar, if subjected to heat, "caramelizes" and becomes an impossible stain to remove.

FEMININE REVOLT — The Military Air Transport Service office at Washington National Airport took the easy way out — it cancelled an order which sought to assign Air Force clerks and secretaries to latrine duty in the ladies' room. The controvsial order, entitled "extra - curricular duties," read in part: "During the absence of our janitor, we girls will be in charge of tidying up the ladies' room. Two girls are being assigned the chore for two days. The first day a thorough cleaning should be done; the second day to be just a once-over. Each afternoon the thrash can will be placed just outside the door." The memo ended with this sentence, "Suggest 3 p.m. as best time of the day to start. Good luck, and let's hope the janitor gets well soon????!" The directive was signed by a secretary who assigned to herself two hours of latrine duty.

STICKS AND STONES — It was only natural that Rep. Walter Rogers, Dem.-Texas, would receive a lot of mail. As a member of the House Select Committee on Legislative Oversight, Rogers had a lot of questions to ask of some of the witnesses in the television quiz scandals. He was soon deluged with letters from all over the United States. Wrote a Michigan housewife, "These people have given me many happy hours of entertainment and many hours of beautiful dreams, also the wonderful knowledge that this — is or was — a land where miracles could happen to anyone. Is it any of your business that they cribbed? Can you say that you never did? I can't and I was the brightest pupil in my school."

Non-Partisanship In Politics Is Rare As Platonic Love

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Non-partisanship in politics isn't impossible, but it is about as rare as platonic love. And the place where non-partisanship scarcely finds the breath for life is in such a group as the Senate Select (McClellan) Committee on Improper Activities in Labor-Management Relations.

The point needs reiteration, I think, because the committee will supposedly end its existence next month, and the staffers are now working hard to produce the final report which should make national reading — and will surely make national orating among the 1960 candidates for all offices.

In a balanced committee (four Democrats and four Republicans, a Democratic staff with counsel and a Republican staff with counsel), the conflict is not one of numbers but of willpower. Had Senator McClellan (D-Ark.) been a liberal Democrat, he would have been the dominant figure instead of Patience on a Monument, which is the part he played. The two strongest wills, over the three-year period, turned out to be Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.) and Counsel Robert Kennedy (D-Mass.) who has recently resigned. This leaves Goldwater as king of the mountain. Should the McClellan Committee hold any more meetings, which is doubtful, Goldwater could dominate. As it is, I think Goldwater will dominate the joint Democratic-Republican report, especially the parts which deal with the senator's bete noire, Labor Leader Walter Reuther, President of the United Auto Workers.

"It is my understanding," wrote Goldwater on November 13th to the acting chief counsel of the committee, "that . . . there shall be two reports, one written by the Republicans and the other by the Democrats, published in one volume and covering various phases of the UAW investigation."

Needless to say, there will be little common ground in the partisan appraisals of Reuther and his labor statesmanship. A few days ago, I would have written that Reuther is one of those lonely and career-captivated men to whom life has denied any objective judgment by his contemporaries. But I would not make such a statement since reading William Manchester's clinical, full-rounded biography of Reuther. Here we find the radical redhead, guarded everywhere by men and dogs, living in a moated, padlocked voluntary prison with his wife and two daughters, ridden by a Messianic complex which gives him a mission to bring about "brotherhood of man," a marathon monologist, a strike-strategist, a manipulator of manpower (but not very fond of humans outside the family), a meddler in other people's businesses, a political boss and a possible president-maker.

Obviously this complex personality, although a biographer's delight, is too much horse for any politician to ride. The McClellan Committee report (D) on Reuther is sure to be an anemic defense, while the McClellan report (R) is sure to be a sulphuric indictment.

The Democratic position would be that Reuther has a right to be the man that Bill Manchester's book says he is. The Republican position would be that Reuther, a public person, has no right to hold the power he does over private persons and institutions, and that the American Republic was never intended to give such protections and immunities as Big Labor has now accumulated under Reuther's leadership.

While I would much rather read or write the Manchester biography, I believe that the Goldwater image of Reuther has a power-menace, and the Republican indictment of Reuther as the president of a violent and corrupt union, add up to very serious public business.

In all, we should feel lucky that non-partisanship and even objectivity do not extend into congressional probing committees. For although a fascinating personality study, Reuther is also a very large, political conbustion which requires fire wardens.

Candidates Falter

Early Starters Are Hard At Work But Gain Little Ground

Perhaps the best assessment of the presidential nomination situation in the Democratic party in this last month of 1959 is to say that as far as candidates and commitments are concerned never have so many had so few.

Or another way to say it might be, that never have so many started so early, ran so hard and gained so little ground. Those of the, still unannounced but eager, early - bird candidates, have a squawk — there are too many fence - sitters, and they show no signs of coming down off their comfortable perches.

A presidential hopeful can read the opinion polls in the newspapers. But who votes in those polls? Just the hoi pollio who are going to get no nearer to the Democratic national convention than their television sets in Wilmington, Delaware; Wichita, Kansas; or Shreveport, Louisiana. But what about their response from the party leaders and other party aristocracy who can be expected to grace the smoke-filled rooms in Los Angeles same year, same party.

Those party leaders exude cordiality and hospitality to the candidates, but when it comes to commitments they don't give. And the indications grow that the number of still uncorraled delegates at Los Angeles will exceed that of any recent national convention. Perhaps as many as 1,000 of the 1511 delegates will be uninstructed and uncommitted, or if bound to any candidates only lightly so.

All of this increases the likelihood that the Democrats are headed for a multi - ballot convention. Two Democrats, who have been delegates to past national conventions were discussing the outlook here the other day.

"We can't afford another Madison Square Garden such as we had in 1924, with 104 ballots," said one.

"I don't know how many ballots we are going to have, but it looks like we could accumulate 104 presidential candidates," said the other.

The outlook is that the number placed in nomination at Los Angeles, will exceed the twenty-four starters at Madison Square Garden. The starting - gate odds on all but one candidate have lengthened. They have shortened on Adlai Stevenson, who avers he is not and will not be a candidate. But the soft sell for him is on in a dozen states already.

There is still not a solid front-runner. There is scarcely any doubt that Senator John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts will be the first ballot high man. He got off the ground first and is the best bankrolled. More money may be spent in the Kenney campaign than any in history. Past records are supposed to be held by Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois for the Republican nomination in 1920, or by the backers of General Leonard Wood in the same year same party.

Kennedy suffers from the fact that most politicians think he will have trouble holding his delegates, even in New England, for more than a few ballots in what may be a prolonged convention. Recently the Kennedy camp has made moves to have delegates instructed to vote for Kennedy until he releases them. This is a feat difficult to pull off. When a state delegation gets the unmistakable scent of a bandwagon it bolts in that direction and it does not want to be wearing hobbles.

Senator Stuart Symington of Missouri was once rated as everybody's second choice no longer seems to be. No one yet has counted him out, but those who were counting him in are less confident.

From the camp of Senator Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, who had visions of riding a liberal tide into the nomination, comes an explanation for the failure of prospective delegates to bind themselves to any candidate. Senator Eugene J. McCarthy (Democrat - Minn.) co-manager of the Humphrey campaign says people have got tired of being pressed for a commitment so far in advance of presidential primaries and state conventions.

Senator Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, who has remained in Texas, while Kennedy, Symington and Humphrey toured, now has some dates in the north and midwest, where an aspirant must garner delegates if he is to win. Johnson's handicap is that he is from the south and there is a large segment of the Democratic party which would cast the south in the role of a pariah.

A case can be made that Texas is as western as southern. Certainly the map shows that El Paso, Texas, is west of Denver, Colorado, or Cheyenne, Wyoming, or Miles City, Montana. But Texas was a Confederate State and that pegs it.

Of course the big surprise of the Democratic posture is that with all the state houses the party holds it has been unable to put forward an attractive governor, for the national convention's consideration. California's Governor Edmund G. Brown has pushed his hat closer to the ring, and could be high man among the governors in the balloting, but certainly shows no probability of keeping pace with the real contenders.

Protecting The Guilty

If peace officers throughout the United States were as squeamish as the members of the supreme court, criminals in this country would have a perpetual Roman holiday.

Peace officers often must make split-second decisions. When they are chasing a hot suspect they don't have several months to ponder the legal technicalities involved.

If, in such a chase, the officers grab a man who is undoubtedly guilty, especially if he is caught with the goods, the public can't see why he should be freed on some minor legal technicality. No one doubts that an innocent man should be freed on some minor legal technicality. No one doubts that an innocent man should be granted the full protection of law, and, under the law, each man is presumed innocent until proved guilty but when a criminal is caught redhanded, to set him free because of a technicality goes beyond the intent of the founders of the constitution.

This is a fact which our supreme court overlooks. That body strains mightily for the rights of criminals, Communists and minorities and, in doing so, often neglects the rights of the majority.

It should be laid down as a maxim that if the rights of the majority can be upheld without doing an injustice to the individual or to the minority the rights of the people as a whole should be sustained. If the evidence against a suspect is irrefutable, no injustice is done by finding him guilty, if there has been no duress.

During the progress of a recent investigation in Chicago, agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation stopped an automobile and found in it three cartons of radios stolen from an interstate shipment. The discovery eventually led to the conviction of a man in the car for unlawful possession of stolen radios.

The man had been acting in a suspicious manner for some time. Laws of most states provide that a person may be taken into custody for "acting in a dangerous and suspicious manner," and no requirement is made ordinarily for a search warrant. There are thousands upon thousands of instances in which a requirement for a search warrant would allow the criminal to escape. The search warrant is intended primarily to protect the sanctity of the home and there should be no invasion of such privacy without a warrant, but chasing a known criminal or a person acting in a dangerous and suspicious manner on the highway is certainly a far different situation.

The man convicted of possessing the stolen radios was ordered freed by the supreme court because the arresting officers did not have a warrant authorizing them to search for stolen radios. Because of his actions, the officers suspected the man was guilty of a crime and they later proved he was guilty but because they did not have foreknowledge of the theft, he was set free. Often dozens of burglaries and thefts are solved by a single arrest without the officers having any knowledge beforehand that the person might be implicated in more than one theft. To absolve the suspect would be to break down our system of combatting crime.

If the supreme court were unanimous in decisions of this sort, the public might say that the nine wise men were wiser than ordinary citizens. This was another of the court's frequent split decisions. It is doubtful if there has ever been a body of men in the history of the world more frequently divided than the present U.S. supreme court. Because of that, its opinions are not held in very high regard. The personal beliefs of one man, without regard to law or precedent, can often change the whole decision.

If the average layman is confused by the intellectual vagaries and legal gymnastics of the high court in some of its more recent search and seizure decisions, it is no wonder. Too often the court majority thinks only in terms of out according the real rights of the the "rights" of the accused, with accusers any consideration.

Youthful Lawlessness

An FBI Law Enforcement Bulletin, dated October, 1959, signed by J. Edgar Hover, says: "One of the most shocking developments in our present American society is the volcanic upheavel of youthful lawlessness. Long indifferent to the problem of juvenile crime, the public now stands appalled at the spectacle of rampaging teenage criminals. This tragic consequence of public apathy is now at a crisis and calls for an all-out counterattack against vicious young thugs.

"Blazing headlines of torture, sadism, murder, and gang warfare toll the depredations of teen-age menaces. The black figures of crime statistics present an even more doleful account. In 1958, arrests of juveniles under the age of 18 increased 8 per cent, while arrests of adults rose 1.8 per cent. Alarmingly, not only the frequency of youth crimes but the savagery of these offenses is mounting day by day, year by year.

"Action against this youth menace must not be delayed. Past public ignorance of the problem, misguided sentiment for the 'tender age' of these lawbreakers, and the falacy of economizing in the quantity and quality of our juvenile courts must be abolished. It is imperative that the American public stand shoulder to shoulder with the undermanned and overburdened law enforcement authorities in combating the youth crime attack.

"It is my firm conviction that the all-out campaign against these flagrant young criminals who commit serious crimes must include publishing their names and crimes for public information, the ready availability of past records for the information of appropriate law enforcement officers, and fingerprinting of these young lawbreakers for future identification."

Gvernment Study

A new government study, ordered by President Eisenhower, will urge greater competitive freedom in transportation. John J. Allen, Undersecretary of Commerce for Transportation says the study will "try to make recommendations to create an environment under our free enterprise system so that each mode of transportation in the industry may develop transportation capacity it can most econmically produce to meet the needs of the using public."

It remains to be seen what specific legislative proposals the report will offer. But the general principle touched on in Mr. Allen's statement is an all-important one if we are to have the kind of improving, growing transportation service — on rail, air, land and water — this surging country needs. Too many of our present regulatory laws and policies stem from an era as dead as the stone-age, when the railroads had a virtual monopoly of the business. Now transportation is one of the most competitive of enterprises. Yet the carriers are still prevented from making the most of their own inherent competitive advantages, and the public is denied the better service that would follow.

The Transportation Act of last year was widely heralded as a major reform. There is no doubt that it contains good things, and is of some value. But the basic problem has not yet been solved by a long shot.

Confusing Men's Minds

Rate of Growth

Just as a decade ago, Americans believed that we possessed a quality referred to blatantly as "know-how," which other nations did not possess, so today we grow pessimistic over a phrase "rate of growth." The power of phrases to confuse men's minds is very potent indeed. It is almost paralytic. It makes some of us despondent because we assume that we are no longer as good as we used to be.

When we believed that we possessed the extraordinary quality, know-how, which others did not possess, we were suffering from an inexcusable egotism. Actually, there is no monopoly of brains. Intelligence is individual not collective. There is no American intelligence or British intelligence or Russian intelligence. There was the intelligence of Thomas Edison, of Albert Einstein, of Guglielmo Marconi, of Dmitri Mendeleyev, of Sigmund Freud, of Ludwig van Beethoven. And so one goes through names, lists of names in every category of intellectual activity. The names represent persons, not committees; men or women, not nations.

The most that can be said about any nation is that within its geographic confines, conditions obtained which made it possible for genius to expose itself and blossom. In the United States, since the Civil War, mechanical inventiveness and mass production developed more rapidly than in many other countries but not more rapidly than in Germany or Japan.

During much of that period, Russia remained a primitive agricultural country with a small but negligible volume of industrial productivity. Indeed, the greatest degree of Russian productivity in those remote days was in Russian Poland and the Ukraine. Warsaw, Lodz, Bialystok, Kiev, Odessa were cities of small manufactures. There were others. The largest iron works was in Petrograd but there was no modern steel plant anywhere. On the other hand, small Czechoslovakia possessed one of the greatest steel units in Europe, the Skoda Works.

It is therefore true that the Soviet rate of growth since 1917 has been swifter than ours. If they did anything at all, percentagewise, it could be a thousand per cent improvement. When the base is zero, every move upward is rapid growth. For instance, we can, if there are no strikes, produce about 140,000,000 tons of steel a year. The probability is that we do not need to produce much more than that for our own use, no matter how prosperous we may be. In fact, other metals are being used as substitutues for steel, for instance, aluminum. This represents no loss in the national economy or in the quality of the goods produced. Soviet Russia's development from a primitive economy to a 20th century industrial base for 200,000,000 people requires more steel than that. Therefore Russia, to be a modern nation, must have a more rapid growth than we have. A baby grows more rapidly than a man does. A new industrial system must grow faster than a well-established one.

The rate of growth is a fallacious figure. If one wants to note the swiftest rate of growth among nations, he should look at Japan from 1868 to 1914—that is from the Meiji Revolution to World War I. When Commodore Perry opened Japan to world trade in 1853, Japan had a primitive island economy, based on household production. By 1914, Japan was one of the five principal powers on earth based on an economy second only to Great Britain and third in all the world. The rate of growth in Japan exceeded that of Great Britain where the industrial Revolution and modern capitalism got their start. Unfortunately, to maintain its position, Japan had to conquer China. This involved Japan on the wrong side disastrously during World War II.

As it is, the gross national product of the United States is about twice that of Soviet Russia. Khrushchev is more modest than those unrealistic Americans who are frightened by the progress of any other nation. Khrushchev says that Russia will pass the United States; he does not claim that this has already happened.

Khrushchev once said of the capitalists: "If there were a God and He could act, He would take a good broom and sweep you out." It was a peasant's campaign argument. Perhaps the best answer is that as there is a God, He knows what to do about his errant children.

Santa Claus, Inc., Grids For Another Big Yuletide Season

ST. NICK AND THE MAILS—The Post Office Department reports that Santa Claus, Indiana, is girding for another big Yuletide season. A preliminary check shows that more than 5,000 youngsters already have directed letters to the little post office at Santa Claus hoping that St. Nicholas will hear their pleas. For the first time many letters are coming in from foreign children. Most of these letters are in foreign language but this has posed no problem. The postmaster simply sends them to nearby St. Meinrad Monastery where they are translated by monks. As it has for years the American Legion handles the job of answering all the kiddy's letters to Santa Claus. The gaily-decorated letter from Santa Claus assures the children Santa's Brownies are already hard at work making toys for them. It also admonishes them to be good and say their prayers regularly. Last year the Indiana post office handled approximately 60,000 Santa Claus letters. Adults also like to have their Christmas cards mailed from the Santa Claus post office. It handled about 3,000,000 pieces of Christmas mail last year and may exceed this figure this year.

REAL CRANBERRY PROBLEM — The National Institute of Drycleaning has moved in on the cranberry scare. It says, "You're more likely to stain your clothes by spilling cranberries, than you are to get cancer by eating them." Gordon Leonhardt, an NID expert in spot removal techniques, points out, "It's simple to spill cranberries but it's often hard to remove the stain since different fabrics and various dyes complicate the matter." Leonhardt offers this advice. "Gently sponge off the cranberry stain with cool water and go back to your meal. Maybe you should get a bigger napkin, but don't try anything more." The real problem with cranberries is not so much the berries but the sugar used in preparing the sauce. This sugar, if subjected to heat, "caramelizes" and becomes an impossible stain to remove.

FEMININE REVOLT — The Military Air Transport Service office at Washington National Airport took the easy way out — it cancelled an order which sought to assign Air Force clerks and secretaries to latrine duty in the ladies' room. The controvsial order, entitled "extra - curricular duties," read in part: "During the absence of our janitor, we girls will be in charge of tidying up the ladies' room. Two girls are being assigned the chore for two days. The first day a thorough cleaning should be done; the second day to be just a once-over. Each afternoon the thrash can will be placed just outside the door." The memo ended with this sentence. "Suggest 3 p.m. as best time of the day to start. Good luck, and let's hope the janitor gets well soon???!!" The directive was signed by a secretary who assigned to herself two hours of latrine duty.

STICKS AND STONES — It was only natural that Rep. Walter Rogers, Dem.-Texas, would receive a lot of mail. As a member of the House Select Committee on Legislative Oversight, Rogers had a lot of questions to ask of some of the witnesses in the television quiz scandals. He was soon deluged with letters from all over the United States. Wrote a Michigan housewife, "These people have given me many happy hours of entertainment and many hours of beautiful dreams, also the wonderful knowledge that this — is or was — a land where miracles could happen to anyone. Is it any of your business that they cribbed? Can you say that you never did? I can't and I was the brightest pupil in my school."

Non-Partisanship In Politics Is Rare As Platonic Love

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Non-partisanship in politics isn't impossible, but it is about as rare as platonic love. And the place where non-partisanship scarcely finds the breath for life is in such a group as the Senate Select (McClellan) Committee on Improper Activities in Labor-Management Relations.

The point needs reiteration, I think, because the committee will supposedly end its existence next month, and the staffers are now working hard to produce the final report which should make national reading — and will surely make national orating among the 1960 candidates for all offices.

In a balanced committee (four Democrats and four Republicans, a Democratic staff with counsel and a Republican staff with counsel), the conflict is not one of numbers but of willpower. Had Senator McClellan (D-Ark.) been a liberal Democrat, he would have been the dominant figure instead of Patience on a Monument, which is the part he played. The two strongest wills, over the three-year period, turned out to be Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.) and Counsel Robert Kennedy (D-Mass.) who has recently resigned. This leaves Goldwater as king of the mountain. Should the McClellan Committee hold any more meetings, which is doubtful, Goldwater could dominate. As it is, I think Goldwater will dominate the joint Democratic-Republican report, especially the parts which deal with the senator's bete noire, Labor Leader Walter Reuther, President of the United Auto Workers.

"It is my understanding," wrote Goldwater on November 13th to the acting chief counsel of the committee, "that . . . there shall be two reports, one written by the Republicans and the other by the Democrats, published in one volume and covering various phases of the UAW investigation."

Needless to say, there will be little common ground in the partisan appraisals of Reuther and his labor statesmanship. A few days ago, I would have written that Reuther is one of those lonely and career-captivated men to whom life has denied any objective judgment by his contemporaries. But I would not make such a statement since reading William Manchester's clinical, full-rounded biography of Reuther. Here we find the radical redhead, guarded everywhere by men and dogs, living in a moated, padlocked voluntary prison with his wife and two daughters, ridden by a Messianic complex which gives him a mission to bring about "brotherhood of man," a marathon monologist, a strike-strategist, a manipulator of manpower (but not very fond of humans outside the family), a meddler in other people's businesses, a political boss and a possible president-maker.

Obviously this complex personality, although a biographer's delight, is too much horse for any politician to ride. The McClellan Committee report (D) on Reuther is sure to be an anemic defense, while the McClellan report (R) is sure to be a sulphuric indictment.

While I would much rather read or write the Manchester biography, I believe that the Goldwater image of Reuther has a power-menace, and the Republican indictment of Reuther as the president of a violent and corrupt union, add up to very serious public business.

In all, we should feel lucky that non-partisanship and even objectivity do not extend into congressional probing committees. For although a fascinating personality study, Reuther is also a very large, political conbustion which requires fire wardens.

Alaska's Birthday

Gold Dust Glitter

By WILLIAM TOBIN

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — None of the gold dust glitter has rubbed off since Alaska shed its territorial togs and donned the dignified robes of statehood.

True, for three weeks in November the state blocked Alaska saloons and roadhouses from selling whisky and beer on a 24-hour, seven-day basis.

But new regulations that would have enforced closings of at least five hours a day were taken to court by bar owners, and a judge ruled the State Alcoholic Beverage Control Board was without authority to set uniform operating hours.

One argument advanced by opponents of the ABC regulations was that such restrictions might damage the tourist trade—an increasingly important factor in Alaska's economy.

They want more of the world to know this state of Alaska, where modern cities adjoin frontier country untouched by the political involvements of statehood.

Even as a state, it remains a place where bush pilots fly mercy missions over remote and frozen north country and through rugged island mountain passes in the Southeastern Panhandle.

Alaska is still the land of the open heart and open pocketbook—where neighbors reach for their poke for such causes as helping finance the recovery of a boy blinded by an attacking brown bear.

MAULED

Lee Hagmier, a 17-year-old high school pupil, was mauled last July near Juneau. Within four months, $15,700 had been donated for a trust fund to help offset medical expenses and costs of schooling for the boy.

This is a state where, 10 months after its birth, controversy rages over where the seat of government should be located.

Should it remain at Juneau, the territorial capital for half a century? Or should it be moved somewhere near Anchorage, 600 miles to the west in south central Alaska?

Juneau, says the Anchorage Daily Times, Alaska's largest newspaper, is not suitable. Its surrounding mountains insulate officials from the pulse of the people. With no roads connecting Juneau to the rest of Alaska, few of the state's 200,000 residents can watch their government in action.

Air transportation makes the present capital easily accessible, replies the Juneau Daily Alaska Empire. Anchorage, contends the Juneau paper, is just greedy. It not only has the largest population of any city in the state, estimated at more than 65,000, but wants the state government payroll as well.

FINANCIAL

The payroll is the financial backbone of this city of 10,000 residents, the seat of Alaska government since 1906.

The Bristol Bay News, a weekly newspaper mimeographed in far western Alaska, suggested putting the capital aboard a surplus Navy aircraft carrier to provide "the only bona fide seagoing ship of state in the world."

With giant tractor treads on the side and a huge bulldozer blade in the front, the newspaper said, the ship could ply Alaska's waters and then head inland to carve new roads in the wilderness, carrying the capital to every trapper's cabin in the state.

On a more realistic level, Alaska finds one of its major problems as a state similar to that facing a housewife with not enough closet space to store the family's summer clothes.

In all of its 586,400 square miles, Alaska doesn't have enough office space to serve the burgeoning needs of its government agencies.

Between legislative sessions, Alaska's House of Representatives chamber in the Capitol is used as a big storage room. Enough desk space has been cleared to provide for emergency use by one or two persons when no other place is available for them to work.

The Senate chamber, where 20 state lawmakers crowd during sessions into an area designed 45 years ago to seat eight territorial senators, may have to serve as the room where Alaska's new Supreme Court will hear its first cases.

Despite its political equality with the old 48 states and the romantic appeal of Hawaii, the 50th state, interest is increasing in Alaska's rugged attractions.

"To say that our mail from other states is quadrupling," says Gov. William A. Egan, 45, "would be conservative."

New venture capital has been flowing into the state since Alaska joined the union last Jan. 3.

National food and variety stores have extended their chain operations into Alaska, a major oil company has established its first marketing outlets in the state, and at Anchorage and well past the new hotels are under construction planning stage at Juneau.

NOW FLOWS

Oil now flows on the Kenai Peninsula from four joint holdings of Richfield-Standard Oil Co. of California. Union and Ohio Oil Co. have made a joint major gas strike in the same area.

Japanese industry is intensifying its interest in Alaska coal and other mineral resources. A new 60 - million - dollar Japanese-owned pulp mill has begun production at Sitka, the Russian capital of Alaska when the United States purchased the territory in 1867 for $7,200,000.

The conversion of governmental operations from a territorial basis has been progressing — but not without complications.

"We have found in the first 10 months of statehood that there are many, many problems," says Egan, a Democrat and a former storekeeper at Valdez. "Many frankly weren't anticipated—little ones as well as matters of great importance."

As chief executive, Egan has more extensive powers than the governors of most states. Under Alaska's streamlined constitution, he and Secretary of State Hugh J.Wade are the only elected executive officials. All others — including judges—are appointed by the governor.

The state's legislative branch is in the hands of 60 elected lawmakers, including 40 members of the House and 20 members of the Senate. In the first state elections only two Republicans won Senate seats and only six won places in the House.

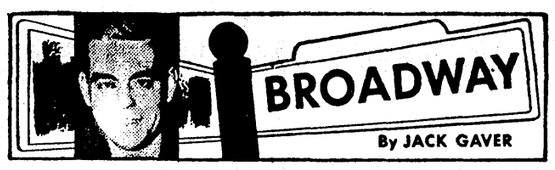
Its tax income during the last fiscal year amounted to only 24½ million dolars, less than a million more than in its last full year as a territory.

Last summer, Alaska's canned salmon production—once the main prop in economy—was at its lowest level since 1900. The catch was 40 per cent under that of 1958, and not much improvement is expected in 1960.

A long carpenters' strike crippled Alaska's construction season for nearly three months last summer. Its full economic impact will not be felt until next February or March.

To meet expanding needs, state expenditures amounting to some 33 1-3 million dollars have been approved. The Legislature is counting on a previous surplus and oil revenue to balance the budget.

"We're confident," says Egan. "We're moving forward, we're solving our problems, and we're building a great state. Our future is bright and unlimited."



NEW YORK (UPI)— Musical play collaborators Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein picked up another honor this week without writing a word or a note.

Their "Flower Drum Song," still playing to capacity at the St. James Theater, passed its first Broadway year on Dec. 1, the fifth R. & H. musical to achieve such longevity.

No other brace of writers has such a record. Their previous year-or-better shows were "Oklahoma!", "Carousel," "South Pacific" and "The King and I." And there doesn't seem to be much doubt that on Nov. 16, 1960 a sixth one-year production will join the lineup. Their recent "The Sound of Music" gives every indication of being good for two or three years.

CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY

The "Flower Drum Song" anniversary was celebrated at a big restaurant blowout for members of the cast and assorted theatrical personages and quite appropriately attended by H. K. Wong, "Mayor of San Francisco's Chinatown, which is the locale of the play. Wong presented Rodgers and Hammerstein and Joseph Fields, who collaborated with Hammerstein on the libretto, with a scroll from Acting Mayor Harold S. Dobbs of San Francisco.

The success of "Flower Drum Song" has given a little extra kick to the famous collaborators because the first-line critics did not give it a rousing welcome. They conceded that it was better than its two immediate predecessors in the R. & H. catallogue, "Me and Juliet" and "Pipe Dream," but the general tone was one of damning with faint praise.

A FINANCIAL SUCCESS

But the show was a financial success from the first curtain, and there is no sign of a letup. It played to some 675,000 customers in its first year and took in more than $3,500,000. Mail orders are now being received for performances through next October.

"Flower Drum Song" has been especially popular with out - of-towners because the management has made it clear right along that there is no likelihood of a second company for touring purposes. This decision was due to the casting difficulties posed by the fact that the troupe is made up of oriental-type players, and there just aren't many such with the proper talents available in this country.

There will be the problem of replacing leading lady Miyoshi Umeki by the first of the year. The first break in the original cast comes this month when Larry Blyden quits the role of Sammy Fong. Although he plays a Chinese-American, Blydenis is not an oriental. He will be replaced by promoting oriental Jack Soo from a subordinate role.

An Excellent Addition To War Library

Could you define an "Agnew"? It was the impromptu name for the attire of Sanitary Commission nurses in early days of the Civil War — a man's army shirt worn with collar open, sleeves rolled up and tails overhanging a full skirt. It was so named because the original was borrowed from a Dr. Agnew.

That is one of the nuggets that pops up in the first half dozen pages of this massive compendium of information about the Civil War, from A.A.G. (Assistant Adjutant General) to Zulick (Samuel Moron, a Pennsylvania officer for the Union).

There are hundreds of other nuggets, fascinating to the war scholar as to the buff and the general reader. There are biographical sketches — the publisher says there are about 2,000 of them and, without actually counting, it seems a reasonable figure — summaries of campaigns and battles, definitions of hundreds of terms familiar and obscure, descriptions of weapons, sketches of corps, brigades, divisions and regiments, statistics — a rich lode of knowledge about the war that is the lodestone of so very much research and scholarship.

It is a testimonial to the flourishing interest in the Civil War that the conflict has the stature to deserve a dictionary all its own. There may be gaps in the compilation—for example, this reviewer noted the omission of Anna Ella Carroll, who had a major role in saving Maryland for the Union and a mysterious role in Union strategy. But Col. Boatner unquestionably has compiled an impressive store of facts, carefully assembled and carefully cross-indexed. It should take place as an indispensable handbook for Civil War reading and study.

On World Health

Many Problems

By CHARLES T. BURNS

BOSTON (AP) — Exchange of medical knowledge between nations may serve as a bridge to international peace — but public health achievements also have created some staggering new problems.

That's the opinion of Prof. Hugh R. Leavell, assistant dean of Harvard's School of Public Health, who has spent much of the past decade and a half traveling over the world on health missions.

"We find we can establish good relations with other peoples through our work in the health field," says the 57-year-old scientist. "With such good relations, international peace can follow as a logical result."

Paradoxically, improved health, reduced mortality, and longer life spans also have resulted in a "most troublesome problem — a steady rise in world population," Dr. Leavell says.

"What is needed now is a more acceptable contraceptive," he adds. "The very success of public health has put things out of balance. We need a balanced program to readjust things."

Since 1944, Dr. Leavell has been in the forefront of the delicate work of adapting advanced public health methods to the entrenched traditions of less developed nations.

"We have found it is not too important just how some health measure is operated," says Dr. Leavell, "so long as the basic problem is solved."

He recalls that about 10 years ago, a group of Guatemala Indians refused to permit American specialists to take blood specimen. "It seems they believed the blood was being studied in the United States and they feared the healthiest children would be taken to this country and eaten."

A different system was devised to obtain the specimens.

There has been a change in approach in handling overseas public health problems since the years immediately after World War II.

"Then we could tell other peoples how to run their public health programs," says Dr. Leavell. "Most war-torn nations had little or no established public health systems. That was the lack we tried to correct with the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration."

Dr. Leavell in 1944 and 1945 was deputy director of the UNRRA European regional office.

"Now the situation is radically different," he says. "Now we are showing other peoples how they can perform the public health functions within their own organizations."

With some peoples traveling public health groups found it a "waste of time trying to force better sanitation methods on them," the Harvard specialist said.

"For instance, in the Middle East we tried to teach the natives to use modern toilet facilities," Dr. Leavell recalls. "No matter what we said, the people insisted on their ancient ways, so we found it better to adapt our sanitation ideas to their perferences.

"That's one of our biggest problems—try to get people to change their habits. Instead of trying to make people do what we do, we try to find some method the people will accept."

"The disease is due to a lack of protein and the best way to deal with it is by plentiful quantities of milk," Dr. Leavell says.

"But milk is relatively scarce in the areas where the disease strikes. Our problem is to find a protein from some plant rather than from animal milk. The solution has been beans of many varietiers, for instance, say beans."

Dr. Leavell, a past president of the American Public Health Assn. (1953-54) and of the National Health Council (1955-56), is a native of Louisville, Ky., He holds a doctor of public health degree from Yale. A son, Nelson, 33, is an agricultural adviser with the International Cooperation Administration in Cambodia.

Dr. Leavell feels strongly that public health practiciones need to work in agriculture, industry and education. "Particularly education is needed," he says.

RUNNING THE SCALES

With JOHN CALE

As the Christmas rush moves into top spot on the activities list the floods, kliegs and colored spotlights retire before the glare of Rudolph's red nose. Yet the local cultural beat is still producing stories.

Little Theater will open its second play of the season, "The Caine Mutiny Court Martial," on Friday — still at the Selman Field Playhouse.

On Sunday, December 13, Davis Bingham, professor of music at Northeast, will coduct a community chorus and student and faculty orchestra in a performance of Handel's oratorio, "The Messiah." The performance will begin at 3:30 p.m. in Brown Hall Auditorium.

Passing another major item on its season's program with the performance of the Dallas Symphony Orchestra Thursday, the Louisiana Tech Concert Association has booked a "pops" concert by the Hollywood Bowl orchestra and chorus for tomorrow evening. This will pretty well wrap up the wealth of live drama and music playing to northeast Louisiana audiences until January.

'DIE WALKUERE'

Following the success of New Orleans' presentation of "Tannhauser," Houston and Shreveport allied finances and other resources for another shot at Wagnerian sauerkraut and Nordic gods for deep southern consumption with the opera "Die Walkuere."

Even people who dislike Wagner have learned through his name that there is no sound like our "W" in the Germanic languages. Beyond this, there has simply got to be more give and take on the part of the better singers of the big German operas, or audiences will go back to musical comedy and minstrel shows.

This writer noted the lack of dramatic concern in the lead roles of "Tannhauser" at New Orleans, although the sets, lights, orchestra and most of the vocal parts assured the success of that effort.

Now come reports from Shreveport to the effect that only one other element — staging—combined with the already noted non-drama made a bad thing of "Die Walkuere." Houston and Shreveport flaw-pickers admitted for the most part the singers were excellent.

Someone apparently tried to justify matters by referring to the "all voice and improper props" as Bayreuth tradition. Bayreuth, the location of Wagner's own opera house, still bears too much evidence to the contrary. While his old steam vaporizers create underwater effects dragons are no longer used, they and fire-breathing asbestos served to establish a tradition which still lives there in modern dress — a workable alliance between music and drama. Note to upcoming Wagnerian singers who may sing in the deep south: We like the operatic potato salad with plenty color and ham down here, just like Wagner wrote it. Otherwise we'll take Puccini and Verdi and the standard Italian fare.

Peyton Place Revisited Is Same As Other

RETURN TO PEYTON PLACE. By Grace Metalious. Messner. $3.95.

If we assigned to a book the review space proportionate to the book's probable number of readers, this one would run on and on. If we assigned space on the basis of literary merit, we'd give this short shrift Don't read it. So we compromise:

We are back in that little New Hampshire town where, Miss Metalious said mostly in words of one syllable that everybody had love affairs with everybody; and now she says it again.

Constance MacKenzie's illegitimate daugher Allison is the author of a novel so successful it makes her rich. It takes her to New York where she finds lovers; it takes her to Hollywood where contary to the opinion of most worthy novelists she thinks the script writers do handsomely by her story; and it brings her back to Peyton Place where the townspeople accuse her of picturing them in too thin disguises and where, because of this, her stepfather is fired from his teacher's job. In real life Miss Metalious' husband was fired.

Selena Cross is here again, remembering in bloody detail how she killed the stepfather who raped her, and just how he assaulted her. Ted Carter has married Jennifer, and Ted's mother sneaks into the next room to spy on their love making. Leslie Harrington hunts for the girl he drove away because his son Rodney wants to acknowledge her child and marry her. After a fatal accident and a murder attempt, this ends in an old - fashioned white Christmas in Peyton Place.

There's so much love-making going on all over the book that it begins to get funny.

PROFIT FOR 'SEESAW'

NEW YORK (AP) — "Two for the Seesaw," which recently wound up a 94-week Broadway run, had a profit of about $570,000 on its $80,000 production cost.

ON THE RUE D' ODESSA

Sordid Smell Of Success

CAFE CELESTE. By Francoise Mallet - Joris. Translated from French by Herma Briffault. Farrar, Straus & Cudahy. $4.95.

On the rue d' Odessa, not far from the Boulevard Edgar - Quinet, not far from the Montparnasse railroad station Socartes presides over his Greek restaurant called by the title of Miss Mallet-Joris' fourth novel.

Too bountiful when he worked for his parents in Athens, he has kept up his ruinous habit of largesse here in Paris; but if this smacks of a certain nobility, it is in face compulsive and he is in one respect typical of most of the characters with whom these pages teem: However good they seem, they are less good in fact, and as one of the principal personages reflects contemptuously, women in the stores hunt for bargains on the counter and in fact for "the cheap cuts of life."

This is Martine's opinion, and that's what she hunts herself. She earns her living as a clerk and she is having the appearance — but only the empty appearance — of an affair with Stephane, husband in appearance of Louise, who is, again in appearance, a docile and resigned seamstress at the kind of night club where the girls dance half nude for some customers and all nude for others — here for once appearance is appearance.

Stephane, a weakling who married Louise despite the bad name she had earned in their native village by her love for a young painter, plays the violin in a restaurant trio. He looks to Martine for the support he had not continued to find in Louise, but that he derives to some not quite satisfactory degree from meetings of congenial souls in the cafe that, far from celestial, is pokey, grubby, bogus, with pretensions which it never realizes.

The concierge has a daughter, Slyvia, pretty enough to sleep with Louise's now famous painter, but not smart enough to snare him for keeps. There are others with slightly tainted histories — the divorcee, the dishonest pharmacist, the new father with a lecherous eye on the new blonde, the girls shamelessly drawn to Stephane.

This novel, impossible to praise in conventional terms such as pace, suspense and inspirational content, is the first full expression of Miss Mallet - Joris' thought in a completely adequate form. This may not score a popular success. This is a chronicle of failures, of people with not the worthy aspirations, dumb enough to misbehave, stupid enough not to know how to recoup, amoral enough not to care. The tragedy of Stephane in this sense is no tragedy, but the searing story of the unfit man going headlong to his just reward. This is the unsuccess story.

SHOW SCENTS

NEW YORK (AP) —Broadway is soon to get two kinds of scent-saturated movies, but White Way oldtimers claim such perfumed attractions are nothing new.

Back in 1923, Producer Hassard Short had an aide develop a chemical compound which emitted the aroma of oranges while singers crooned "An Orange Grove in California" in the "Music Box Revue."

The cinematic battle of fragrances involves the Scent-O-Vision technique being used by Michael Todd Jr., versus an Aroma Rama system utilized for a rival film by Walter Reade Jr.

POPULAR

"LATIN AFFAIR." The George Shearing Quintet. Capital T1275, $3.98, ST1275, $4.98. In "Latin Affair" — his third Latin album for Capital — George again displays the impeccable taste, coupled with easy swinging skill, that have made him a top favorite everywhere. Every tune is vibrant with the unmistakable tones of the Shearing piano in frequent unison with vibraphone and guitar, backed by bass and the exciting undercurrents supplied by a variety of Latin rhythm instruments. Those who enjoy dancing to Latin music will find a choice selection of tempos in these arrangements.

"JERI SOUTHERN AT THE CRESCENDO. . .an intimate live performance." Shearing piano in frequent $4.98. This album by Jeri was recorded during a performance at Gene Normans' Crescendo Club on the Sunset Strip in Hollywood, California. Six of the arrangements were done by the pianist, Dick Hazard, who is not only a fine accompanist, but a particular sensitive arranger for this type of small group. For the last two tunes on each side, Jeri plays her own piano accompaniments. Some of the selections are "You Better Go Now", "I Get A Kick Out of You", and "Dancing On The Ceiling."

CLASSICAL

"LA VOCE d'ITALIA." Giuseppe di Stefano. with orchestra conducted by Dino Olivieri. London OS25065, $5.98. Operatic artists as a general rule cannot bring verity to the simplicity of a popular tune. Their training prepares them for vocalism in the grand manner of opulence and exaggeration. Such an assault on the lyrical quality of most popular tunes would be fatal. This is not intended to dismiss the assets of proper vocalization and di Stefano possesses these in rare abundance. He is probably Italy's favorite tenor of the moment and has opened the La Scala season for the last three successive years. Di Stefano has taken some of Italy's favorite popular tunes and made a very enlightening album, after having prepared himself for the opera.

CHOPIN — "MAZURKAS." Nikita Magaloff (piano) London CSA2303, $17.94, 3 records. For the world at large the Mazurkas have too long appeared to be a kind of back water, a region into which only infrequent and tentative incursions might be made and they have in the main been left undisturbed. The reasons for this comparative neglect are not for us to seek: in the Mazurkas Chopin is at his most exclusively Slavonic. He is concerned with thoughts and feelings out of reach of the "foreigner". It is doubted whether he would have actually published so many Mazurkas had it not been for the fact that after the Polish insurrection of 1830 there existed in Western Europe a passionate interest in the fate of Poland. This sequence of Chopin's Mazurkas are beautifully performed by Nikita Magaloff, no two are alike, and musical interest is high throughout the complete album.

Guide To Good Reading

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

New books are arriving at the Ouachita Parish Library every day and the public is delighted with them. The McNaughton plan of renting multiple copies of the more popular titles is proving most successful. Already in one month we have reduced the length of the waiting lists on most of our more popular books.

Several of the books received during the past week are certain to be extremely popular. Frank Yerby has a new title called "Jarrett's Jade" and Grace Metalius has written a sequel to her former best seller called "Return to Peyton Place." It should be as popular as the first book. Those who like novels with a Parisian setting will want to read "Cafe Celeste" by Francoise Mallett.

"S.O.P.H.I.A." is the title of a very witty and penetrating book by Pierre Boulle. It has its setting in Malaya in the 1930s and is a wonderful interpretation of the world of big business. "The War Lover" is the title of John Herseyes latest book and it has been eagerly awaited. "The Longest Day" by Cornelius Ryan is an account of D Day, June 6, 1944. It is well written and will be in general demand. "Your Happiest Years" by Dick Clark, the television personality presents the world of the teenager as a delightful place.

The many people who enjoyed "Exodus" will want to read "Shalom." It also has it's setting in Israel. A new western story is "Fenced Off" by Harry Drago, while a new mystery is "The Man Who Followed Women" by Bert and Dolores Hitchens. "Christmas at Monticello with Thomas Jefferson" is the title of a new story by Helen Topping Miller.

In the field of non-fiction there are many new and useful books. "A New Look at Christmas Decorations" by Listaite has a wealth of interesting ideas. Those readers who like stories of undersea adventure will want to read "Captain Cousteau's Underwater Treasury." "You Lawn and How To Make It and Keep It" by R. Milton Carleton is a most valuable addition to our gardening shelf. "House and Gardens book of decorating and entertaining" contains many excellent ideas for the homemaker. "Cook My Darling Daughter" by Mildred O. Knopf is a different and interesting cookbook. One of the most beautiful books which we have had in a long time is called "Exotica." It was written by Alfred B. Graf and is a pictorial cyclopedia of indoor plants. "Men at the Top" by Elliott Osborn is a picture of top executives. "Be Your Own Judge" by M. E. Wilson is a discussion of art appreciation. "The Book of Landscape Design" by H. S. Ortloff will be widely used by home - owners. Another useful title is "Home Furnishing Ideas, for 1959" published by Better Homes and Gardens. Those who are interested in jazz music will want to read "The Sound of Surprise" by Whitney Bailliett.

In the field of history and travel there are many new titles. "Man's Great Future" by Erwin D. Canham is a very scholarly discussion of present day civilization. "The Silent Traveller in Boston" is another of the delightful books written by Yee Chiang. Willie Snow Ethridge writes delightful accounts of her travels in far places. Her latest one is called "Russian Duet." There is a great interest now in Hawaii and the latest book on the subject is "Hawaii, the Aloha State" by Ben Adams.

A very fine contribution to our understanding of the influence of Greece on our culture is "Hellenistic Culture" written by Moses Hadas. "Prospects of a Golden Age" by John Dos Passos is a perfectly beautiful book dealing with the Revolutionary and Constitutional periods of American history. "The Book of The Pioneer Spirit" is a beautiful book published by the American Heritage magazine. "They Who Fought Here" is an interesting account of the participants of the Civil War, written by Bell Irvin Wiley.

Biographies are always popular and we have several new titles this week. "Nicholas Biddle" was written by Thomas Payne Govan. "The Light of Common Day" is the autobiography of Lady Diana Cooper. "Gusty's Child" is the title of the autobiography of Alice Tisdale Hobart and is certain to be popular with all who have enjoyed her books. Last of all a very fine biography is "The Hero," the life of Charles A. Lindberg, written by Henneth S. Davis.

Alaska's Birthday

Gold Dust Glitter

By WILLIAM TOBIN

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — None of the gold dust glitter has rubbed off since Alaska shed its territorial togs and donned the dignified robes of statehood.

True, for three weeks in November the state blocked Alaska saloons and roadhouses from selling whisky and beer on a 24-hour, seven-day basis.

But new regulations that would have enforced closings of at least five hours a day were taken to court by bar owners, and a judge ruled the State Alcoholic Beverage Control Board was without authority to set uniform operating hours.

One argument advanced by opponents of the ABC regulations was that such restrictions might damage the tourist trade—an increasingly important factor in Alaska's economy.

They want more of the world to know this state of Alaska, where modern cities adjoin frontier country untouched by the political involvements of statehood.

Even as a state, it remains a place where bush pilots fly mercy missions over remote and frozen north country and through rugged island mountain passes in the Southeastern Panhandle.

Alaska is still the land of the open heart and open pocketbook—where neighbors reach for their poke for such causes as helping finance the recovery of a boy blinded by an attacking brown bear.

MAULED

Lee Hagmier, a 17-year-old high school pupil, was mauled last July near Juneau. Within four months, $15,700 had been donated for a trust fund to help offset medical expenses and costs of schooling for the boy.

This is a state where, 10 months after its birth, controversy rages over where the seat of government should be located.

Should it remain at Juneau, the territorial capital for half a century? Or should it be moved somewhere near Anchorage, 600 miles to the west in south central Alaska?

Juneau, says the Anchorage Daily Times, Alaska's largest newspaper, is not suitable. Its surrounding mountains insulate officials from the pulse of the people. With no roads connecting Juneau to the rest of Alaska, few of the state's 200,000 residents can watch their government in action.

Air transportation makes the present capital easily accessible, replies the Juneau Daily Alaska Empire. Anchorage, contends the Juneau paper, is just greedy. It not only has the largest population of any city in the state, estimated at more than 65,000, but wants the state government payroll as well.

FINANCIAL

The payroll is the financial backbone of this city of 10,000 residents, the seat of Alaska government since 1906.

The Bristol Bay News, a weekly newspaper mimeographed in far western Alaska, suggested putting the capital aboard a surplus Navy aircraft carrier to provide "the only bona fide seagoing ship of state in the world."

With giant tractor treads on the side and a huge bulldozer blade in the front, the newspaper said, the ship could ply Alaska's waters and then head inland to carve new roads in the wilderness, carrying the capital to every trapper's cabin in the state.

On a more realistic level, Alaska finds one of its major problems as a state similar to that facing a housewife with not enough closet space to store the family's summer clothes.

In all of its 586,400 square miles, Alaska doesn't have enough office space to serve the burgeoning needs of its government agencies.

Between legislative sessions, Alaska's House of Representatives chamber in the Capitol is used as a big storage room. Enough desk space has been cleared to provide for emergency use by one or two persons when no other place is available for them to work.

The Senate chamber, where 20 state lawmakers crowd during sessions into an area designed 45 years ago to seat eight territorial senators, may have to serve as the room where Alaska's new Supreme Court will hear its first cases.

Despite its political equality with the old 48 states and the romantic appeal of Hawaii, the 50th state, interest is increasing in Alaska's rugged attractions.

"To say that our mail from other states is quadrupling," says Gov. William A. Egan, 45, "would be conservative."

New venture capital has been flowing into the state since Alaska joined the union last Jan. 3.

National food and variety stores have extended their chain operations into Alaska, a major oil company has established its first marketing outlets in the state, and at Anchorage and well past the new hotels are under construction planning stage at Juneau.

NOW FLOWS

Oil now flows on the Kenai Peninsula from four joint holdings of Richfield-Standard Oil Co. of California. Union and Ohio Oil Co. have made a joint major gas strike in the same area.

Japanese industry is intensifying its interest in Alaska coal and other mineral resources. A new 60 - million - dollar Japanese-owned pulp mill has begun production at Sitka, the Russian capital of Alaska when the United States purchased the territory in 1867 for $7,200,000.

The conversion of governmental operations from a territorial basis has been progressing — but not without complications.

"We have found in the first 10 months of statehood that there are many, many problems," says Egan, a Democrat and a former storekeeper at Valdez. "Many frankly weren't anticipated—little ones as well as matters of great importance."

As chief executive, Egan has more extensive powers than the governors of most states. Under Alaska's streamlined constitution, he and Secretary of State Hugh J.Wade are the only elected executive officials. All others — including judges—are appointed by the governor.

The state's legislative branch is in the hands of 60 elected lawmakers, including 40 members of the House and 20 members of the Senate. In the first state elections only two Republicans won Senate seats and only six won places in the House.

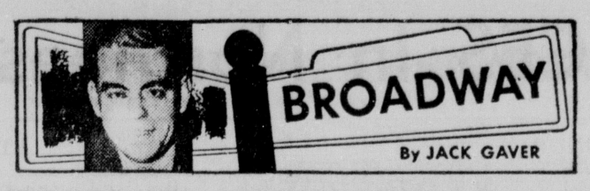
Its tax income during the last fiscal year amounted to only 24½ million dolars, less than a million more than in its last full year as a territory.

Last summer, Alaska's canned salmon production—once the main prop in economy—was at its lowest level since 1900. The catch was 40 per cent under that of 1958, and not much improvement is expected in 1960.

A long carpenters' strike crippled Alaska's construction season for nearly three months last summer. Its full economic impact will not be felt until next February or March.

To meet expanding needs, state expenditures amounting to some 33 1-3 million dollars have been approved. The Legislature is counting on a previous surplus and oil revenue to balance the budget.

"We're confident," says Egan. "We're moving forward, we're solving our problems, and we're building a great state. Our future is bright and unlimited."



NEW YORK (UPI)— Musical play collaborators Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein picked up another honor this week without writing a word or a note.

Their "Flower Drum Song," still playing to capacity at the St. James Theater, passed its first Broadway year on Dec. 1, the fifth R. & H. musical to achieve such longevity.

No other brace of writers has such a record. Their previous year-or-better shows were "Oklahoma!", "Carousel," "South Pacific" and "The King and I." And there doesn't seem to be much doubt that on Nov. 16, 1960 a sixth one-year production will join the lineup. Their recent "The Sound of Music" gives every indication of being good for two or three years.

CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY

The "Flower Drum Song" anniversary was celebrated at a big restaurant blowout for members of the cast and assorted theatrical personages and quite appropriately attended by H. K. Wong, "Mayor of San Francisco's Chinatown, which is the locale of the play. Wong presented Rodgers and Hammerstein and Joseph Fields, who collaborated with Hammerstein on the libretto, with a scroll from Acting Mayor Harold S. Dobbs of San Francisco.

The success of "Flower Drum Song" has given a little extra kick to the famous collaborators because the first-line critics did not give it a rousing welcome. They conceded that it was better than its two immediate predecessors in the R. & H. catalogue, "Me and Juliet" and "Pipe Dream," but the general tone was one of damning with faint praise.

A FINANCIAL SUCCESS

But the show was a financial success from the first curtain, and there is no sign of a letup. It played to some 675,000 customers in its first year and took in more than $3,500,000. Mail orders are now being received for performances through next October.

"Flower Drum Song" has been especially popular with out - of-towners because the management has made it clear right along that there is no likelihood of a second company for touring purposes. This decision was due to the casting difficulties posed by the fact that the troupe is made up of oriental-type players, and there just aren't many such with the proper talents available in this country.

There will be the problem of replacing leading lady Miyoshi Umeki by the first of the year. The first break in the original cast comes this month when Larry Blyden quits the role of Sammy Fong. Although he plays a Chinese-American, Blydenis is not an oriental. He will be replaced by promoting oriental Jack Soo from a subordinate role.

An Excellent Addition To War Library

Could you define an "Agnew"? It was the impromptu name for the attire of Sanitary Commission nurses in early days of the Civil War — a man's army shirt worn with collar open, sleeves rolled up and tails overhanging a full skirt. It was so named because the original was borrowed from a Dr. Agnew.

That is one of the nuggets that pops up in the first half dozen pages of this massive compendium of information about the Civil War, from A.A.G. (Assistant Adjutant General) to Zulick (Samuel Moron, a Pennsylvania officer for the Union).

There are hundreds of other nuggets, fascinating to the war -scholar as to the buff and the general reader. There are biographical sketches — the publisher says there are about 2,000 of them and, without actually counting, it seems a reasonable figure — summaries of campaigns and batles, definitions of hundreds of terms familiar and obscure, descriptions of weapons, sketches of corps, brigades, divisions and regiments, statistics — a rich lode of knowledge about the war that is the lodestone of so very much research and scholarship.

It is a testimonial to the flourishing interest in the Civil War that the conflict has the stature to deserve a dictionary all its own. There may be gaps in the compilation—for example, this reviewer noted the omission of Anna Ella Carroll, who had a major role in saving Maryland for the Union and a mysterious role in Union strategy. But Col. Boatner unquestionably has compiled an impressive store of facts, carefully assembled and carefully cross-indexed. It should take place as an indispensable handbook for Civil War reading and study.

On World Health

Many Problems

By CHARLES T. BURNS

BOSTON (AP) — Exchange of medical knowledge between nations may serve as a bridge to international peace — but public health achievements also have created some staggering new problems.

That's the opinion of Prof. Hugh R. Leavell, assistant dean of Harvard's School of Public Health, who has spent much of the past decade and a half traveling over the world on health missions.

"We find we can establish good relations with other peoples through our work in the health field," says the 57-year-old scientist. "With such good relations, international peace can follow as a logical result."

Paradoxically, improved health, reduced mortality, and longer life spans also have resulted in a "most troublesome problem — a steady rise in world population," Dr. Leavell says.

"What is needed now is a more acceptable contraceptive," he adds. "The very success of public health has put things out of balance. We need a balanced program to readjust things."

Since 1944, Dr. Leavell has been in the forefront of the delicate work of adapting advanced public health methods to the entrenched traditions of less developed nations.

"We have found it is not too important just how some health measure is operated," says Dr. Leavell, "so long as the basic problem is solved."

He recalls that about 10 years ago, a group of Guatemala Indians refused to permit American specialists to take blood specimen. "It seems they believed the blood was being studied in the United States and they feared the healthiest children would be taken to this country and eaten."

A different system was devised to obtain the specimens.

There has been a change in approach in handling overseas public health problems since the years immediately after World War II.

"Then we could tell other peoples how to run their public health programs," says Dr. Leavell. "Most war-torn nations had little or no established public health systems. That was the lack we tried to correct with the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration."

Dr. Leavell in 1944 and 1945 was deputy director of the UNRRA European regional office.

"Now the situation is radically different," he says. "Now we are showing other peoples how they can perform the public health functions within their own organizations."

With some peoples traveling public health groups found it a "waste of time trying to force better sanitation methods on them," the Harvard specialist said.

"For instance, in the Middle East we tried to teach the natives to use modern toilet facilities," Dr. Leavell recalls. "No matter what we said, the people insisted on their ancient ways, so we found it better to adapt our sanitation ideas to their perferences.

"That's one of our biggest problems—try to get people to change their habits. Instead of trying to make people do what we do, we try to find some method the people will accept."

"The disease is due to a lack of protein and the best way to deal with it is by plentiful quantities of milk," Dr. Leavell says.

"But milk is relatively scarce in the areas where the disease strikes. Our problem is to find a protein from some plant rather than from animal milk. The solution has been beans of many varietiers, for instance, say beans."

Dr. Leavell, a past president of the American Public Health Assn. (1953-54) and of the National Health Council (1955-56), is a native of Louisville, Ky., He holds a doctor of public health degree from Yale. A son, Nelson, 33, is an agricultural adviser with the International Cooperation Administration in Cambodia.

Dr. Leavell feels strongly that public health practicioners need to work in agriculture, industry and education. "Particularly education is needed," he says.

RUNNING THE SCALES

With JOHN CALE

As the Christmas rush moves into top spot on the activities list the floods, kliegs and colored spotlights retire before the glare of Rudolph's red nose. Yet the local cultural beat is still producing stories.

Little Theater will open its second play of the season, "The Caine Mutiny Court Martial," on Friday — still at the Selman Field Playhouse.

On Sunday, December 13, Davis Bingham, professor of music at Northeast, will coduct a community chorus and student and faculty orchestra in a performance of Handel's oratorio, "The Messiah." The performance will begin at 3:30 p.m. in Brown Hall Auditorium.

Passing another major item on its season's program with the performance of the Dallas Symphony Orchestra Thursday, the Louisiana Tech Concert Association has booked a "pops" concert by the Hollywood Bowl orchestra and chorus for tomorrow evening. This will pretty well wrap up the wealth of live drama and music playing to northeast Louisiana audiences until January.

'DIE WALKUERE'

Following the success of New Orleans' presentation of "Tannhauser," Houston and Shreveport allied finances and other resources for another shot at Wagnerian sauerkraut and Nordic gods for deep southern consumption with the opera "Die Walkuere."

Even people who dislike Wagner have learned through his name that there is no sound like our "W" in the Germanic languages. Beyond this, there has simply got to be more give and take on the part of the better singers of the big German operas, or audiences will go back to musical comedy and minstrel shows.

This writer noted the lack of dramatic concern in the lead roles of "Tannhauser" at New Orleans, although the sets, lights, orchestra and most of the vocal parts assured the success of that effort.

Now come reports from Shreveport to the effect that only one other element — staging—combined with the already noted nondrama made a bad thing of "Die Walkuere." Houston and Shreveport flaw-pickers admitted for the most part the singers were excellent.

Someone apparently tried to justify matters by referring to the "all voice and improper props" as Bayreuth tradition. Bayreuth, the location of Wagner's own opera house, still bears too much evidence to the contrary. While his old steam vaporizers create underwater effects dragons are no longer used, they and fire-breathing asbestos served to establish a tradition which still lives there in modern dress — a workable alliance between music and drama. Note to upcoming Wagnerian singers who may sing in the deep south: We like the operatic potato salad with plenty color and ham down here, just like Wagner wrote it. Otherwise we'll take Puccini and Verdi and the standard Italian fare.

Peyton Place Revisited Is Same As Other

RETURN TO PEYTON PLACE. By Grace Metalious. Messner. $3.95.

If we assigned to a book the review space proportionate to the book's probable number of readers, this one would run on and on. If we assigned space on the basis of literary merit, we'd give this short shrift Don't read it. So we compromise:

We are back in that little New Hampshire town where, Miss Metalious said mostly in words of one syllable that everybody had love affairs with everybody; and now she says it again.

Constance MacKenzie's illegitimate daugher Allison is the author of a novel so successful it makes her rich. It takes her to New York where she finds lovers; it takes her to Hollywood where contary to the opinion of most worthy novelists she thinks the script writers do handsomely by her story; and it brings her back to Peyton Place where the townspeople accuse her of picturing them in too thin disguises and where, because of this, her stepfather is fired from his teacher's job. In real life Miss Metalious' husband was fired.

Selena Cross is here again, remembering in bloody detail how she killed the stepfather who raped her, and just how he assaulted her. Ted Carter has married Jennifer, and Ted's mother sneaks into the next room to spy on their love making. Leslie Harrington hunts for the girl he drove away because his son Rodney wanted to acknowledge her child and marry her. After a fatal accident and a murder attempt, this ends in an old - fashioned white Christmas in Peyton Place.

There's so much love-making going on all over the book that it begins to get funny.

ON THE RUE D' ODESSA

Sordid Smell Of Success

CAFE CELESTE. By Francoise Mallet - Joris. Translated from French by Herma Briffault. Farrar, Straus & Cudahy. $4.95.

On the rue d' Odessa, not far from the Boulevard Edgar - Quinet, not far from the Montparnasse railroad station Socartes presides over his Greek restaurant called by the title of Miss Mallet-Joris' fourth novel.

Too bountiful when he worked for his parents in Athens, he has kept up his ruinous habit of largesse here in Paris; but if this smacks of a certain nobility, it is in face compulsive and he is in one respect typical of most of the characters with whom these pages teem: However good they seem, they are less good in fact, and as one of the principal personages reflects contemptuously, women in the stores hunt for bargains on the counter and in effect for "the cheap cuts of life."

This is Martine's opinion, and that's what she hunts herself. She earns her living as a clerk and she is having the appearance — but only the empty appearance — of an affair with Stephane, husband in appearance of Louise, who is, again in appearance, a docile and resigned seamstress at the kind of night club where the girls dance half nude for some customers and all nude for others — here for once appearance is appearance.

Stephane, a weakling who married Louise despite the bad name she had earned in their native village by her love for a young painter, plays the violin in a restaurant trio. He looks to Martine for the support he had not continued to find in Louise, but that he derives to some not quite satisfactory degree from meetings of congenial souls in the cafe that, far from celestial, is pokey, grubby, bogus, with pretensions which it never realizes.

The concierge has a daughter, Slyvia, pretty enough to sleep with Louise's now famous painter, but not smart enough to snare him for keeps. There are others with slightly tainted histories — the divorcee, the dishonest pharmacist, the new father with a lecherous eye on the new blonde, the girls shamelessly drawn to Stephane.

This novel, impossible to praise in conventional terms such as pace, suspense and inspirational content, is the first full expression of Miss Mallet - Joris' thought in a completely adequate form. This may not score a popular success. This is a chronicle of failures, of people with not the worthy aspirations, dumb enough to misbehave, stupid enough not to know how to recoup, amoral enough not to care. The tragedy of Stephane in this sense is no tragedy, but the searing story of the unfit man going headlong to his just reward. This is the unsuccess story.

SHOW SCENTS

NEW YORK (AP) —Broadway is soon to get two kinds of scent-saturated movies, but White Way oldtimers claim such perfumed attractions are nothing new.

Back in 1923, Producer Hassard Short had an aide develop a chemical compound which emitted the aroma of oranges while singers crooned "An Orange Grove in California" in the "Music Box Revue."

The cinematic battle of fragrances involves the Scent-O-Vision technique being used by Michael Todd Jr., versus an Aroma Rama system utilized for a rival film by Walter Reade Jr.

HI-FI and STEREO

by Greg Hare

POPULAR

"LATIN AFFAIR." The George Shearing Quintet. Capital T1275, $3.98, ST1275, $4.98. In "Latin Affair" — his third Latin album for Capital — George again displays the impeccable taste, coupled with easy swinging skill, that have made him a top favorite everywhere. Every tune is vibrant with the unmistakable tones of the Shearing piano in frequent unison with vibraphone and guitar, backed by bass and the exciting undercurrents supplied by a variety of Latin rhythm instruments. Those who enjoy dancing to Latin music will find a choice selection of tempos in these arrangements.

"JERI SOUTHERN AT THE CRESCENDO. . .an intimate live performance." Shearing piano in frequent $4.98. This album by Jeri was recorded during a performance at Gene Normans' Crescendo Club on the Sunset Strip in Hollywood, California. Six of the arrangements were done by the pianist, Dick Hazard, who is not only a fine accompanist, but a particular sensitive arranger for this type of small group. For the last two tunes on each side, Jeri plays her own piano accompaniments. Some of the selections are "You Better Go Now", "I Get A Kick Out of You", and "Dancing On The Ceiling."

CLASSICAL

"LA VOCE d'ITALIA." Giuseppe di Stefano. with orchestra conducted by Dino Olivieri. London OS25065, $5.98. Operatic artists as a general rule cannot bring verity to the simplicity of a popular tune. Their training prepares them for vocalism in the grand manner of opulence and exaggeration. Such an assault on the lyrical quality of most popular tunes would be fatal. This is not intended to dismiss the assets of proper vocalization and di Stefano possesses these in rare abundance. He is probably Italy's favorite tenor of the moment and has opened the La Scala season for the last three successive years. Di Stefano has taken some of Italy's favorite popular tunes and made a very enlightening album, after having prepared himself for the opera.

CHOPIN — "MAZURKAS." Nikita Magaloff (piano) London CSA2303, $17.94, 3 records. For the world at large the Mazurkas have too long appeared to be a kind of back water, a region into which only infrequent and tentative incursions might be made and they have in the main been left undisturbed. The reasons for this comparative neglect are not for us to seek: in the Mazurkas Chopin is at his most exclusively Slavonic. He is concerned with thoughts and feelings out of reach of the "foreigner". It is doubted whether he would have actually published so many Mazurkas had it not been for the fact that after the Polish insurrection of 1830 there existed in Western Europe a passionate interest in the fate of Poland. This sequence of Chopin's Mazurkas are beautifully performed by Nikita Magaloff, no two are alike, and musical interest is high throughout the complete album.

Guide To Good Reading

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

New books are arriving at the Ouachita Parish Library every day and the public is delighted with them. The McNaughton plan of renting multiple copies of the more popular titles is proving most successful. Already in one month we have reduced the length of the waiting lists on most of our more popular books.

Several of the books received during the past week are certain to be extremely popular. Frank Yerby has a new title called "Jarrett's Jade" and Grace Metalius has written a sequel to her former best seller called "Return to Peyton Place." It should be as popular as the first book. Those who like novels with a Parisian setting will want to read "Cafe Celeste" by Francoise Mallett.

"S.O.P.H.I.A." is the title of a very witty and penetrating book by Pierre Boulle. It has its setting in Malaya in the 1930s and is a wonderful interpretation of the world of big business. "The War Lover" is the title of John Herseyes latest book and it has been eagerly awaited. "The Longest Day" by Cornelius Ryan is an account of D Day, June 6, 1944. It is well written and will be in general demand. "Your Happiest Years" by Dick Clark, the television personality presents the world of the teenager as a delightful place.

The many people who enjoyed "Exodus" will want to read "Shalom." It also has it's setting in Israel. A new western story is "Fenced Off" by Harry Drago, while a new mystery is "The Man Who Followed Women" by Bert and Dolores Hitchens. "Christmas at Monticello with Thomas Jefferson" is the title of a new story by Helen Topping Miller.

In the field of non-fiction there are many new and useful books. "A New Look at Christmas Decorations" by Listaite has a wealth of interesting ideas. Those readers who like stories of undersea adventure will want to read "Captain Cousteau's Underwater Treasury." "You Lawn and How To Make It and Keep It" by R. Milton Carleton is a most valuable addition to our gardening shelf. "House and Gardens book of decorating and entertaining" contains many excellent ideas for the homemaker. "Cook My Darling Daughter" by Mildred O. Knopf is a different and interesting cookbook. One of the most beautiful books which we have had in a long time is called "Exotica." It was written by Alfred B. Graf and is a pictorial cyclopedia of indoor plants. "Men at the Top" by Elliott Osborn is a picture of top executives. "Be Your Own Judge" by M. E. Wilson is a discussion of art appreciation. "The Book of Landscape Design" by H. S. Ortloff will be widely used by home - owners. Another useful title is "Home Furnishing Ideas, for 1959" published by Better Homes and Gardens. Those who are interested in jazz music will want to read "The Sound of Surprise" by Whitney Bailliett.

In the field of history and travel there are many new titles. "Man's Great Future" by Erwin D. Canham is a very scholarly discussion of present day civilization. "The Silent Traveller in Boston" is another of the delightful books written by Yee Chiang. Willie Snow Ethridge writes delightful accounts of her travels in far places. Her latest one is called "Russian Duet." There is a great interest now in Hawaii and the latest book on the subject is "Hawaii, the Aloha State" by Ben Adams.

A very fine contribution to our understanding of the influence of Greece on our culture is "Hellenistic Culture" written by Moses Hadas. "Prospects of a Golden Age" by John Dos Passos is a perfectly beautiful book dealing with the Revolutionary and Constitutional periods of American history. "The Book of The Pioneer Spirit" is a beautiful book published by the American Heritage magazine. "They Who Fought Here" is an interesting account of the participants of the Civil War, written by Bell Irvin Wiley.

Biographies are always popular and we have several new titles this week. "Nicholas Biddle" was written by Thomas Payne Govan. "The Light of Common Day" is the autobiography of Lady Diana Cooper. "Gusty's Child" is the title of the autobiography of Alice Tisdale Hobart and is certain to be popular with all who have enjoyed her books. Last of all a very fine biography is "The Hero," the life of Charles A. Lindberg, written by Henneth S. Davis.

AS IKE ARRIVES

U.S. Anthem Heard In Vatican

VATICAN CITY (AP) — America's national anthem echoes Sunday within the Vatican's walls when President Eisenhower arrives for his meeting with Pope John XXIII.

Only once before has "The Star Spangled Banner" been heard in St. Damasus Courtyard, heart of this tiny state which is the center of the Roman Catholic Church.

The other time was Jan. 4, 1919, when President Woodrow Wilson visited Pope Benedict XV.

Eisenhower's visit will be surrounded with ceremony and color. But it will not provide all the elaborate pomp of which the Vatican is capable because the visit is a private one, not a state affair. The United States has no formal diplomatic relations with the Vatican.

But the Vatican's finest carpets were laid down in corridors and rooms through which the President will pass to the audience.

Largest is a 12 by 30-foot carpet placed in the Pope's Throne Room. It is embroidered with sacred images and the coat of arms of Pope Leo XIII.

In the pontiff's library, where Eisenhower's audience will take place, a large yellow carpet is spread. It bears the insignia of Pope Pius X.

The carpets were taken out of storage Friday.

The 78-year-old pontiff was reported in good health despite a cold that has hung on for a week.

He was smiling and looked well when he kept a series of appointments Friday. But he canceled a long religious ceremony that had been scheduled in the drafty Hall of Benedictions.

The Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano recalled Wilson's visit, in welcoming Eisenhower.

"Today, when there is no war but there is not peace," the newspaper said, "the inspirations, desires and wishes of the American people are the same as when President Wilson paid a call on Pope Benedict XV. . . .

"The common goal of peace needs the cooperation of all men, both of religion and government. The visit President Eisenhower is paying here is clear in its moral significance."

The President and his party will enter Vatican City at 9:30 a.m. through huge St. Peter's Square, where until late Friday night workmen were erecting barries to hold back an expected throng. The President's party will pass on into the Vatican proper through the Arch of the Bells.

With the President will be his son and aide, Maj. John Eisenhower, and the major's wife, Barbara; Undersecretary of State Robert Murphy; Lt. Col. Vernon Walters, the President's interpreter; James J. Rowley, an aide, and James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary.

In the St. Damasus courtyard a palatine guard of honor will be drawn up. Vatican gendarmes will be posted along the entire route the President will follow to the papal apartment and his historic audience.

President Eisenhower will alight from his car in the St. Damascus Courtyard, and it is there the U.S. national anthem will be played.

Then the President will be escorted to an elevator and taken up to the Pope's apartment on the second floor of the papal palace.

When he gets off a cortege of four footmen and six Swiss guards will form. It will pass through the Clementine Hall where students from the Pontifical North American College will be assembled.

From there the President and the cortege will pass on to the small Throne Room to be greeted by Domenico Cardinal Tardini, papal secretary of state.

Wilson and Benedict XV had a 25-minute talk without an interpreter. This is unlikely to be repeated, since the Pope is just learning English.

While the President and the Pope are talking, some members of the President's party will remain in the Room of St. John with Vatican officials. Later the President will present them to the Pope.

The President and his party will leave with much the same ceremony as they enter. In the courtyard, the palatine guard will present arms and play the papal anthem.

Within an hour after his audience with the Pope, Eisenhower will board his special Air Force plane at 11:20 a.m. and take off for Ankara, Turkey, second stop on his 11-country trip.

Coleman Out In Tensas Sheriff Race

In district courthouse races, Tensas sheriff Elliot Coleman was eliminated and Morehouse sheriff E. L. Hinton and Richland sheriff, Earl E. Hill were swept back into office without a run-off.

MOREHOUSE PARISH

For Sheriff: E. L. Hinton, incumbent, 3,452; W. C. Beasley, 1,606; Robbin E. Carpenter, 662. For Assessor, incumbent John M. Smith was unopposed. For Clerk; Mrs. Johnnie C. Green, incumbent and widow of Ray Green, former Clerk, 4,166; N. F. Little, 1,315. Coroner, Dr. Smith Sims, was unopposed. Returns are complete but unofficial with 27 precincts out of 27 reporting.

TENSAS

The complete returns — unofficially — gave William M. Seaman the sheriff's race with 627 votes against incumbent Elliott D. Coleman's 627. Other officials were unopposed.

Schuchs, Concordia; Woodard Bardin, West Carroll: J. Y. Bell, Winn; Barney Basham, LaSalle: Edgar W. Duke, Caldwell, and Willie Reems, Franklin.

Five area clerks of court are having easy sledding during this political year. Unopposed incumbents in the clerk's office were W. R. Richardson, Catahoula; D. B. McKay, Richland; James A. Kitchen, Tensas: L. C. Ledbetter, Lincoln; Archie L. Darden, Caldwell. Incumbents who had to run were Victor P. Campbell, Concordia; Laz B. Baughman, Union: V. J. Scott, West Carroll; Robert L. Dunn, Winn; Jim Nugent, LaSalle; J. W. Donnell, Franklin; Johnnie C. Green, Morehouse; Lewis B. Furr, Madison; Edna Bishop Brock, East Carroll, and Edward H. Ayres, Jackson.

Demo Central Committee Is Elected Here

The Ouachita Parish Democratic Central Sommittee was automatically elected in yesterday's election, since there was no opposition to the six candidates.

Actually the committee is allowed a maximum of three times the number of candidates who filed for the position. When the number was only six, they automatically were elected to the four-year posts.

Re-elected were Burt Sperry, Thomas M. Hayes, Carl McHenry, Alden T. Shotwell, and Louis D. Smith, all of ward 10, and Joe E. Johnson, ward 5.

ON COMMITTEE

McHenry and Shotwell have been serving on the committee since the mid-1920's. Shotwell served as chairman of the group for a number of years but later resigned as chairman in order to allow younger members to move up.

McHenry was the secretary of the committee, but like Shotwell, resigned the position, remaining on the committee as a member.

Sperry, presently serving as chairman, was re-elected for the fourth term, while Hayes, now the secretary, received approval for a third term.

Actually, according to one member of the committee, each parish is allowed a committeeman for each member of the governing body, plus five members at large. The police jury has sixteen members. Thus, the parish is actually allowed a maximum of 21 members.

However, in the event not enough candidates file to reach the maximum number, then those candidates who have filed are automatically elected and become the committee.

Lives And Works Of Duchamp And Wright Analyzed

The man in the street asked to name just any modern painting might come up with Picasso's "Guernica" or Grant Wood's "American Gothic" or one or two others, but surely he would first of all hit on the one work that has been most widely discussed, most debated, most ridiculed, most enigmatic, and one of the most frequently praised and most venturesome:

Ducham's "Nude Descending a Staircase." Yet in Duchamp's lifetime he has had but few one - man exhibitions, and this book about this baffling figure, by a friend who had Duchamp's help, is the first inclusive study.

Now 72, he lives in the New York City he has adopted since his first visit here in 1915. He was born in a Rouen suburb, the son of a notary who let his children have more freedom than bourgeois parents normally permit. Duchamp followed two elder brothers who went to Paris to paint and sculpture, and his first known canvas is dated 1902. In less than 10 years, free of the restrictions of Cubism, and breaking off at a tangent from too solemn Futurism, he had done the first "Nude." There are now three in the Philadelphia Museum of Art, and they, and their painter, sent his career off to a spectacular start at the Armory Show of 1913.

By then he had abandoned painting for creations called "ready - mades" — "Air of Paris," "Chocolate Grinder," "Comb," "Why Not Sneeze" concocted out of lumps of marble, balls of twine, a comb literally, a bottle. Lebel defines this as "the limit of the unesthetic, the useless, and the unjustifiable." But it is also the threshold of mystery, of phantasm, of creative limbo. Then he packed them all up in "Box in a Suitcase" for a portable museum.

To Lebel, Duchamp means emancipation, a complete unshackling of the artistic urge and he concludes: "He has restored a reason for existence to the work of art he meant to abolish."

Though there are two essays, they are brief, and this is primarily a picture book of 200 plates, of which 75 in color, showing Wright's sketches and presentation drawings. They cover most of the famed architect's long and busy life, and illustrate a wide variety of projected or finished works — homes in and out of the city, public edifices, country club, business offices and factories, and ornament. Among them are the Tokyo hotel, Taliesin West, the Jones and Kaufmann, houses, the Larkin building and so on. Both the essay by Giuseppe Samona and the notes contain references to Wright's ideas of continuity and of rotary motion of which the new Guggenheim Museum is the outstanding example.

Washington's Camilo Pascual allowed a record 34 homers in 1956 but in 1959 he peritted only 10.

Jerry West, 6-foot-3 senior from Cabin Creek, W. Va., promises to shatter West Virginia basketball records in his final season.

Area House Incumbents Holding Edge

At 11:15 p.m., 12 precincts out of 19 were reporting from Concordia parish. Rep. W. P. (Jack) Crane was ahead with 953; L. Bebee Beard, 429 Chester Lloyd, 712; D. L. Nelson, 517. Registered voters: 4490.

East Carroll showed Rep. Vail M. Delony ahead at 10:45 p.m., as four of seven precincts reported. Delony had 464 votes, his opponent L. T. Clarkson 74. There are 2804 registered voters.

Rep. Woodrow Wilson of Bastrop had the greatest number of votes in Morehouse parish, as all 27 precincts reported. He had 2251 votes, however this was not enough to put him in without a run-off. Majority would have been 2657.

Fourteen out of 22 precincts reported from Lincoln parish by 11 p.m. Rep. L. D. Napper had 1831. Minor Oglesby 628, Mode Choate Jr., 576. A total of 7129 persons are registered voters.

MOREHOUSE

In Morehouse Parish, Bastrop attorney Woodrow Wilson is opposed by three men in his attempt to continue as representative.

Other candidates are James A. McCormack, automobile salesman and O. C. Nolan, Police Jury president, both of Bastrop, and Samuel P. Williams, Oak Ridge school bus driver.

Wilson has held the post since 1953. However, sources forecast Nolan would be a strong candidate.

LINCOLN

Lincoln parish Rep. L. D. Napper is seeking his third term in the state office. A Ruston attorney, he is running against Mode Choate Jr., a Ruston accountant and insurance man, and Minor C. Oglesby, a Dubach grocery store operator.

Napper was seen as "hard to beat" during the campaign.

UNION

Two men vie for the representative's post in Union parish.

Incombent Rep. T. T. Fields, serving his first term, was said to be running strong against his only opponent, James P. Smith.

Smith, a school bus driver from Cross Roads, also ran for representative in the last election, but was defeated by Fields.

FRANKLIN

Joseph B. Parker, 24-year,old Navy lieutenant (j.g.) from Crowville, campaigned during a 15-day leave in November for the state office. He was due for release from the service in time to begin a term of office in May, if elected.

Womack is finishing the term of the late Rep. Walter Chachere. He defeated Mrs. Chachere in an election for the post a year ago.

RICHMOND

Rayville cotton buyer Rep. Lasley Downes has two opponents in the race for Richland parish representative.

Benny G. Christian, Rayville insurance man, and A. J. Chapman, farmer from Archibald, are seeking Downes' office. He is completing his first term in office, and appeared to be the front-runner during the race.

CATAHOULA

Top race in Catahoula parish has been the representative contest between incumbent Rep. W. S. Peck Jr. and David I. Patten.

Peck, a Sicily Island planter-cattleman, is completing his first term. He and the governor are friendly, and this is predominantly Long territory. ..

However, Patten, a Jonesville businessman, is know for having a way with the country vote. He was expected to give Peck some tough competition.

CONCORDIA

Four men have been in lively competition for the Concordia representative's office.

Rep. Jack Crane, completing his first full term, has an opponent in his own family — his nephew, L. Bebee Beard of Lismore.

Beard ran unsuccessfully for representative eight years ago.

Lloyd Love, Ferriday attorney and acitve civic worker, has been a strong candidate in the race. D. L. Nelson, Lake St. John planter, is the fourth candidate.

MADISON

No opposition has been offered for the representative from Madison parish.

TENSAS

Rep. Carroll Seaman in Tensas parish is opposed by S. S. DeWitt, a Newellton farmer. Seaman is finishing up his fourth term in office. The race has been considered relatively quiet.

EAST CARROLL

East Carroll parish Rep. Vail Delony, with 20-years of service in the House of Representatives, is opposed by L. T. Clarkson.

This is the second time Delony has been opposed for the office, and local sources predicted a fairly easy victory for him.

Clarkson owns a grocery store at Lake Providence and has interests in farming.

WEST CARROLL

Next door, in West Carroll parish, it's a three-man race for the representative title. The scene is reminiscent of four years ago, with Rep. Spencer Myrick opposed by Lonnie Richmond, and J. T. Borden, a Pioneer farmer.

JACKSON

Jackson parish Rep. I. J. Allen has four opponents: Louie C. Boss, Marvin T. Culpepper, Newt Kavanaugh and Albert Smedley.

Allen, a long-time representative, has been termed, "awfully strong." Boss, a Jonesboro gasoline distributor and former president of the Policy Jury, has been favored as a possible strong candidate in the pre-election weeks.

CALDWELL

Another representative with four opponents is Rep. W. C. Steen Jr. of Kelly in Caldwell Parish.

In Long country, and a Long supporter, Steen has served one term in office. Observers saw two of his opponents as potential strong men: V. E. Claunch of Grayson, former state representative, and David M. Gartman, Columbia auto dealer.

Emmett Lee Brown, Grayson salesman and V. B. (Goober) Laird, Kelly farmer, also are seeking the state post.

LA SALLE

LaSalle parish's representative race has five candidates, including a former representative, an ex-Navy careerman and a preacher.

Incumbent Rep. T. H. Gaharan, Jena physician, is faced by opposition from Chester Floyd of Walters, Gove D. (Gumboots) Davis of Olla, Huey Aubrey Doughty, Jena and David C. Mayo, Urania.

Floyd, School Board president, has been seen as Gaharan's strongest opponent. However, Davis has served in both the House and Senate, and was a candidate for U.S. Congress.

Seven candidates are seeking the representative's seat in Winn parish, known as the hotbed of Louisiana politics.

Edd Tullos, cattleman-farmer, has been seen as a strong candidate in the Winn race. He made a good showing in a previous representative's race, but did not place in the second primary.

Other hopefuls in Winn are: Prentice Ferguson Atlanta school teacher; Bowman Melton, cattleman - farmer; Carthal Payne, Dodson merchant and past mayor; D. E. Sikes, past Winn school superintendent and now a board member; P. K. Smith, auto salesman and cattleman; and Don Thornton, Winnfield attorney.

TOQUE — Turkey tail feathers, trimmed with an open-work diamond clip and circlet comprise this creation of Svend, milliner with couturier Jacques Heim in Paris.

U.S. Anthem Heard In Vatican

VATICAN CITY (AP) — America's national anthem echoes Sunday within the Vatican's walls when President Eisenhower arrives for his meeting with Pope John XXIII.

Only once before has "The Star Spangled Banner" been heard in St. Damasus Courtyard, heart of this tiny state which is the center of the Roman Catholic Church.

The other time was Jan. 4, 1919, when President Woodrow Wilson visited Pope Benedict XV.

Eisenhower's visit will be surrounded with ceremony and color. But it will not provide all the elaborate pomp of which the Vatican is capable because the visit is a private one, not a state affair. The United States has no formal diplomatic relations with the Vatican.

But the Vatican's finest carpets were laid down in corridors and rooms through which the President will pass to the audience.

Largest is a 12 by 30-foot carpet placed in the Pope's Throne Room. It is embroidered with sacred images and the coat of arms of Pope Leo XIII.

In the pontiff's library, where Eisenhower's audience will take place, a large yellow carpet is spread. It bears the insignia of Pope Pius X.

The carpets were taken out of storage Friday.

The 78-year-old pontiff was reported in good health despite a cold that has hung on for a week.

He was smiling and looked well when he kept a series of appointments Friday. But he canceled a long religious ceremony that had been scheduled in the drafty Hall of Benedictions.

The Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano recalled Wilson's visit, in welcoming Eisenhower.

"Today, when there is no war but there is not peace," the newspaper said, "the inspirations, desires and wishes of the American people are the same as when President Wilson paid a call on Pope Benedict XV. . . .

"The common goal of peace needs the cooperation of all men, both of religion and government. The visit President Eisenhower is paying here is clear in its moral significance."

The President and his party will enter Vatican City at 9:30 a.m. through huge St. Peter's Square, where until late Friday night workmen were erecting barries to hold back an expected throng. The President's party will pass on into the Vatican proper through the Arch of the Bells.

With the President will be his son and aide, Maj. John Eisenhower, and the major's wife, Barbara; Undersecretary of State Robert Murphy; Lt. Col. Vernon Walters, the President's interpreter; James J. Rowley, an aide, and James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary.

In the St. Damasus courtyard a palatine guard of honor will be drawn up Vatican gendarmes will be posted along the entire route the President will follow to the papal apartment and his historic audience.

President Eisenhower will alight from his car in the St. Damascus Courtyard, and it is there the U.S. national anthem will be played.

Then the President will be escorted to an elevator and taken up to the Pope's apartment on the second floor of the papal palace.

When he gets off a cortege of four footmen and six Swiss guards will form. It will pass through the Clementine Hall where students from the Pontifical North American College will be assembled.

From there the President and the cortege will pass on to the small Throne Room to be greeted by Domenico Cardinal Tardini, papal secretary of state.

Wilson and Benedict XV had a 25-minute talk without an interpreter. This is unlikely to be repeated, since the Pope is just learning English.

While the President and the Pope are talking, some members of the President's party will remain in the Room of St. John with Vatican officials. Later the President will present them to the Pope.

The President and his party will leave with much the same ceremony as they enter. In the courtyard, the palatine guard will present arms and play the papal anthem.

Within an hour after his audience with the Pope, Eisenhower will board his special Air Force plane at 11:20 a.m. and take off for Ankara, Turkey, second stop on his 11-country trip.

Coleman Out In Tensas Sheriff Race

In district courthouse races, Tensas sheriff Elliot Coleman was eliminated and Morehouse sheriff E. L. Hinton and Richland sheriff, Earl E. Hill were swept back into office without a run-off.

MOREHOUSE PARISH

For Sheriff: E. L. Hinton, incumbent, 3,452; W. C. Beasley, 1,606; Robbin E. Carpenter, 662. For Assessor, incumbent John M. Smith was unopposed. For Clerk; Mrs. Johnnie C. Green, incumbent and widow of Ray Green, former Clerk, 4,166; N. F. Little, 1,315. Coroner, Dr. Smith Sims, was unopposed. Returns are complete but unofficial with 27 precincts out of 27 reporting.

TENSAS

The complete returns — unofficially — gave William M. Seaman the sheriff's race with 627 votes against incumbent Elliott D. Coleman's 627. Other officials were unopposed.

In the 15 parishes of the district, only two sheriffs are unopposed for their jobs. They are C. E. Hester, Madison Parish, and Jesse Riser, Lincoln. One sheriff, Doug Floyd in LaSalle, is retiring at the end of this term. Incumbents in the parish races are: Morehouse, E. L. Hinton; Union, Jurd G. Stewart; Richland, Earl E. Hill; Catahoula, George McGee; Concordia, Noah W. Cross; East Carroll, John W. (Red) Gilbert; West Carroll, J. R. Butler; Jackson, Lloyd G. Bryant; Tensas, Elliott D. Coleman; Winn, R. S. Jordan; Caldwell, G. E. Erskine, and Franklin, Hiram Waller.

Six tax assessors have it easy this December. Unopposed are Charles Hightower, Lincoln; John M. Smith, Morehouse; R. R. Spigener, Madison; William Y. Bell, East Carroll; J. Dawson Barr, Jackson, and Albert G. Bondurant, Tensas. Opposed incumbents are Gurvis Barron, Union; W. M. Hallack, Richland; G. O. McGuffee, Catahoula; Marcus R. Schuchs, Concordia; Woodard Bardin, West Carroll; J. Y. Bell, Winn; Barney Basham, LaSalle; Edgar W. Duke, Caldwell, and Willie Reems, Franklin.

Five area clerks of court are having easy sledding during this political year. Unopposed incumbents in the clerk's office were W. R. Richardson, Catahoula; D. B. McKay, Richland; James A. Kitchen, Tensas; L. C. Ledbetter, Lincoln; Archie L. Darden, Caldwell. Incumbents who had to run were Victor P. Campbell, Concordia; Laz B. Baughman, Union; V. J. Scott, West Carroll; Robert L. Dunn, Winn; Jim Nugent, LaSalle; J. W. Donnell, Franklin; Johnnie C. Green, Morehouse; Lewis B. Furr, Madison; Edna Bishop Brock, East Carroll, and Edward H. Ayres, Jackson.

Demo Central Committee Is Elected Here

The Ouachita Parish Democratic Central Sommittee was automatically elected in yesterday's election, since there was no opposition to the six candidates.

Actually the committee is allowed a maximum of three times the number of candidates who filed for the position. When the number was only six, they automatically were elected to the four-year posts.

Re-elected were Burt Sperry, Thomas M. Hayes, Carl McHenry, Alden T. Shotwell, and Louis D. Smith, all of ward 10, and Joe E. Johnson, ward 5.

ON COMMITTEE

McHenry and Shotwell have been serving on the committee since the mid-1920's. Shotwell served as chairman of the group for a number of years but later resigned as chairman in order to allow younger members to move up.

McHenry was the secretary of the committee, but like Shotwell, resigned the position, remaining on the committee as a member.

Sperry, presently serving as chairman, was re-elected for the fourth term, while Hayes, now the secretary, received approval for a third term.

Actually, according to one member of the committee, each parish is allowed a committeeman for each member of the governing body, plus five members at large. The police jury has sixteen members. Thus, the parish is actually allowed a maximum of 21 members.

However, in the event not enough candidates file to reach the maximum number, then those candidates who have filed are automatically elected and become the committee.

Lives And Works Of Duchamp And Wright Analyzed

The man in the street asked to name just any modern painting might come up with Picasso's "Guernica" or Grant Wood's "American Gothic" or one or two others, but surely he would first of all hit on the one work that has been most widely discussed, most debated, most ridiculed, most enigmatic, and one of the most frequently praised and most venturesome:

Ducham's "Nude Descending a Staircase." Yet in Duchamp's lifetime he has had but few one - man exhibitions, and this book about this baffling figure, by a friend who had Duchamp's help, is the first inclusive study.

Now 72, he lives in the New York City he has adopted since his first visit here in 1915. He was born in a Rouen suburb, the son of a notary who let his children have more freedom than bourgeois parents normally permit. Duchamp followed two elder brothers who went to Paris to paint and sculpture, and his first known canvas is dated 1902. In less than 10 years, free of the restrictions of Cubism, and breaking off at a tangent from too solemn Futurism, he had done the first "Nude." There are now three in the Philadelphia Museum of Art, and they, and their painter, sent his career off to a spectacular start at the Armory Show of 1913.

By then he had abandoned painting for creations called "ready - mades" — "Air of Paris," "Chocolate Grinder," "Comb," "Why Not Sneeze" concocted out of lumps of marble, balls of twine, a comb literally, a bottle. Lebel defines this as "the limit of the unesthetic, the useless, and the unjustifiable." But it is also the threshold of mystery, of phantasm, of creative limbo. Then he packed them all up in "Box in a Suitcase" for a portable museum.

To Lebel, Duchamp means emancipation, a complete unshackling of the artistic urge and he concludes: "He has restored a reason for existence to the work of art he meant to abolish."

Though there are two essays, they are brief, and this is primarily a picture book of 200 plates, of which 75 in color, showing Wright's sketches and presentation drawings. They cover most of the famed architect's long and busy life, and illustrate a wide variety of projected or finished works — homes in and out of the city, public edifices, country club, business offices and factories, and ornament. Among them are the Tokyo hotel, Taliesin West, the Jones and Kaufmann, houses, the Larkin building and so on. Both the essay by Giuseppe Samona and the notes contain references to Wright's ideas of continuity and of rotary motion of which the new Guggenheim Museum is the outstanding example.

Washington's Camilo Pascual allowed a record 34 homers in 1956 but in 1959 he peritted only 10.

Jerry West, 6-foot-3 senior from Cabin Creek, W. Va., promises to shatter West Virginia basketball records in his final season.

Area House Incumbents Holding Edge

At 11:15 p.m., 12 precincts out of 19 were reporting from Concordia parish. Rep. W. P. (Jack) Crane was ahead with 953; L. Bebee Beard, 429 Chester Lloyd, 712; D. L. Nelson, 517. Registered voters: 4490.

East Carroll showed Rep. Vail M. Delony ahead at 10:45 p.m., as four of seven precincts reported. Delony had 464 votes, his opponent L. T. Clarkson 74. There are 2804 registered voters.

Rep. Woodrow Wilson of Bastrop had the greatest number of votes in Morehouse parish, as all 27 precincts reported. He had 2251 votes, however this was not enough to put him in without a run-off. Majority would have been 2657.

Fourteen out of 22 precincts reported from Lincoln parish by 11 p.m. Rep. L. D. Napper had 1831, Minor Oglesby 628, Mode Choate Jr., 576. A total of 7129 persons are registered voters.

MOREHOUSE

In Morehouse Parish, Bastrop attorney Woodrow Wilson is opposed by three men in his attempt to continue as representative.

Other candidates are James A. McCormack, automobile salesman and O. C. Nolan, Police Jury president, both of Bastrop, and Samuel P. Williams, Oak Ridge school bus driver.

Wilson has held the post since 1953. However, sources forecast Nolan would be a strong candidate.

LINCOLN

Lincoln parish Rep. L. D. Napper is seeking his third term in the state office. A Ruston attorney, he is running against Mode Choate Jr., a Ruston accountant and insurance man, and Minor C. Oglesby, a Dubach grocery store operator.

Napper was seen as "hard to beat" during the campaign.

UNION

Two men vie for the representative's post in Union parish.

Incombent Rep. T. T. Fields, serving his first term, was said to be running strong against his only opponent, James P. Smith.

Smith, a school bus driver from Cross Roads, also ran for representative in the last election, but was defeated by Fields.

FRANKLIN

Joseph B. Parker, 24-year.old Navy lieutenant (j.g.) from Crowville, campaigned during a 15-day leave in November for the state office. He was due for release from the service in time to begin a term of office in May, if elected.

Womack is finishing the term of the late Rep. Walter Chachere. He defeated Mrs. Chachere in an election for the post a year ago.

RICHMOND

Rayville cotton buyer Rep. Lasley Downes has two opponents in the race for Richland parish representative.

Benny G. Christian, Rayville insurance man, and A. J. Chapman, farmer from Archibald, are seeking Downes' office. He is completing his first term in office, and appeared to be the front-runner during the race.

CATAHOULA

Top race in Catahoula parish has been the representative contest between incumbent Rep. W. S. Peck Jr. and David I. Patten.

Peck, a Sicily Island planter-cattleman, is completing his first term. He and the governor are friendly, and this is predominantly Long territory. ..

However, Patten, a Jonesville businessman, is know for having a way with the country vote. He was expected to give Peck some tough competition.

CONCORDIA

Four men have been in lively competition for the Concordia representative's office.

Rep. Jack Crane, completing his first full term, has an opponent in his own family — his nephew, L. Bebee Beard of Lismore.

Beard ran unsuccessfully for representative eight years ago.

Lloyd Love, Ferriday attorney and acitve civic worker, has been a strong candidate in the race. D. L. Nelson, Lake St. John planter, is the fourth candidate.

MADISON

No opposition has been offered for the representative from Madison parish.

TENSAS

Rep. Carroll Seaman in Tensas parish is opposed by S. S. DeWitt, a Newellton farmer. Seaman is finishing up his fourth term in office. The race has been considered relatively quiet.

EAST CARROLL

East Carroll parish Rep. Vail Delony, with 20-years of service in the House of Representatives, is opposed by L. T. Clarkson.

This is the second time Delony has been opposed for the office, and local sources predicted a fairly easy victory for him.

Clarkson owns a grocery store at Lake Providence and has interests in farming.

WEST CARROLL

Next door, in West Carroll parish, it's a three-man race for the representative title. The scene is reminiscent of four years ago, with Rep. Spencer Myrick opposed by Lonnie Richmond, and J. T. Borden, a Pioneer farmer.

JACKSON

Jackson parish Rep. I. J. Allen has four opponents: Louie C. Boss, Marvin T. Culpepper, Newt Kavanaugh and Albert Smedley.

Allen, a long-time representative, has been termed, "awfully strong." Boss, a Jonesboro gasoline distributor and former president of the Policy Jury, has been favored as a possible strong candidate in the pre-election weeks.

CALDWELL

Another representative with four opponents is Rep. W. C. Steen Jr. of Kelly in Caldwell Parish.

In Long country, and a Long supporter, Steen has served one term in office. Observers saw two of his opponents as potential strong men: V. E. Claunch of Grayson, former state representative, and David M. Gartman, Columbia auto dealer.

Emmett Lee Brown, Grayson salesman and V. B. (Goober) Laird, Kelly farmer, also are seeking the state post.

LA SALLE

LaSalle parish's representative race has five candidates, including a former representative, an ex-Navy careerman and a preacher.

Incumbent Rep. T. H. Gaharan, Jena physician, is faced by opposition from Chester Floyd of Walters, Gove D. (Gumboots) Davis of Olla, Huey Aubrey Doughty, Jena and David C. Mayo, Urania.

Floyd, School Board president, has been seen as Gaharan's strongest opponent. However, Davis has served in both the House and Senate, and was a candidate for U.S. Congress.

Doughty served 20 years in the Navy and Mayo is a preacher.

Seven candidates are seeking the representative's seat in Winn parish, known as the hotbed of Louisiana politics.

Edd Tullos, cattleman-farmer, has been seen as a strong candidate in the Winn race. He made a good showing in a previous representative's race, but did not place in the second primary.

Other hopefuls in Winn are: Prentice Ferguson Atlanta school teacher; Bowman Melton, cattleman - farmer; Carthal Payne, Dodson merchant and past mayor; D. E. Sikes, past Winn school superintendent and now a board member; P. K. Smith, auto salesman and cattleman; and Don Thornton, Winnfield attorney.

6 Tigers On All-Twin Cities

Bates, Cage, Cox Unanimous Picks

Neville's unbeaten state semi-finalists placed six players, two of them unanimous choices, on the 1959 All-Twin Cities football team announced today.

The team is selected by Monroe and West Monroe coaches, sports writers and sportscasters and sponsored by the Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Bill Ruple, veteran coach at Neville, was named the Coach Of The Year in the poll, marking the second straight year the city school mentor has been so honored.

Ouachita, which dominated the team last year with six players, contributed two this year, including another unanimous selection, all - purpose end Ervin Bates, and West Monroe three gridders.

Bates and West Monroe's Jimmy Van Zile are the all-star ends, Mickey Cox of Neville and West Monroe and James Hunt of Neville the guards and Neville's Lucian Branch the center.

Neville produced three-fourths of the backfield, Joe Turner, Joe Cage and Devone Payne while Ouachita was represented by workhorse fullback Woody Mahoney.

Cox and Cage, in addition to Bates, were unanimous selections.

All the players are seniors except Van Zile and Harris, both juniors. Only one — Cage— is a repeater from the 1958 eleven. Last year's choice at center, Ouachita's R. W. Kimball, failed to repeat.

Last year Ruple was chosen Coach of the Year for piloting a team overloaded with sophomores and juniors into the state finals. This year the Neville tutor got the nod again for producing one of Monroe's finest football teams, an outfit that rolled over nine regular season foes with ease and crushed Minden, 28-6, in its opening playoff.

Ruple has been head coach at Neville since 1945 and has produced five district champions, one team that tied for the district crown, and one state champion eleven.

Bates, a fullback last year, played offensive end, defensive halfback and did the punting for Bob Ellen's district 1-AAA runnersup this year. One of the fastest and best punt return men in the district, Bates handled the other end of punts pretty well also, particularly in Ouachita's 0-0 tie with West Monroe when he punted a wet ball 15 times for an average of 33.7 yards despite having one blocked. In the Bossier game, Bates booted five punts for a sparkling 41.6 average and returned one Bossier boot 31 yards, shaking off about half a dozen tackles before finally being pushed out of bounds on the Bossier 10.

Van Zile earned his first letter at West Monroe with an outstanding performance. A transfer from Ruston, the Rebel flankman settled down after some rough moments in early games to be West Monroe's top scorer with 30 points, pulling in Ronnie Farmer passes for five touchdowns.

Van Zile's last touchdown reception was probably his most spectacular. The 165-pound flankman took a 23-yard toss from quarterback Farmer in the final game against Ruston on the Ruston 45 and outdistanced defenders for a touchdown.

Cox was one of the most spectacular lineman the Twin Cities have produced in years. A 225-pounder with backfield speed, Cox often pulled out of the line to lead interference and there are few more awesome sights in Louisiana high school football than the big tackle bearing down on would-be tacklers.

On defense, Cox was the main reason for Neville's brilliant defensive record, a mobile linebacker seldom fooled and seldom avoided.

Bell, a chunky 185-pounder, was a standout in the West Monroe line all season. Quick and aggressive, Bell was a two-way star, a hard-hitting offensive lineman who rarely failed to open a hole and a tough man to move on defense.

A letter-winner as a second stringer last year, Bell came along fast this season to develop into one of district 1-AAA's top forwards.

Bell's teammate, guard Jerry Harris, won his slot by one vote over Neville's Robert Turner in the closest battle for a first team position on the All-Twin Cities team. Not even expected to be a starter in August, Green came along fast to earn both a starting job with the Rebels and recognition as one of the Twin Cities' better linemen.

Not a big man at 5-11 and 160 pounds, Harris made up for his lack of size with speed and aggressiveness and, only a junior, was still improving at season's end.

Hunt is the team's smallest lineman at 145 pounds. Fully recovered from leg injuries that sidelined him late last season, the Neville lineman turned in a season-long fiery brand of guard play that stamped him as one of the top reasons for Neville's great success this season.

Hunt made 35 tackles from his interior line position during the regular season and was always outstanding on offense.

Branch earned the not at center over West Monroe's Butch Lobrano by four points in another close battle. Five points were awarded for a first-team vote and three for a second-team nomination.

A compact 180-pounder, Branch was credited with 59 tackles during the nine-game regular season, second only to Cox, and was considered one of the better blockers on the squad.

Turner, Neville's stringbean quarterback, was not one of the season's busier passers simply because he didn't need to be with runners like Cage, Payne and Neal Gunn around. He was, however, one of the best throwers around when he had to be and a Houdini at ball handling.

As a runner, he had the best average gain per carry of any regular Neville back, picking up 236 yards, mostly on wide end sweeps, during the regular season for a terrific 11.8-yard average. Very fast, he reeled off runs of 61 and 42 yards in Neville's playoff with Minden.

Cage continued the same type of play that earned him all-Twin Cities honors last year. A genuine triple threat, the 185-pounder gained 712 yards in nine games and was one of the best punters in north Louisiana.

An accurate place kicker, Cage was second in district 2-AA scoring with 94 points, scoring 11 touchdowns and booting 28 extra points.

Payne, son of one of Louisiana College's greatest backs, averaged 6.1 yards per carry as the Neville fullback and earned praise as a linebacker and blocker, making 33 tackles and delivering 18 key blocks.

Payne scored five touchdowns and was considered by some as the best college backfield prospect on the Neville squad.

Mahoney was never spectacular for Ouachita, just a steady workhorse who made the yards when they counted. Practically always good for the key yardage on third down, the 160-pounder scored four touchdowns for the Lions.

Turning in one of his best performances against Byrd. Mahoney scored both touchdowns in the 12-0 game on one-yard smashes. On defense, Mahoney was just as outstanding, turning in one of his better games against West Monroe despite a pair of weak ankles.

Tech Defeats SWT Five By 56-42 Score

RUSTON, La. (Special) — Louisiana Tech turned on the power in the second half to break up a close contest and defeat Southwest Texas, 56-42, here last night. It was Tech's second straight win.

The Bulldogs led by three points, 25-22, at halftime but they roared back to sink 11 points in the second half before the Texans could hit a basket. The Bulldogs led from nine to 16 points during the final half.

Jack Moreland led Tech in both shooting and rebounding with 21 points and 26 rebounds. Tech's stout defense held the visitors' Little All-America Charles Sharp to three field goals but he managed to sink 11 of 13 free throws for 17 points.

Powerful Syracuse Mauls UCLA To Finish Unbeaten

By ALEX KAHN

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Syracuse completed its first perfect season of football in 17 years Saturday for the national championship by defeating a stubborn UCLA squad 36-8, before 46,436 fans here and a national TV audience.

The victory was a final reward of the regular season for Syracuse coach Ben Schwartzwalder who earlier in the day was named Coach of the Year by his fellow coaches in the annual poll.

Syracuse, coming West from freezing New York, had to battle 80-degree weather on the floor of the Coliseum but amazed the crowd with its hard - charging backs, led by Art Baker, Ernie Davis, Gerhard Schwedes and Dick Easterly, as well as a defense that completely nullified UCLA's running attack, with a minus-13 yards rushing.

Although the "Fearsome Foursome" Syracuse backfield performed as expected, sophomore quarterback Easterly was an unexpected star with his passing and running in relief of Dave Sarette. Easterly passed for two scores and ran for a third.

Schwartzwalder used his second unit more than his first in an effort to combat the heat. It worked against the heat but failed to affect the scoring.

The big Orange machine demonstrated its power the first time it got the ball with a 43-yard scoring drive after a pass interception. Syracuse drove smoothly to the six where Sarette passed to Schwedes for the score.

Schwartzwalder then put in his second unit with Easterly at the helm and it clicked off 72 yards, with Easterly handing to halfback Mark Weber for 15 yards for the second score.

The second unit made it 21-0 in the second period by rolling 56 yards in 12 plays, with Easterly carrying the final yard to score.

UCLA tailback Bill Kilmer, who didn't get in for the entire first period, took over in the second quarter. The first time he clicked on his passing, then took the Bruins to the Orange 18 only to lose the ball on downs.

And in the final minute he completed three passes to move from the UCLA 44 for a touchdown. Halfback Jim Johnson, who ran the kickoff back 44 yards, grabbed a 20-yard scoring pass. The Bruins then had Skip Smith rush over the two-point conversion to cut the Syracuse halftime lead to 13 points.

Held scoreless in a third-period kicking duel, Syracuse came back in the final period for two touchdowns. It drove 81 yards on five plays with Schwedes contributing a 40-yard spurt and 20-yard dash around end to score.

Easterly then took over again and sent the Orange 74 yards in seven plays, passing six yards to Weber to score.

Behind the "Sizeable Seven" linemen, Syracuse backs rushed for 354 yards and passed for 106 for a total of 460 yards. UCLA had 159 yards passing and a total net yardage of 146.

UCLA — Johnson 20 pass from Kilmer (S. Smith run).

PAUL MARTIN LOOKS 'EM OVER

Game officials at many athletic contests must have more than a knowledge of the sport they are running to stand the abuses often piled upon them by fans who know less of the rules of the game but choose the officials to blame when things go wrong for their team.

T. H. Waters, commissioner of the Louisiana High School Athletic Association, has released his list of high school basketball officials for all areas of the state. A check of the grades of these officials show basketball experts are at their best in the northeast Louisiana area, so next time you're inclined to ridicule a game official just remember it could be worse somewhere else.

Only in the Monroe area will you find a basketball official who has scored a perfect "100" in the open book tests given almost 700 game officials throughout the state. Monroe boasts eight in the 100 class, and also claims the highest score in the supervised test, a 94. It takes a 70 to pass, and only two of 61 Monroe area applicants missed out in the supervised tests last year. Such tests were in progress again within the week.

Figures by areas show number of registered officials, best open book test grades and best supervised grade:

Alexandria, 53, 97.3, 89; Baton Rouge, 76, 98, 92; Crowley, 24, 99.3, 84.7; DeRidder, 15, 95, 76.7; Ferriday, 18; 99.3, 84.7; Franklin, 28, 95.3, 81.3; Hammond, 38, 98.7, 92.7; Lafayette, 54, 96, 78.7; Lake Charles, 31, 98.7, 86.7; Minden, 20, 93.3, 82.7; Monroe, 61, 100, 94; Natchitoches, 53, 96.7, 83.7; New Orleans, 85, 99.3, 81.3; Opelousas, 36, 98, 90.7; Ruston, 32, 99.3, 95.3; Shreveport, 44, 96, 87.3; and Thibodaux, 30, 98, 82.

As noted, areawise, Ruston and Ferriday also rank high on the list.

Approved officials have been registered two or more years, make at least 80 on supervised tests, and attend annual state rules clinic. Registered officials make at least 70 on the supervised test.

Approved officials of the Monroe-Ruston-Ferriday area are Dennis Carroll, Donnie Easterling, Bob Ellen, and C. J. CLINCH TITLE TIE

Colts Take 34-14 Win Over 49ers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Baltimore quarterback Johnny Unitas threw three touchdown passes and scored another on a run Saturday as the Colts whipped San Francisco 34-14 and broke a first place tie with the 49ers in the National Football League's Western Conference.

The convincing victory, engineered as much by the defense as by the offense, clinched at least a title tie in the West for the defending NFL champions. The Colts can win the crown by beating the Rams in Los Angeles next Saturday.

Unitas brought his total TD passes for the season to 29, breaking Sid Luckman's record. Luckman, of the Chicago Bears, connected for 28 in 1943 when the NFL played a 10-game schedule.

Unitas threw two touchdown passes to end Ray Berry, the league's leading receiver. One went seven years and the other 13. He also connected with swift halfback Lenny Moore on a 64-yard scoring pass play and tallied himself on a 12-yard run.

STATISTICS	COLTS	49ERS
First downs	25	13
Rushing yardage	135	113
Passing yardage	260	139
Passes	21-36	14-27
Passes intercepted by	6	6
Punts	5-44	3-43
Fumbles lost	1	0
Yards penalized	80	30

The Colts grabbed off six San Francisco passes during the afternoon. Two of the interceptions were turned into touchdowns.

San Francisco trailed just 14-7 at the half, thanks to a 66-yard burst off tackle by J.D. Smith. The 49ers' other touchdown came after injured quarterback Y. A. Tittle entered the game late in the third quarter. He engineered a 71-yard drive and threw a 21-yard scoring pass to Hugh McElhenny early in the fourth. Tommy Davis kicked both conversions.

That put the count at 20-14.

Baltimore had one more scoring punch—the Unitas to Moore pass.

Throughout the afternoon, the Colts defenders put pressure on San Francisco quarterbacks, starter John Brodie and Tittle. Y. A. was still troubled by a right knee injury suffered in a the Nov. 22 loss to the Colts in Baltimore.

Woman Set To Bowl For Charity Here

The Monroe Women's Bowling Association, consisting of women bowlers from Monroe and Bastrop, will conduct a charity tournament at the local bowling center beginning today.

The tournament will run through Saturday, Dec. 12, and will be held in conjunction with regular league bowling.

An entry fee of $1.00 per person or $5.00 per team will be charged. Teams may enter as many times as they wish.

Entire proceeds of the tournament will go to the local Cerebral Palsy School.

Handicaps for the tourney will be based on 80 per cent of individual average and 200 with trophies to be awarded to the winning team.

6 Tigers On All-Twin Cities

Bates, Cage, Cox Unanimous Picks

Neville's unbeaten state semi-finalists placed six players, two of them unanimous choices, on the 1959 All-Twin Cities football team announced today.

The team is selected by Monroe and West Monroe coaches, sports writers and sportscasters and sponsored by the Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Bill Ruple, veteran coach at Neville, was named the Coach Of The Year in the poll, marking the second straight year the city school mentor has been so honored.

Ouachita, which dominated the team last year with six players, contributed two this year, including another unanimous selection, all - purpose end Ervin Bates, and West Monroe three gridders.

Bates and West Monroe's Jimmy Van Zile are the all-star ends, Mickey Cox of Neville and West Monroe and James Hunt of Neville the guards and Neville's Lucian Branch the center.

Neville produced three-fourths of the backfield, Joe Turner, Joe Cage and Devone Payne while Ouachita was represented by workhorse fullback Woody Mahoney.

Cox and Cage, in addition to Bates, were unanimous selections.

All the players are seniors except Van Zile and Harris, both juniors. Only one — Cage— is a repeater from the 1958 eleven. Last year's choice at center, Ouachita's R. W. Kimball, failed to repeat.

Last year Ruple was chosen Coach of the Year for piloting a team overloaded with sophomores and juniors into the state finals. This year the Neville tutor got the nod again for producing one of Monroe's finest football teams, an outfit that rolled over nine regular season foes with ease and crushed Minden, 28-6, in its opening playoff.

Ruple has been head coach at Neville since 1945 and has produced five district champions, one team that tied for the district crown, and one state champion eleven.

Bates, a fullback last year, played offensive end, defensive halfback and did the punting for Bob Ellen's district 1-AAA runnersup this year. One of the fastest and best punt return men in the district, Bates handled the other end of punts pretty well also, particularly in Ouachita's 0-0 tie with West Monroe when he punted a wet ball 15 times for an average of 33.7 yards despite having one blocked. In the Bossier game, Bates booted five punts for a sparkling 41.6 average and returned one Bossier boot 31 yards, shaking off about half a dozen tackles before finally being pushed out of bounds on the Bossier 10.

Van Zile earned his first letter at West Monroe with an outstanding performance. A transfer from Ruston, the Rebel flankman settled down after some rough moments in early games to be West Monroe's top scorer with 30 points, pulling in Ronnie Farmer passes for five touchdowns.

Van Zile's last touchdown reception was probably his most spectacular. The 165-pound flankman took a 23-yard toss from quarterback Farmer in the final game against Ruston on the Ruston 45 and outdistanced defenders for a touchdown.

Cox was one of the most spectacular lineman the Twin Cities have produced in years. A 225-pounder with backfield speed, Cox often pulled out of the line to lead interference and there are few more awesome sights in Louisiana high school football than the big tackle bearing down on would-be tacklers.

On defense, Cox was the main reason for Neville's brilliant defensive record, a mobile linebacker seldom fooled and seldom avoided.

Bell, a chunky 185-pounder, was a standout in the West Monroe line all season. Quick and aggressive, Bell was a two-way star, a hard-hitting offensive lineman who rarely failed to open a hole and a tough man to move on defense.

A letter-winner as a second stringer last year, Bell came along fast this season to develop into one of district 1-AAA's top forwards.

Bell's teammate, guard Jerry Harris, won his slot by one vote over Neville's Robert Turner in the closest battle for a first team position on the All-Twin Cities team. Not even expected to be a starter in August, Green came along fast to earn both a starting job with the Rebels and recognition as one of the Twin Cities' better linemen.

Not a big man at 5-11 and 160 pounds, Harris made up for his lack of size with speed and aggressiveness and, only a junior, was still improving at season's end.

Hunt is the team's smallest lineman at 145 pounds. Fully recovered from leg injuries that sidelined him late last season, the Neville lineman turned in a season-long fiery brand of guard play that stamped him as one of the top reasons for Neville's great success this season.

Hunt made 35 tackles from his interior line position during the regular season and was always outstanding on offense.

Branch earned the not at center over West Monroe's Butch Lobrano by four points in another close battle. Five points were awarded for a first-team vote and three for a second-team nomination.

A compact 180-pounder, Branch was credited with 59 tackles during the nine-game regular season, second only to Cox, and was considered one of the better blockers on the squad.

Turner, Neville's stringbean quarterback, was not one of the season's busier passers simply because he didn't need to be with runners like Cage, Payne and Neal Gunn around. He was, however, one of the best throwers around when he had to be and a Houdini at ball handling.

As a runner, he had the best average gain per carry of any regular Neville back, picking up 236 yards, mostly on wide end sweeps, during the regular season for a terrific 11.8-yard average. Very fast, he reeled off runs of 61 and 42 yards in Neville's playoff with Minden.

Cage continued the same type of play that earned him all-Twin Cities honors last year. A genuine triple threat, the 185-pounder gained 712 yards in nine games and was one of the best punters in north Louisiana.

An accurate place kicker, Cage was second in district 2-AA scoring with 94 points, scoring 11 touchdowns and booting 28 extra points.

Payne, son of one of Louisiana College's greatest backs, averaged 6.1 yards per carry as the Neville fullback and earned praise as a linebacker and blocker, making 33 tackles and delivering 18 key blocks.

Payne scored five touchdowns and was considered by some as the best college backfield prospect on the Neville squad.

Mahoney was never spectacular for Ouachita, just a steady workhorse who made the yards when they counted. Practically always good for the key yardage on third down, the 160-pounder scored four touchdowns for the Lions.

Turning in one of his best performances against Byrd, Mahoney scored both touchdowns in the 12-0 game on one-yard smashes. On defense, Mahoney was just as outstanding, turning in one of his better games against West Monroe despite a pair of weak ankles.

Lou Bravo was chairman of the Jaycee All-Twin Cities selection committee.

Tech Defeats SWT Five By 56-42 Score

RUSTON, La. (Special) — Louisiana Tech turned on the power in the second half to break up a close contest and defeat Southwest Texas, 56-42, here last night. It was Tech's second straight win.

The Bulldogs led by three points, 25-22, at halftime but they roared back to sink 11 points in the second half before the Texans could hit a basket. The Bulldogs led from nine to 16 points during the final half.

Jack Moreland led Tech in both shooting and rebounding with 21 points and 26 rebounds. Tech's stout defense held the visitors' Little All-America Charles Sharp to three field goals but he managed to sink 11 of 13 free throws for 17 points.

Powerful Syracuse Mauls UCLA To Finish Unbeaten

By ALEX KAHN

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Syracuse completed its first perfect season of football in 17 years Saturday for the national championship by defeating a stubborn UCLA squad 36-8, before 46,436 fans here and a national TV audience.

The victory was a final reward of the regular season for Syracuse coach Ben Schwartzwalder who earlier in the day was named Coach of the Year by his fellow coaches in the annual poll.

Syracuse, coming West from freezing New York, had to battle 80-degree weather on the floor of the Coliseum but amazed the crowd with its hard - charging backs, led by Art Baker, Ernie Davis, Gerhard Schwedes and Dick Easterly, as well as a defense that completely nullified UCLA's running attack, with a minus-13 yards rushing.

Although the "Fearsome Foursome" Syracuse backfield performed as expected, sophomore quarterback Easterly was an unexpected star with his passing and running in relief of Dave Sarette. Easterly passed for two scores and ran for a third.

Schwartzwalder used his second unit more than his first in an effort to combat the heat. It worked against the heat but failed to affect the scoring.

The big Orange machine demonstrated its power the first time it got the ball with a 43-yard scoring drive after a pass interception. Syracuse drove smoothly to the six where Sarette passed to Schwedes for the score.

Schwartzwalder then put in his second unit with Easterly at the helm and it clicked off 72 yards, with Easterly handing to halfback Mark Weber for 15 yards for the second score.

The second unit made it 21-0 in the second period by rolling 56 yards in 12 plays, with Easterly carrying the final yard to score.

UCLA tailback Bill Kilmer, who didn't get in for the entire first period, took over in the second quarter. The first time he clicked on his passing, then took the Bruins to the Orange 18 only to lose the ball on downs.

And in the final minute he completed three passes to move from the UCLA 44 for a touchdown. Halfback Jim Johnson, who ran the kickoff back 44 yards, grabbed a 20-yard scoring pass. The Bruins then had Skip Smith rush over the two-point conversion to cut the Syracuse halftime lead to 13 points.

Held scoreless in a third-period kicking duel, Syracuse came back in the final period for two touchdowns. It drove 81 yards on five plays with Schwedes contributing a 40-yard spurt, and 20-yard dash around end to score.

Easterly then took over again and sent the Orange 74 yards in seven plays, passing six yards to Weber to score.

Behind the "Sizeable Seven" linemen, Syracuse backs rushed for 354 yards and passed for 106 for a total of 460 yards. UCLA had 159 yards passing and a total net yardage of 146.

Score by Periods

UCLA	0	8	0	0	— 8
Syracuse	14	7	0	15	—36

Scoring summary:

Syracuse — Schwedes 6 pass from Sarette (Yates kick); Weber 15 pass from Easterly (Gerlick kick); Easterly 1 run (Yates kick); Schwedes 23 run (Gilburg pass from Sarette); Weber 6 pass from Easterly (Gerlick kick).

UCLA — Johnson 20 pass from Kilmer (S. Smith run).

Woman Set To Bowl For Charity Here

The Monroe Women's Bowling Association, consisting of women bowlers from Monroe and Bastrop, will conduct a charity tournament at the local bowling center beginning today.

The tournament will run through Saturday, Dec. 12, and will be held in conjunction with regular league bowling.

An entry fee of $1.00 per person or $5.00 per team will be charged. Teams may enter as many times as they wish.

Entire proceeds of the tournament will go to the local Cerebral Palsy School.

Handicaps for the tourney will be based on 80 per cent of individual average and 200 with trophies to be awarded to the winning team.

PAUL MARTIN LOOKS 'EM OVER

Game officials at many athletic contests must have more than a knowledge of the sport they are running to stand the abuses often piled upon them by fans who know less of the rules of the game but choose the officials to blame when things go wrong for their team.

T. H. Waters, commissioner of the Louisiana High School Athletic Association, has released his list of high school basketball officials for all areas of the state. A check of the grades of these officials show basketball experts are at their best in the northeast Louisiana area, so next time you're inclined to ridicule a game official just remember it could be worse somewhere else.

Only in the Monroe area will you find a basketball official who has scored a perfect "100" in the open book tests given almost 700 game officials throughout the state. Monroe boasts eight in the 100 class, and also claims the highest score in the supervised test, a 94. It takes a 70 to pass, and only two of 61 Monroe area applicants missed out in the supervised tests last year. Such tests were in progress again within the week.

Figures by areas show number of registered officials, best open book test grades and best supervised grade:

Alexandria, 53, 97.3, 89; Baton Rouge, 76, 98, 92; Crowley, 24, 99.3, 84.7; DeRidder, 15, 95, 76.7; Ferriday, 18; 99.3, 84.7; Franklin, 28, 95.3, 81.3; Hammond, 38, 98.7, 92.7; Lafayette, 54, 96, 78.7; Lake Charles, 31, 98.7, 86.7; Minden, 20, 93.3, 82.7; Monroe, 61, 100, 94; Natchitoches, 53, 96.7, 83.7; New Orleans, 85, 99.3, 81.3; Opelousas, 36, 98, 90.7; Ruston, 32, 99.3, 95.3; Shreveport, 44, 96, 87.3; and Thibodaux, 30, 98, 82.

As noted, areawise, Ruston and Ferriday also rank high on the list.

Approved officials have been registered two or more years, make at least 80 on supervised tests, and attend annual state rules clinic. Registered officials make at least 70 on the supervised test.

Approved officials of the Monroe-Ruston-Ferriday area are Dennis Carroll, Donnie Easterling, Bob Ellen, and C. J. Fontana, Monroe; Orville Elkin, Winnsboro; Harry Morton, Tallulah; Gene Roswell, Sterlington; C. E. Satterfield, Mer Rouge; Floyd Taylor, Delhi; E. W. Walker, Jonesville; and C. A. Bowlin, Randall Brumfield, and John Nix, Natchez.

CLINCH TITLE TIE

Colts Take 34-14 Win Over 49ers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Baltimore quarterback Johnny Unitas threw three touchdown passes and scored another on a run Saturday as the Colts whipped San Francisco 34-14 and broke a first place tie with the 49ers in the National Football League's Western Conference.

The convincing victory, engineered as much by the defense as by the offense, clinched at least a title tie in the West for the defending NFL champions. The Colts can win the crown by beating the Rams in Los Angeles next Saturday.

Unitas brought his total TD passes for the season to 29, breaking Sid Luckman's record. Luckman, of the Chicago Bears, connected for 28 in 1943 when the NFL played a 10-game schedule.

Unitas threw two touchdown passes to end Ray Berry, the league's leading receiver. One went seven years and the other 13. He also connected with swift halfback Lenny Moore on a 64-yard scoring pass play and tallied himself on a 12-yard run.

STATISTICS

	COLTS	49ERS
First downs	23	13
Rushing yardage	135	113
Passing yardage	260	139
Passes	21-36	14-27
Passes intercepted by	6	0
Punts	3-44	8-43
Fumbles lost	1	0
Yards penalized	30	30

The Colts grabbed off six San Francisco passes during the afternoon. Two of the interceptions were turned into touchdowns.

San Francisco trailed just 14-7 at the half, thanks to a 66-yard burst off tackle by J.D. Smith. The 49ers' other touchdown came after injured quarterback Y. A. Tittle entered the game late in the third quarter. He engineered a 71-yard drive and threw a 21-yard scoring pass to Hugh McElhenny early in the fourth. Tommy Davis kicked both conversions.

That put the count at 20-14.

Baltimore had one more scoring punch—the Unitas to Moore pass.

Throughout the afternoon, the Colts defenders put pressure on San Francisco quarterbacks, starter John Brodie and Tittle. Y. A. was still troubled by a right knee injury suffered in a the Nov. 22 loss to the Colts in Baltimore.

Cannon Named Top Player For Second Straight Year

By JOHN GRIFFIN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bustling Billy Cannon, the powerful predental student who drills holes in enemy lines, Saturday was named college football's "player of the year" for the second straight year in the annual poll of United Press International.

The Louisiana State star, who captured the honor as a junior last year by a narrow margin over Army's Pete Dawkins, romped to victory this time in the nationwide balloting by 839 sports writers and broadcasters. Cannon received 151 first - place votes.

Richie Lucas, Penn State's all-purpose quarterback, was a distant second with 48 votes and Billy Burrell, Illinois' guard, was third with 18 votes.

Other leading vote getters included Bob Schloredt of Washington and Fran Curci of Miami (Fla. with eight votes each, Charley Flowers of Mississippi and Dale Hackbart of Wisconsin with seven, and Jim Houston of Ohio State, Mike McKeever of Southern California, and Roger Davis of Syracuse with six each. The remaining 74 votes were scattered among 38 players.

Cannon, who earlier topped balloting for the United Press International All-America team, has one more college game to play when he leads LSU against Mississippi in the Sugar Bowl on New Year's Day. His 89 - yard runback of a punt for a fourth-period touchdown beat Mississippi 7-3, in one of the most dramatic games of the regular 1959 season.

The pros ratified Cannon's standing as the No. 1 player by making him the No. 1 choice in the drafts of both the old National Football League and the new American Football League. Cannon has announced he'll sign with the Los Angeles Rams of the AFL after the Sugar Bowl game.

Cannon, married and the father of three daughters, compiled an impressive statistical record during his final season for LSU.

Lugging the ball 139 times for a total of 598 yards, he averaged 4.3 yards per carry — slightly below his college career average of 5.1 yards per carry. He averaged 40.3 yards for 44 punts, returned four intercepted passes for 145 yards, and scored seven touchdowns for 42 points. During three varsity seasons he scored 24 touchdowns for 154 points.

But figures don't tell the whole story of Cannon's value to the Bayou Tigers whom he led through an undefeated season in 1958 and a one-defeat season in 1959.

Although teammate Johnny Robinson, also a high, pro draft choice, gained respect as a dangerous runner, Cannon was the man called on by LSU for the big play when it was needed. About the only time he failed was in the lone loss to Tennessee when everybody in the stadium knew Cannon would be carrying on a two-point conversion try that meant the game and still it took almost the entire Vol line to drag him down, inches short of the goal line.

7 Fatalities On Prep Gridirons In 1959 Season

CHICAGO (AP) — Seven high school football fatalities were reported throughout the nation during the 1959 season.

The figure was the lowest since the beginning of records in 1946.

About 720,000 boys participated in high school football during the season. Six of the fatalities occured during practice sessions. One came during an interscholastic game.

All of the boys were certified as physically fit to participate in football before the season opened.

The official report is compiled by the National Federation of State High School Athletic Association's Safety Subcommittee.

WELL-BALANCED

Three Teams Put Three On District 2-B All-Stars

By BOB ANDERSON
Monroe Morning World
(Written for La. Sports Writers Assn.)

District 2-B is a well-balanced little football circuit. If you don't believe it, take a look at the 1960 all-district team selected by the league's five coaches in co-operation with the Louisiana Sports Writers Association.

Mangham, Lake Providence and Columbia placed three men on the mythical team, Holly Ridge two and Southside, usually left out on the all-district eleven, one. A tie in the backfield gave the team 12 players.

Mangham and Lake Providence tied for the district championship with Mangham winning the playoff 7-0. Columbia and Holly Ridge were one game behind the leaders with 2-2 records and Southside had a 0-4 mark.

Noble Ellington Mangham's fine all-purpose back, was the only unanimous choice. He was joined in the backfield by teammate Donald Adams, Lake Providence's Gene Edmondson and Bill Burton and Columbia's Butch Darden.

Darden, Burton and Adams tied in the backfield balloting, giving the team five backs.

Earl Oliveaux of Mangham, a third-team all-state choice last year, and Southside's Steve Economu are the all-star ends, Wayne Taunton of Holly Ridge and Douglas Crockett of Columbia the tackles, Leon Overby of Lake Providence the guards and Holly Ridge's Rayford Ogles the center.

Oliveaux, Overby, Taunton and Ellington are repeaters from last year's team. Taunton was a guard last season. Another 1958 all-district selection, Mangham's Jerry Smith, dropped to the honorable mention list.

Burton moved up from the 1958 second team.

Ellington, a 135-pound senior, was Mangham's top scorer and third in the district with 50 points. The versative back played all of the backfield positions at one time or another.

Edmondson was a near-unanimous choice, receiving four first team votes and one second-team vote. He tied for the scoring title with 55 points and averaged 5.5 yards per carry in rushing.

Burton, despite missing three games because of injuries, gained 432 yards for a sparkling 6.9 average and averaged 23.3 yards on punt returns. One of the league's fastest backs, he won the conference 220 run last spring.

Darden was the second top scorer in the league with 53 points, his team's leading ground gainer, a good blocker and pass receiver and Columbia's second best defensive man in the estimation of his coach.

Oliveaux continued his great play for Mangham. Another versatile performer, the 168-pounder played tackle at times on a team that had one of the best defensive records in north Louisiana, limiting its last five foes to only 20 first downs and two touchdowns.

Economu was by far Southside's outstanding player and the first gridder from his school to make the all-district team since fullback Vernon Jones was chosen in 1954. He was the district scoring co-leader with 55 points and his team's defensive standout in every game.

Taunton took his shift from guard to tackle in stride. The all-star team's biggest member at 195 pounds, Taunton led Holly Ridge in individual tackles.

Crockett alternated between fullback and tackle for Columbia, scoring the touchdown that knocked Lake Providence out of the undisputed district title and going 50 yards with an intercepted lateral for another score. No touchdowns were scored over his defensive tackle position.

Overby was another lineman who got in the scoring column, returning punts for a 25.1 yard average and two touchdowns. Overby played linebacker and corner back on defense. The 180-pounder was considered one of the fastest linemen in the distrcit.

Columbia's Robert Stapleton was death on punters, blocking three attempted boots and returning one 60 yards for a touchdown.

The all-district team, selected by coaches James Turner of Columbia, Armed Matthews of Mangham, Jim Herrington of Lake Providence, Fred Lindsay of Southside and Graves C. Kennedy of Holly Ridge, is composed of nine seniors and three juniors.

The team was selected on a basis of two points for a first-team vote and one point for a second-team nomination.

Cannon Named Top Player For Second Straight Year

By JOHN GRIFFIN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bustling Billy Cannon, the powerful pre-dental student who drills holes in enemy lines, Saturday was named college football's "player of the year" for the second straight year in the annual poll of United Press International.

The Louisiana State star, who captured the honor as a junior last year by a narrow margin over Army's Pete Dawkins, romped to victory this time in the nationwide balloting by 839 sports writers and broadcasters. Cannon received 151 first-place votes.

Richie Lucas, Penn State's all-purpose quarterback, was a distant second with 48 votes and Billy Burrell, Illinois' guard, was third with 18 votes.

Other leading vote getters included Bob Schloredt of Washington and Fran Curci of Miami (Fla. with eight votes each, Charley Flowers of Mississippi and Dale Hackbart of Wisconsin with seven, and Jim Houston of Ohio State, Mike McKeever of Southern California, and Roger Davis of Syracuse with six each. The remaining 74 votes were scattered among 38 players.

Cannon, who earlier topped balloting for the United Press International All-America team, has one more college game to play when he leads LSU against Mississippi in the Sugar Bowl on New Year's Day. His 89-yard runback of a punt for a fourth-period touchdown beat Mississippi 7-3 in one of the most dramatic games of the regular 1959 season.

The pros ratified Cannon's standing as the No. 1 player by making him the No. 1 choice in the drafts of both the old National Football League and the new American Football League. Cannon has announced he'll sign with the Los Angeles Rams of the NFL after the Sugar Bowl game.

Cannon, married and the father of three daughters, compiled an impressive statistical record during his final season for LSU.

Lugging the ball 139 times for a total of 598 yards, he averaged 4.3 yards per carry — slightly below his college career average of 5.1 yards per carry. He averaged 40.3 yards for 44 punts, returned four intercepted passes for 145 yards, and scored seven touchdowns for 42 points. During three varsity seasons he scored 24 touchdowns for 154 points.

But figures don't tell the whole story of Cannon's value to the Bayou Tigers whom he led through an undefeated season in 1958 and a one-defeat season in 1959.

Although teammate Johnny Robinson, also a high, pro draft choice, gained respect as a dangerous runner, Cannon was the man called on by LSU for the big play when it was needed. About the only time he failed was in the lone loss to Tennessee when everybody in the stadium knew Cannon would be carrying on a two-point conversion try that meant the game, and still it took almost the entire Vol line to drag him down, inches short of the goal line.

7 Fatalities On Prep Gridirons In 1959 Season

CHICAGO (AP) — Seven high school football fatalities were reported throughout the nation during the 1959 season.

The figure was the lowest since the beginning of records in 1946.

About 720,000 boys participated in high school football during the season. Six of the fatalities occured during practice sessions. One came during an interscholastic game.

All of the boys were certified as physically fit to participate in football before the season opened.

The official report is compiled by the National Federation of State High School Athletic Association's Safety Subcommittee.

WELL-BALANCED

Three Teams Put Three On District 2-B All-Stars

By BOB ANDERSON
Monroe Morning World
(Written for La. Sports Writers Assn.)

District 2-B is a well-balanced little football circuit. If you don't believe it, take a look at the 1960 all-district team selected by the league's five coaches in co-operation with the Louisiana Sports Writers Association.

Mangham, Lake Providence and Columbia placed three men on the mythical team, Holly Ridge two and Southside, usually left out on the all-district eleven, one. A tie in the backfield gave the team 12 players.

Mangham and Lake Providence tied for the district championship with Mangham winning the playoff 7-0. Columbia and Holly Ridge were one game behind the leaders with 2-2 records and Southside had a 0-4 mark.

Noble Ellington Mangham's fine all-purpose back, was the only unanimous choice. He was joined in the backfield by teammate Donald Adams, Lake Providence's Gene Edmondson and Bill Burton and Columbia's Butch Darden.

Darden, Burton and Adams tied in the backfield balloting, giving the team five backs.

Earl Oliveaux of Mangham, a third-team all-state choice last year, and Southside's Steve Economu are the all-star ends, Wayne Taunton of Holly Ridge and Douglas Crockett of Columbia the tackles, Leon Overby, of Lake Providence the guards and Holly Ridge's Rayford Ogles the center.

Oliveaux, Overby, Taunton and Ellington are repeaters from last year's team. Taunton was a guard last season. Another 1958 all-district selection, Mangham's Jerry Smith, dropped to the honorable mention list.

Burton moved up from the 1958 second team.

Ellington, a 135-pound senior, was Mangham's top scorer and third in the district with 50 points. The versative back played all of the backfield positions at one time or another.

Edmondson was a near-unanimous choice, receiving four first team votes and one second-team vote. He tied for the scoring title with 55 points and averaged 5.5 yards per carry in rushing.

Burton, despite missing three games because of injuries, gained 432 yards for a sparkling 6.9 average and averaged 23.3 yards on punt returns. One of the league's fastest backs, he won the conference 220 run last spring.

Darden was the second top scorer in the league with 53 points, his team's leading ground gainer, a good blocker and pass receiver and Columbia's second best defensive man in the estimation of his coach.

Oliveaux continued his great play for Mangham. Another versatile performer, the 168-pounder played tackle at times on a team that had one of the best defensive records in north Louisiana, limiting its last five foes to only 20 first downs and two touchdowns.

Economu was by far Southside's outstanding player and the first gridder from his school to make the all-district team since fullback Vernon Jones was chosen in 1954. He was the district scoring co-leader with 55 points and his team's defensive standout in every game.

Taunton took his shift from guard to tackle in stride. The all-star team's biggest member at 195 pounds, Taunton led Holly Ridge in individual tackles.

Crockett alternated between fullback and tackle for Columbia, scoring the touchdown that knocked Lake Providence out of the undisputed district title and going 50 yards with an intercepted lateral for another score. No touchdowns were scored over his defensive tackle position.

Overby was another lineman who got in the scoring column, returning punts for a 25.1 yard average and two touchdowns. Overby played linebacker and corner back on defense. The 180-pounder was considered one of the fastest linemen in the district.

Columbia's Robert Stapleton was death on punters, blocking three attempted boots and returning one 60 yards for a touchdown.

The all-district team, selected by coaches James Turner of Columbia, Armed Matthews of Mangham, Jim Herrington of Lake Providence, Fred Lindsay of Southside and Graves C. Kennedy of Holly Ridge, is composed of nine seniors and three juniors.

The team was selected on a basis of two points for a first-team vote and one point for a second-team nomination.

TWO LIONS, ONE REBEL

Bossier Puts Four Players On 1-AAA All-Star Team

By BILL MCINTRYE
Shreveport Times
(Written for La. Sports Writers Assn.)

SHREVEPORT, La. — District champion Bossier, a 27-12 victim of Istrouma in the first round of the state AAA playoffs, gained a bid of solace last week by grabbing off four positions on the seventh annual district 1-AAA all-star squad.

The Bearkats, 6-5-1 for the 1959 season, picked up three line berths with tackle Robbie Hucklebridge, guard Richard Enis and center Archie Wilson and one backfield slot with halfback Bill McClung.

Ouachita of Monroe, second in the 1-AAA standings, and cellar-dwelling Bastrop, each placed two players while Byrd, Fair Park and West Monroe hauled in one position apiece.

Ouachita's twosome included quarterback Bobby Hendrix and end Ervin Bates; Bastrop landed guard Bobby Coston and halfback Jerry Hollis; Byrd was represented by tackle Billy Burns; Fair Park by halfback Billy Vice and West Monroe by end Jimmy Van Zile.

Hucklebridge, a late-blooming fullback in Bossier's last five games, was the team's only repeater from the 1958 eleven and also stood out as one of three unanimous choices.

The other unanimous choices were Bates and Vice.

Last year's all-district squad included two juniors and Hucklebridge and Bearkat teammate Thomas Harr, but Harr was edged out this season by Van Zile for the terminal position opposite Bates.

This year's all-star lineup boosts one distinction over its predecessors. In both 1957-58, a total of 12 players made the club. In 1959, the figure has been cut back to a regulation 11.

Voting on the all-star team were Bill Maxwell of Bossier, Bob Ellen of Ouachita, Lee Hedges of Byrd, Cecil Pirkey of West Monroe, Roy Wilson of Fair Park and Gene Derveloy of Bastrop.

Only first team ballots were tabulated.

The all - star backfield of Hendrix, Vice, McClung and Hollis —although not as overpowering as past 1-AAA secondaries — did boast the top four scorers in the district and each ball packer came up with impresisve statistics during the year.

Hendrix was the best ball handler at quarterback in the circuit and, in addition to his generalship and dexterity, he managed to pitch seven touchdown passes and wound up fourth in the scoring derby with 40 tallies. The Ouachita senior scored 40 points, including 20 in one mid-season exploit with Jonesboro and connected on 26 of 58 passes for 380 yards.

Vice, ushered into starring status when Paul Labenne was laid low by injuries, carried his workhorse chores with aplomb despite a season - long Fair Park slump. Vice whacked away at enemy lines 142 times came up with 598 yards for a 4.2 average per jaunt.

In addition, he nabbed 21 passes for 357 yards and amassed 54 points, second high in the district.

McClung was the key member of a racehorse corps at Bossier and his running antics were instrumental in shoving the Bearkats into the championship. Bantam Bill, who scored from 19 yards out against Istrouma Friday night, legged 1,043 yards on 169 carries during the regular campaign for a nifty 6.2 average and he also hauled in nine passes for 120 yards. In scoring, he placed third with 43 points.

Hollis, an underrated line cracker for the Rams, was the loop's leading point - maker with 90 points. Against Rayville alone he dashed for five touchdowns and he scored three times against both Jonesboro - Hodge and Fair Park.

Coupled with halfback partner Emmett Irby, Hollis gave Bastrop a tremendous one - two punch. Irby carried 96 times for 544 yards and Hollis 108 times for 602 yards.

On the terminals Bates and VanZile produced sparkling play. Bates, a second string fullback for Ouachita before being moved into the line, was easily the best defensive halfback in the circuit, as well as a super pass grabber and VanZile offset his lack of size with sticky fingers.

Bates caught three scoring passes for the Lions, and VanZile took in five six - point aerials from Rebel quarterback Ronnie Farmer. In addition to his offensive worth and defensive capabilities, Bates handled the punting duties for the Lions and averaged 41.5 on 43 boots.

Of Hucklebridge at tackle enough can't be said. The big Bossier blockbuster smeared anything thrown in his direction on defense and on the attack it was a stock play to send halfbacks over his slot. In Bossier's 8th game he was moved to fullback and in just four games he rammed for 403 yards and a couple of touchdowns. He added another against Istrouma in the playoffs.

Burns, a husky junior, was a major cog in Byrd's iron - clad defensive blockade. The Jacket frontier tossed shutouts at Bossier and Fair Park in 1-AAA skirmishes. And Burns, who outfought Hucklebridge in their only meeting, was dogged competitor.

Coston, one of two tremendous guards at Bastrop, and Enis were tops among a fistful of brilliant guardsmen in 1-AAA. Both of them were hard - pressed to edge out Byrd's Ray Burroughs, Bastrop's Leon Martin and Fair Park's Jimmy Little in the All-district polling.

Both Coston and Enis were guards on attack and corner linebackers on defense. They were both compact 180-pounders. Enis carried on a Bossier "All" guard tradition by succeeding ex-Bearkats Rupert Procell and Donald King on the all - district squad.

SEASON FINALE

Maryland Downs N. C. State, 33-28

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI)—Maryland, at home every time opportunity knocked, outlasted North Carolina State, 33-28, Saturday in the season finale for both Atlantic Coast Conference football teams.

The Terps jumped off to an early lead on three touchdown passes by Dale Betty, scored twice more by cashing in on breaks, andmanaged to stav ahead of a dangerous Wolfpack team that fought until the last second to stave off its ninth straight defeat.

In the end, it was old fashioned defensive football that brought Maryland its fifth victory in 10 starts. The Terps' fourth touchdown was set up when tackle Joe Gardi blocked Collice Moore's punt and recovered the ball on the State six. Fullback Jim Joyce, won the A.C.C. rushing crown today with 82 yards in 16 carries, scored on the next play with a six-yard rifle shot through guard.

Maryland's final score, which proved decisive, came late in the third period when State's fine sophomore quarterback, Roman Gabriel, tried to turn wide from his own six and was jolted into a fumble by guard Pete Boinis, who recovered on the seven. Two plays later, Betty went off tackle from the five — much to the annoyance of Wolfpack Coach Earle Edwards who just before the Gabriel fumble had been motioning his quarterback to kick out of danger.

The Terps won by getting an early jump on State and stayed ahead all afternoon. Betty hit Vince Scott, Hank Poniatowski and Ed Cloud on touchdown passes of two, 27 and 17 yards in the first half. Those tallies, plus a fourth six-pointer scored after the blocked punt gave Maryland a 26-14 lead at halftime.

Gabriel's deadly pitching gave the Terps fits all afternoon, the big youngster completing 23 out of 38 for 279 yards and tossing two touchdown passes.

State's first score came in the first period when a Maryland fumble gave the Wolfpack a shot from the Terp three, Gabriel himself wading over from the one. It was 7-7 at that point, but it turned out to be the closest the visitors ever got.

Berths Open For 3 Girls Teams In Calhoun Meet

CALHOUN, La. (Special) — Three berths are still open for girls' teams in the Calhoun cording to Calhoun Coach Jerry Lovett.

Lovett has lined up eight boys teams for the tourney and has five girls team slated to appear.

Calhoun said coaches interested in entering a girls team should contract him before noon Monday at either his home, phone 2842, or at the high school, phone 2341.

Boys teams entered are Ouachita, Neville, West Monroe, Farmerville, Chatham, Choudrant, Downsville and Calhoun. Girls teams are West Monroe, Ouachita, Neville, Farmerville and Calhoun.

Calhoun boys and girls will play at West Monroe Tuesday night.

Delta Takes 2nd Christmas Bowl Classic

NATCHITOCHES, La. (AP) — Delta State punched across three third period touchdowns to defeat East Central Oklahoma State 19-0 Saturday in the second annual Christmas Festival Bowl.

Halfback James Hubbard grabbed the second half kickoff and raced 95 yards to start the Mississippians' scoring. Two minutes later, the crowd of 5,000 saw halfback Billy Thomas rip off tackle into paydirt from the seven after Delta recovered a fumble on Oklahoma's 20.

Late in the third quarter, freshman quarterback Bob Brumfield ran five yards for a touchdown to cap a 62-yard march.

Delta State had a 8-1 season record, and was making its first appearance in a bowl game. Central Oklahoma had a 8-3 season mark.

10-Man Tag Scramble At B&B Arena

Something new — in the bulky form of a ton of bone and muscle — has been lined up for Monday night's wrestling card at the B&B Arena.

Ten grapplers who, according to promoter August Baumgartner, scale in at a total in excess of a ton, will collide in a mixed tag team donneybrook.

Four women and six men will participate in the melee, first of its kind here, whifh has no time limit and requires two falls to win.

Struggling to find standing room in one corner will be China Mira, Cecile Blevins, Jack Kennedy, Chris Belkas and state its kind here, which has no time Sharp. Opposing this quintet will be Nell Stewart, Olga Zapeda, "Two-Ton Tony," Firpo Zybysko and the Black Panther.

Two-Ton Tony, a 250-pound grunt 'n groaner from up Nebraska way, is the only newcomer in the group. Belkas, former heavyweight champion Mickey champion before Sharp grabbed the belt, will be making his first appearance here in a couple of months.

Two 15-minute preliminaries will precede the main event. Belkas will warm up against the Panther and Kennedy takes on Zybysko. Both prelims will be one-fall affairs.

Neville Plays Natchitoches Club At Ruston

Neville Principal Sidney Seegers announced today that next Friday night's state class AA semi-final playoff between Natchitoches and Neville will be held in Ruston's Tech Stadium at 8 o'clock.

Neville's bi-district playoff with Minden was also held in Ruston Nov. 27.

Seegers said there would be no broadcast of the game.

Tickets will be on sale for the contest at the Neville office Monday morning with box seats selling for $2.50, reserve seats for $2.00, adult general admission $1.50 and student tickets 75 cents. Student tickets will sell for $1.00 at the gate Friday night, Seegers said.

Natchitoches downed Eunice, 34-6, Friday night in its bi-district game. Natchitoches, like Neville, is unbeaten this season.

Phils, Tigers In Five-Player Deal

By JACK HAND

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies traded shortstop Chico Fernandez and pitcher Ray Semproch to Detroit Saturday in a five-player deal after trading catcher Carl Sawatski to St. Louis for outfielder Bobby Gene Smith.

After finishing a distant last in the National League last season, the Phils jumped head first into the trade mart of baseball's winter meeting.

Manager Eddie Sawyer and General Manager John Quinn indicated other veterans might follow.

The Tigers, who had been competing with Cleveland for Fernandez, gave up infielder Ted Lepcio and rookie outfielder Ken Walters from their big league roster and infielder Alex Cosmidis from their farm system.

Jimmy Dykes, in dire need of shortstop help, said Fernandez, a 27-year-old Cuban, has "all the equipment to play regularly every day."

Chico came to the Phils in 1957 from the then Brooklyn Dodgers organization for four players and $75,000. Last year he lost his job to Joe Koppe, acquired from Milwaukee, and languished on the bench most of the season. He hit .210 in 45 games.

Semproch, a 13-game winner as a rookie in 1958, flopped in 1959 when he won only three games and lost 10. The 28-year-old righthander is a low ball pitcher who specializes in the sinker and slider. Dykes counts on him as the "long man" in the bullpen behind his starting foursome of Frank Lary, Don Mossi, Jim Bunning and Paul Foytack.

Manager Eddie Sawyer of the Phillies said he plans an experiment with Lepcio, a .280 hitter with Boston and Detroit. Sawyer said he'll try Lepcio at third base, sending Gene Freese to the outfield.

Walters, a .291 hitter with 21 home runs and 92 runs batted in at Fort Worth, will get a try in the Phil outfield. He is only 26 and highly regarded as a fine fielder with a strong arm. Quinn said Walters was one of the main reasons for making the deal.

Cosmidis batted .249 at the Tigers' Charleston, W. Va., farm in the American Assn. He is on the Birmingham roster but probably will be shifted later in the Phils' Buffalo farm in the International League.

Smith, 25, has a good field-no hit reputation. He batted .217 in 43 games with St. Louis last season before he was shifted to Rochester in July. He hit .252 in the International League.

Asked if the addition of Smith and Walters, as well as Bobby Del Greco — purchased from Buffalo earlier—might mean the trading of a regular outfielder like Richie Ashburn, Sawyer said "we will trade any veterans if we can help ourselves."

Ouachita Opens Home Basketball Season Tuesday

Ouachita opens its home basketball season Tuesday night against cross-town rival St. Matthew's and hosts Ruston in a pair of Thursday night contests.

Girls and boys games will be played Tuesday night with the girls tilt starting at 7 o'clock and the boys game immediately after. Two boys games will be played with Ruston, first a "B" engagement and then a varsity clash.

Ouachita divided two regular season games with St. Matthew's boys last year. Coach H. H. Holliman's Ouachita team took a 44-43 verdict is the Ouachita gym and lost the game on the St. Matthew's floor.

TWO LIONS, ONE REBEL

Bossier Puts Four Players On 1-AAA All-Star Team

By BILL MCINTRYE
Shreveport Times
(Written for La. Sports Writers Assn.)

SHREVEPORT, La. — District champion Bossier, a 27-12 victim of Istrouma in the first round of the state AAA playoffs, gained a bid of solace last week by grabbing off four positions on the seventh annual district 1-AAA all-star squad.

The Bearkats, 6-5-1 for the 1959 season, picked up three line berths with tackle Robbie Hucklebridge, guard Richard Enis and center Archie Wilson and one backfield slot with halfback Bill McClung.

Ouachita of Monroe, second in the 1-AAA standings, and cellar-dwelling Bastrop, each placed two players while Byrd, Fair Park and West Monroe hauled in one position apiece.

Ouachita's twosome included quarterback Bobby Hendrix and end Ervin Bates; Bastrop landed guard Bobby Coston and halfback Jerry Hollis; Byrd was represented by tackle Billy Burns; Fair Park by halfback Billy Vice and West Monroe by end Jimmy Van Zile.

Hucklebridge, a late-blooming fullback in Bossier's last five games, was the team's only repeater from the 1958 eleven and also stood out as one of three unanimous choices.

The other unanimous choices were Bates and Vice.

Last year's all-district squad included two juniors and Hucklebridge and Bearkat teammate Thomas Harr, but Harr was edged out this season by Van Zile for the terminal position opposite Bates.

This year's all-star lineup boosts one distinction over its predecessors. In both 1957-58, a total of 12 players made the club. In 1959, the figure has been cut back to a regulation 11.

Voting on the all-star team were Bill Maxwell of Bossier, Bob Ellen of Ouachita, Lee Hedges of Byrd, Cecil Pirkey of West Monroe, Roy Wilson of Fair Park and Gene Derveloy of Bastrop.

Only first team ballots were tabulated.

The all - star backfield of Hendrix, Vice, McClung and Hollis —although not as overpowering as past 1-AAA secondaries — did boast the top four scorers in the district and each ball packer came up with impresisve statistics during the year.

Hendrix was the best ball handler at quarterback in the circuit and, in addition to his generalship and dexterity, he managed to pitch seven touchdown passes and wound up fourth in the scoring derby with 40 tallies. The Ouachita senior scored 40 points, including 20 in one mid-season exploit with Jonesboro and connected on 26 of 58 passes for 380 yards.

Vice, ushered into starring status when Paul Labenne was laid low by injuries, carried his workhorse chores with aplomb despite a season - long Fair Park slump. Vice whacked away at enemy lines 142 times came up with 598 yards for a 4.2 average per jaunt.

In addition, he nabbed 21 passes for 357 yards and amassed 54 points, second high in the district.

McClung was the key member of a racehorse corps at Bossier and his running antics were instrumental in shoving the Bearkats into the championship. Bantam Bill, who scored from 19 yards out against Istrouma Friday night, legged 1,043 yards on 169 carries during the regular campaign for a nifty 6.2 average and he also hauled in nine passes for 120 yards. In scoring, he placed third with 43 points.

Hollis, an underrated line cracker for the Rams, was the loop's leading point - maker with 90 points. Against Rayville alone he dashed for five touchdowns and he scored three times against both Jonesboro - Hodge and Fair Park.

Coupled with halfback partner Emmett Irby, Hollis gave Bastrop a tremendous one - two punch. Irby carried 96 times for 544 yards and Hollis 108 times for 602 yards.

On the terminals Bates and VanZile produced sparkling play. Bates, a second string fullback for Ouachita before being moved into the line, was easily the best defensive halfback in the circuit, as well as a super pass grabber and VanZile offset his lack of size with sticky fingers.

Bates caught three scoring passes for the Lions, and VanZile took in five six - point aerials from Rebel quarterback Ronnie Farmer. In addition to his offensive worth and defensive capabilities, Bates handled the punting duties for the Lions and averaged 41.5 on 43 boots.

Of Hucklebridge at tackle enough can't be said. The big Bossier blockbuster smeared anything thrown in his direction on defense and on the attack it was a stock play to send halfbacks over his slot. In Bossier's 8th game he was moved to fullback and in just four games he rammed for 403 yards and a couple of touchdowns. He added another against Istrouma in the playoffs.

Burns, a husky junior, was a major cog in Byrd's iron - clad defensive blockade. The Jacket frontier tossed shutouts at Bossier and Fair Park in 1-AAA skirmishes. And Burns, who outfought Hucklebridge in their only meeting, was dogged competitor.

Coston, one of two tremendous guards at Bastrop, and Enis were tops among a fistful of brilliant guardsmen in 1-AAA. Both of them were hard - pressed to edge out Byrd's Ray Burroughs, Bastrop's Leon Martin and Fair Park's Jimmy Little in the All-district polling.

Both Coston and Enis were guards on attack and corner linebackers on defense. They were both compact 180-pounders. Enis carried on a Bossier "All" guard tradition by succeeding ex-Bearkats Rupert Procell and Donald King on the all - district squad.

SEASON FINALE

Maryland Downs N. C. State, 33-28

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI)—Maryland, at home every time opportunity knocked, outlasted North Carolina State, 33-28, Saturday in the season finale for both Atlantic Coast Conference football teams.

The Terps jumped off to an early lead on three touchdown passes by Dale Betty, scored twice more by cashing in on breaks, andmanaged to stav ahead of a dangerous Wolfpack team that fought until the last second to stave off its ninth straight defeat.

In the end, it was old fashioned defensive football that brought Maryland its fifth victory in 10 starts. The Terps' fourth touchdown was set up when tackle Joe Gardi blocked Collice Moore's punt and recovered the ball on the State six. Fullback Jim Joyce, won the A.C.C. rushing crown today with 82 yards in 16 carries, scored on the next play with a six-yard rifle shot through guard.

Maryland's final score, which proved decisive, came late in the third period when State's fine sophomore quarterback, Roman Gabriel, tried to turn wide from his own six and was jolted into a fumble by guard Pete Boinis, who recovered on the seven. Those tallies, plus a fourth six-pointer scored after the blocked punt gave Maryland a 26-14 lead at halftime.

Gabriel's deadly pitching gave the Terps fits all afternoon, the big youngster completing 23 out of 38 for 279 yards and tossing two touchdown passes.

State's first score came in the first period when a Maryland fumble gave the Wolfpack a shot from the Terp three, Gabriel himself wading over from the one. It was 7-7 at that point, but it turned out to be the closest the visitors ever got.

Calhoun boys and girls will play at West Monroe Tuesday night.

Delta Takes 2nd Christmas Bowl Classic

NATCHITOCHES, La. (AP) — Delta State punched across three third period touchdowns to defeat East Central Oklahoma State 19-0 Saturday in the second annual Christmas Festival Bowl.

Halfback James Hubbard grabbed the second half kickoff and raced 95 yards to start the Mississippians' scoring. Two minutes later, the crowd of 5,000 saw halfback Billy Thomas rip off tackle into paydirt from the seven after Delta recovered a fumble on Oklahoma's 20.

Late in the third quarter, freshman quarterback Bob Brumfield ran five yards for a touchdown to cap a 62-yard march.

Delta State had a 8-1 season record, and was making its first appearance in a bowl game. Central Oklahoma had a 8-3 season mark.

10-Man Tag Scramble At B&B Arena

Something new — in the bulky form of a ton of bone and muscle — has been lined up for Monday night's wrestling card at the B&B Arena.

Ten grapplers who, according to promoter August Baumgartner, scale in at a total in excess of a ton, will collide in a mixed tag team donneybrook.

Four women and six men will participate in the melee, first of its kind here, whifh has no time limit and requires two falls to win.

Struggling to find standing room in one corner will be China Mira, Cecile Blevins, Jack Kennedy, Chris Belkas and state its kind here, which has no time Sharp. Opposing this quintet will be Nell Stewart, Olga Zapeda, "Two-Ton Tony," Firpo Zybysko and the Black Panther.

Two-Ton Tony, a 250-pound grunt 'n groaner from up Nebraska way, is the only newcomer in the group. Belkas, former heavyweight champion Mickey champion before Sharp grabbed the belt, will be making his first appearance here in a couple of months.

Two 15-minute preliminaries will precede the main event. Belkas will warm up against the Panther and Kennedy takes on Zybysko. Both prelims will be one-fall affairs.

Neville Plays Natchitoches Club At Ruston

Neville Principal Sidney Seegers announced today that next Friday night's state class AA semi-final playoff between Natchitoches and Neville will be held in Ruston's Tech Stadium at 8 o'clock.

Neville's bi-district playoff with Minden was also held in Ruston Nov. 27.

Seegers said there would be no broadcast of the game.

Tickets will be on sale for the contest at the Neville office Monday morning with box seats selling for $2.50, reserve seats for $2.00, adult general admission $1.50 and student tickets 75 cents. Student tickets will sell for $1.00 at the gate Friday night, Seegers said.

Natchitoches downed Eunice, 34-6, Friday night in its bi-district game. Natchitoches, like Neville, is unbeaten this season.

Phils, Tigers In Five-Player Deal

By JACK HAND

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies traded shortstop Chico Fernandez and pitcher Ray Semproch to Detroit Saturday in a five-player deal after trading catcher Carl Sawatski to St. Louis for outfielder Bobby Gene Smith.

After finishing a distant last in the National League last season, the Phils jumped head first into the trade mart of baseball's winter meeting.

Manager Eddie Sawyer and General Manager John Quinn indicated other veterans might follow.

The Tigers, who had been competing with Cleveland for Fernandez, gave up infielder Ted Lepcio and rookie outfielder Ken Walters from their big league roster and infielder Alex Cosmidis from their farm system.

Jimmy Dykes, in dire need of shortstop help, said Fernandez, a 27-year-old Cuban, has "all the equipment to play regularly every day."

Chico came to the Phils in 1957 from the then Brooklyn Dodgers organization for four players and $75,000. Last year he lost his job to Joe Koppe, acquired from Milwaukee, and languished on the bench most of the season. He hit .210 in 45 games.

Semproch, a 13-game winner as a rookie in 1958, flopped in 1959 when he won only three games and lost 10. The 28-year-old righthander is a low ball pitcher who specializes in the sinker and slider. Dykes counts on him as the "long man" in the bullpen behind his starting foursome of Frank Lary, Don Mossi, Jim Bunning and Paul Foytack.

Manager Eddie Sawyer of the Phillies said he plans an experiment with Lepcio, a .280 hitter with Boston and Detroit. Sawyer said he'll try Lepcio at third base, sending Gene Freese to the outfield.

Walters, a .291 hitter with 21 home runs and 92 runs batted in at Fort Worth, will get a try in the Phil outfield. He is only 26 and highly regarded as a fine fielder with a strong arm. Quinn said Walters was one of the main reasons for making the deal.

Cosmidis batted .249 at the Tigers' Charleston, W. Va., farm in the American Assn. He is on the Birmingham roster but probably will be shifted later in the Phils' Buffalo farm in the International League.

Smith, 25, has a good field-no hit reputation. He batted .217 in 43 games with St. Louis last season before he was shifted to Rochester in July. He hit .252 in the International League.

Asked if the addition of Smith and Walters, as well as Bobby Del Greco — purchased from Buffalo earlier—might mean the trading of a regular outfielder like Richie Ashburn, Sawyer said "we will trade any veterans if we can help ourselves."

Ouachita Opens Home Basketball Season Tuesday

Ouachita opens its home basketball season Tuesday night against cross-town rival St. Matthew's and hosts Ruston in a pair of Thursday night contests.

Girls and boys games will be played Tuesday night with the girls tilt starting at 7 o'clock and the boys game immediately after. Two boys games will be played with Ruston, first a "B" engagement and then a varsity clash.

Ouachita divided two regular season games with St. Matthew's boys last year. Coach H. H. Holliman's Ouachita team took a 44-43 verdict is the Ouachita gym and lost the game on the St. Matthew's floor.

TO CLINCH TITLE

Giants Will Settle For Tie Against Cleveland Today

By JIM KENSIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

The New York Giants, rough but realistic, will settle for a tie with the Cleveland Browns in Sunday's National Football League feature. The Browns, two games down with two to play, must win to prevent the Giants (8-2) from clinching their third Eastern Conference title in four years.

The Giants, with all key players free from injury, are 4-point home favorites to beat the Browns for the fifth straight time and vault into the NFL title game Dec. 27 against the Western Conference champions.

Baltimore and San Francisco continued their battle for the Western title yesterday at San Francisco where the Colts were 6-point favorites to break the first place tie with the 49ers.

The Chicago Bears (6-4) risk their five - game winning streak and an outside chance at the Western prize against Pittsburgh Sunday. But the Steeler spoilers (5-4-1) have won three straight and stopped both the Browns' and Giants' five-victory streaks in the process. No team in the NFL has won six in a row this year, but the Bears are 7-point favorites in the game at Chicago.

The Philadelphia Eagles, tied for second with the Browns in the East, are at Washington (3-7). The Eagles' 6-4 record includes a 30-23 victory over the Redskins and Philadelphia is favored by 3 points this time. If the Eagles and Browns win Sunday, and the Eagles can beat the Browns next week while New York loses another, Philadelphia will tie New York for the title.

In games having no bearing on the conference crowns, the Los Angeles Rams (2-8) are favored by 5 points over the visiting Green Bay Packers (5-5), and the Detroit Lions (2-7-1) rate 4 better at home than the Chicago Cardinals (2-8).

The Rams have lost six in a row since beating the Packers 45-6.

"We'll play for a tie if we have to," says Giant Coach Jim Lee Howell, although pointing out that the New York team will naturally be trying to win.

The Giants won the 1958 Eastern title the hard way—by taking their last five games, including the regular season finale with the Browns and the Eastern playoff with Cleveland a week later. That gave the Giants all three meetings with the Browns last year and the Giants tacked on a 10-6 triumph at Cleveland in October.

Those four New York victories look impressive, but Cleveland has never gone two years without a conference title since coming into the NFL in 1950. The Browns won them all the first six years after beating New York in a playoff in '50. The Giants broke through in '56, finished second to Cleveland in '57, then won it back last year.

The only Giant unable to play Sunday is guard Buzz Guy who has a torn right thigh muscle. Cleveland is expected to be without its two top offensive linemen, tackle Mike McCormack and guard Jim Ray Smith.

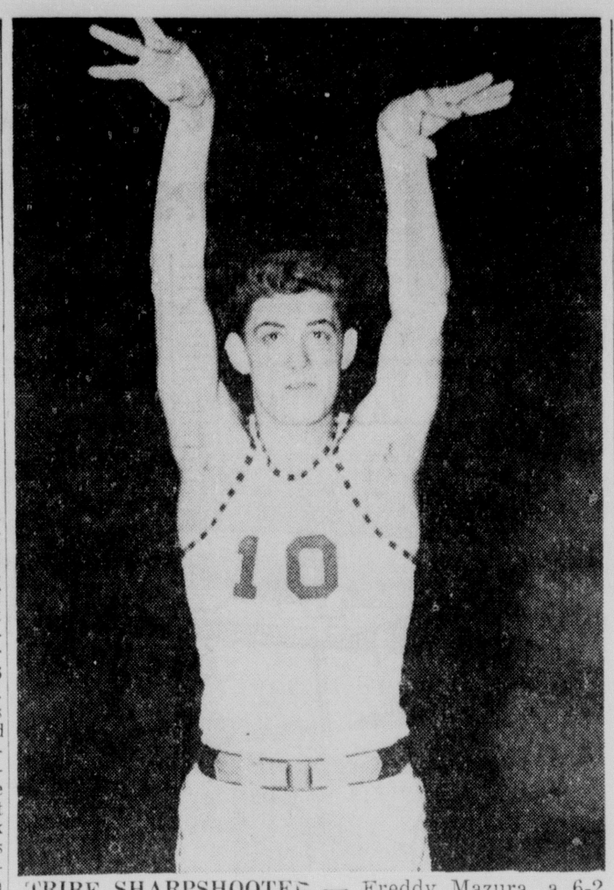
Their absence may aid the tough Giant defense in containing fullback Jimmy Brown, the league's leading ground gainer. Brown has gained 1,127 yards and scored 12 touchdowns in 10 games. In their earlier meeting, the Giants limited Jimmy to 86 yards in 22 carries, well under his 113 yards per game average. He also went scoreless.

But the big factor in the Giant triumph was the punting of Don Chandler. The former Florida star punted eight times that day for a 54-yard average. His league leading average, based on 47 boots is 48.0 yards.

The Giants also have another dangerous kicker in placement specialist Pat Summerall, the NFL scoring leader with 74 points, including 17 field goals.

Bobby Mitchell, Cleveland outside threat, ranks ninth in ground gaining, while the Giants do not have a runner in the top 10. In pass receiving the Browns' Billy Howton is seventh with 33, one more than New York's Frank Gifford.

Charley Conerly, the Giants' 38-year-old quarterback, ranks third in passing with an average gain per pass attempt of 8.19 yards. The Browns' Milt Plum is fifth with 7.56, but has thrown 13 TD passes to Conerly's 9.



TRIBE SHARPSHOOTER — Freddy Mazura, a 6-2 ex-serviceman from Elizabeth, N.J., scored 13 points, second high for the Tribe, in Northeast's opening game with East Texas State Friday night. The freshman guard will be in the lineup Monday night when Lenny Fant's Indians make their home debut at Ouachita against William Carey.

Iowa State Romps Past Badgers, 71-53

Sophomore Vince Brewer hit 18 points—10 in the first half—for the winners to lead scoring. Marty Gharrity and Rick Murray topped Wisconsin with 10 each.

The Cyclones outscored the Badgers 16-1 in a 3-minute first half stretch for a 31-10 lead. They were in front 43-23 at the half and stayed about 20 points ahead the rest of the way.

A tight shifting zone defense held Wisconsin to only seven baskets in 32 attempts in the first half while Iowa State hit .500 from the field.

SETS PRECEDENT

Norman Captures Offensive Crown

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The man who piled up the most individual yardage in major college football during the past season was a member of a team which went nowhere at all.

The total offense leader for the 1959 campaign is Dick Norman, quarterback of the Stanford team which lost seven games and finished on the bottom of the Pacific Coast's new Big Five Conference.

Norman's dead-eye passing not only carried him to the over-all offense and passing crowns but helped bring along the quarterback's chief target, Chris Burford, for the pass receiving championship.

It's the first time a seven-game loser ever produced the individual offense champion. Also Norman had the most completions and most passing yardage ever engineered against major opposition. Burford tied the single season high for pass receptions with 61.

Norman completed 152 passes in 263 attempts for a total of 1,963 yards and eleven touchdowns. His total offense yardage, including passing and running, was 2,013—nearly 400 yards ahead of second-place Charley Johnson of New Mexico State.

In the passing department along, Jack Lee of Cincinnati was closest with 132 completions in 232 passes for 1,535 yards.

Burford, in tying the reception record set a year ago by Dave Hibbert of Arizona, caught 18 more passes than Army's famous "lonely end," Bill Carpenter, who was second with 43.

Until Norman busted loose in the final game against California with 34 completions in 39 throws for 401 yards and an all-time single game record, tops for individual completions in a season was the 159 set by Don Klosterman of Loyola in 1951 and the most passing yardage was the 2,005 set by Stan Heath of Nevada in 1948.

The NCAB turned up some other interesting figures. Pete Hall Marquette quarterback, handled the ball 395 times, close to a record. Dwight Nichols, Iowa State, barely missed the all-time record for rushing and passing plays during a career—he had 875, just one shy of the 1947-49 mark of Texas Christian's Lindy Barry.

Howard Dyer of Virginia Military had the best average per play, 7.34 yards. Don Meredith of Southern Methodist smashed the career record for completion percentage, hitting 241 on 395 attempts for a .610 percentage, well above the .571 set by Paul Larson of California in 1952-54. Jack Lee of Cincinnati set a new mark for interception avoidance. Only six of his 232 passes fell into enemy hands.

Power Sees Return To .300 Season

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP)—Colorful Vic Power currently burning up the Puerto Rican Winter League with a leading .375 average, confidently predicts he will break back into the select .300 batting circle in the majors next season.

"Of course with current trade talk, I don't know whether I'll be playing with Cleveland, Chicago or some other club," the Cleveland clouter said. "But whoever I'm with, they can count on my hitting."

Power told friends that his average slipped below .300 last season only because he was sick during the last month of major league play. He finished at .289.

"No one knew I was sick," he said. "Joe Gordon (Cleveland manager) had plenty of worries without me complaining, and remember, the club was up there in contention for the flag. I felt I had to play."

Rumors and reports that the Cleveland first baseman would be involved in contemplated trades, do not seem to move Power. Instead he is playing a steady game with 33 hits in 88 times at bat for a .375 average. He is trailed for winter league batting honors by Al Nagel (.369) and Orlando Cepeda (.361), both of the Santurce ball club. Cepeda is the San Francisco Giants' slugger.

Power is playing manager of Caguas, the club he first went to play for as a professional back in 1947. The club is currently second in the P.R. League standings behind San Juan, with 21 victories in 32 starts, compared to San Juan's 24 wins in 36 games through games of Wednesday, Dec. 3.

Players Okay Appointment Of Counsel

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — The Major League Baseball Players Assn., officially approved the election of Judge Robert C. Cannon of Milwaukee, a Wisconsin Circuit judge, as its legal counsel Saturday.

Judge Cannon, 41, succeeds J. Norman Lewis, whose contract was not renewed when it expired last March. The players emphasized Judge Cannon will not act as a spokesman in any negotiations with the owners.

He will not attend Sunday's session between the player representatives and the club owners.

Robin Roberts, National League player representative, spoke of the players' complete confidence in any action Commissioner Ford Frick takes in regard to renewing the radio-TV contract for the All-Star game and world series.

The current contract, calling for 16¼ million dollars over five years, expires after the 1961 world series. The players get 60 per cent for their pension fund.

Frank Scott, head of the players' central office, said the players had agreed to accept a total of five night games on get-away dates of a series, four in the National League involving trips to Los Angeles and San Francisco and one in the American.

Harvey Kuenn, the American League player representative, said the players are asking for $10 a day meal money, an increase of $2. They also seek a higher allotment of world series and All-Star game tickets and improved conditions in bullpens and clubhouses of a few unspecified parks.

The players also expressed an interest in eventually sharing in the income from a special winter baseball TV series of the previous season's outstanding major league games. This series is now being seen on an experimental basis for the first time.

3 BENGALS NAMED

All-Americas Top Senior Bowl List

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — A solid mass of football talent, headed by All-Americas Jim Mooty and Don Floyd, was named Saturday to the South team for the Senior Bowl game here Jan. 9.

Mooty, a back from Arkansas, and tackle Floyd of TCU are the top names on a 25-man squad that also includes second and third team All-Americas and one Little All-America selection.

End Carroll Dale of Virginia Tech represents the second team. Vanderbilt back Tom Moore and guard Marvin Terrell of Mississippi were on the third team and end Hugh McInnis of Mississippi Southern was the Little All-A selection.

The North squad numbers All-America guard Roger Davis of Syracuse.

Georgia's Charley Britt, who led the Bulldogs to the Southeastern Conference championship, and Louisiana State's Warren Rabb will team at quarterback for the South.

Southeastern Conference teams will supply 14 of the 25 players. Five are from the Southwest Conference.

Auburn and Louisiana State lead with three each while Alabama, Mississippi, Clemson and Texas Christian have two each. Auburn's contributions include two from the massive Tiger line, guard Zeke Smith and center Jackie Burkett.

The players turn pro in the game and most are planning professional careers. Twenty of the 25 South stars and 19 of the Northerners already have been drafted by pro teams.

The game will be played in La Stadium, capacity 40,500. It will be televised nationally by NBC.

Indians Open Home Slate Monday Night

Coach Lenny Fant has only one returning starter. That's 6-2 Ronald Doyle, whom Fant is depending on as the nucleus for his club during what the coach calls the "toughest schedule in the history of the school."

Fant will also be leaning heavily on his other starting forward, Fred Bradely, a front-line reserve last season.

Sophomore Lannie Johnson, a former star at Ouachita High, and freshman Fred Mazura and Robert Cook, a redshirt last season, round out the starting quint.

Monday's home opener will be the third game for the Indians. They opened the season against East Texas State Friday night in Commerce and then moved on to Beaumont Saturday for a tilt with Lamar Tech.

After the home game against William Carey the Indians move to Hattiesburg, Miss., Thursday to meet Mississippi Southern.

BOISVERT, BEASLEY

Ace Passers Head All-District 3-AA

By TOM LEDET
(Written for the Louisiana Sportswriter's Assn.)

ALEXANDRIA, La. — This year's version of the All-District 3-AA team, could very well be the most pass-minded ever chosen by the conference's coaches for the Louisiana Sportswriter's Assn.

With Menard's Bobby Boisvert, only a junior and holder of the state's most completions record for a single season, and smooth Don Beasley of Natchitoches, the district has two of the better passers in the state.

Young Boisvert, who weighs 182 pounds and runs with the power of a collegiate player, was chosen as the outstanding player in the district — edging Beasley by a scant one-vote margin.

"I sincerely believe that Bobby is one of the best in the state," said Menard Coach Charlie Crouch. "He does everything with equal ability. He's a standout on defense, a fine blocker, passer, runner and kicker. What more could a coach ask of a boy?"

The combination of Beasley and Boisvert gives this "dream team" a passing attack that would be inferior to none. All told, this duo could account for over 3,000 yards in total offense.

Boisvert completed 102 of 180 passes for 1,108 yards and rushed for 574 yards, while Beasley passed 94 times and was accurate with 65 for 1,152 yards. From scrimmage, the Red Devil signal caller carried for 244 yards.

In addition to all of this, Boisvert was one of the top punters in the district, booting 25 times for a 34.5 average. He scored 51 points to lead his team in scoring and passed for eight TDs. Beasley scored two touchdowns, but threw 17 aerial scores.

The other two backs, James Aymond of Pineville and Bill Hyams of Natchitoches, add a blend of speed and power. Aymond is a 145-pound junior scatback who totaled 522 yards rushing this season and let his team's scoring with 61 points.

Hyams, on the other hand, is a powerful line buster. Averaging 7.7 yards every time he carried the ball, Hyams ground out 882 yards from scrimmage. This enabled him to score 10 touchdowns and 15 extra points, good enough for second among the scorers in 3-AA.

Natchitoches, pulled in practically every honor on the team with the exception of the outstanding player award. Trent Melder, who has led the Red Devils to their second consecutive and first undefeated season in the school's history, was cited by his fellow coaches for the best coaching job.

Besides the two backfield posts, Natchitoches dominated the line selections with five players being chosen. They are ends Roy Gentry and Kenny Williams, tackles John Aaron and Jim Buckley and guard Don Stephens. Others named to line positions were guard John Simmonelli of Leesville and center Stanley Tuma of Pineville.

Gentry, a 190-pound senior standing six-two, led the district in pass reception with 517 yards on 25 catches. Five of these went for touchdowns. The other end, Williams, strongly resembles Gentry physically, weighing 185 pounds and standing six-two. He too, is a senior, but specializes on defense. Offensively, Williams pulled in 13 passes for 192 yards and four touchdowns.

The two big Red Devil Tackles, John Aaron and Jim Buckley, were both outstanding as blockers and defensive linemen. Aaron is a 215-pound junior and had his best night this season against the Pineville Rebels in a game that clinched the crown for Natchitoches. Buckley is a 215-pounder and is in his senior year.

Simmonelli of Leesville is a small but very aggressive guard. He has been instrumental in the tremendous success enjoyed at Leesville last season and the surprising record this year. The Wampus Cat lineman is 17 years of age and a senior. Stephens is slightly larger at 160 pounds and is equally as aggressive. He is only a junior.

Pineville's Tuma was well ahead of his nearest competitor in the balloting, mainly because of his sterling defensive play for second-place Pineville. He is only a junior, but weighs 185 pounds and moves with the ease of a backfield man.

The second team is composed of ends George Bennett of Pineville and Bob Rachal of Menard, tackles Harold Brown of Pineville and James Alford of Menard, guards Gene Knapp of Pineville and Douglas Marshall and center John Hromadka of Menard.

Mangham Plays Cotton Valley At Home Friday

MANGHAM, La. (Special) Mangham and Cotton Valley will play here next Friday night at eight o'clock in a state class B second round playoff game, Mangham Principal Bennie Hixon announced yesterday.

Cotton Valley is the district 1-B champion and has been idle since winning the conference crown in a playoff with Haughton Thanksgiving Day. Mangham whipped Lake Providence, 7-0, in a district playoff and turned back preciously - unbeaten Wisner of district 3-B, last Friday, 13-6.

Hixon said tickets would go on sale in Mangham Monday night at $1.25 and 50 cents. Tickets will cost $1.50 and 75 cents at the gate Friday night, Hixon said.

TECH GRIDDERS

Statistics Show Balanced Team

RUSTON, La. (Special) — Final statistics on Louisiana Tech's 1959 championship football team reveal that much of the success of the Bulldog gridders was due to team effort.

In winning the GSC title and racking up a 9-1 season record, the Techmen scored a total of 191 points with 15 players getting in on the point-making. Topping the Bulldog scoring was halfback J. W. Slack, Bossier City senior, who romped for 40 points and was one of the leading scorers in the conference.

Techs 1959 team will go down as one of the best defensive outfits in the history of the college. The Bulldogs kept their goalline uncrossed in six of the 10 games and allowed the opposition a total of only 48 points all season. Tech averaged 214 yards per game rushing and gave up 108 per tussle. The Canines averaged 69 yards per fray through the air and allowed the ten foes 79 each battle.

Fourteen Bulldog runners shared the ball-carrying duties last season. Slack topped this department with his 538 total yards and a 4.3 average per tote. Halfback Paul Hynes, Sulphur junior, was not far behind with a total of 544 yards rushing and 5.4 average.

Tech's third best rusher was halfback David Williamson, El Dorado, Ark., junior, who piled up 271 yards to average 4.9 per attempt. Minden fullback Max Rudd accounted for 258 yards with his 4.3 average while Lake Charles sophomore halfback Jack Howard averaged 2.2 per carry to pick up a total of 101 yards.

Tech's three quarterbacks completed 61 of 135 passes last season, good for 691 yards and six TDs. Only four Bulldog aerials were intercepted. Freshman Johnny Hudson, Minden, connected on 32 of 58 passes for 389 yards and three scores while Taylor McNeel, Pineville junior, hit receivers on 16 of 49 tosses for 210 yards and two TDs. Freshman Mickey Slaughter, Alexandria, had 13 of 28 passes completed, accounting for 92 yards and one touchdown.

Fourteen Techmen were on the receiving end of passes last season. End Tom Causey, Monroe junior, hauled down 17 passes good for 190 yards and three TDs to top the Bulldog reception. Jerry Hudson, junior end from Springhill, was next with 11 receptions for 137 yards.

Halfback Howard led the team in pass interceptions with three which he returned for 10 yards.

Most of Tech's punting chores were handled by Slack who averaged 37.7 per boot in 27 punts. Hynes booted 10 times for an average of 35.0 per kick.

Howard topped the team in punt returns, racing back 11 for 190 yards to average 17.2 per return. Hynes was next with eight punt returns for 83 yards. He also led the team in kickoff returns, bringing back five for 94 yards and an average of 18.8 per return.

A comparison of Tech's team statistics against that of the opponents reveals that the Bulldogs racked up 150 first downs to 95, averaged 4.0 yards per rushing attempt to 2.4, intercepted 14 passes and had only four stolen by the opposition.

The Techsters averaged 37.1 per punt and the opposition averaged 32.8. Tech had only one punt blocked while the Bulldogs blocked three themselves. As a team Tech averaged 12.3 per punt return and 18.2 per kickoff return. The Canines lost the pigskin 20 times on fumbles and they recovered 19 fumbles by the opposition.

TO CLINCH TITLE

Giants Will Settle For Tie Against Cleveland Today

By JIM KENSIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

The New York Giants, rough but realistic, will settle for a tie with the Cleveland Browns in Sunday's National Football League feature. The Browns, two games down with two to play, must win to prevent the Giants (8-2) from clinching their third Eastern Conference title in four years.

The Giants, with all key players free from injury, are 4-point home favorites to beat the Browns for the fifth straight time and vault into the NFL title game Dec. 27 against the Western Conference champions.

Baltimore and San Francisco continued their battle for the Western title yesterday at San Francisco where the Colts were 6-point favorites to break the first place tie with the 49ers.

The Chicago Bears (6-4) risk their five - game winning streak and an outside chance at the Western prize against Pittsburgh Sunday. But the Steeler spoilers (5-4-1) have won three straight and stopped both the Browns' and Giants' five-victory streaks in the process. No team in the NFL has won six in a row this year, but the Bears are 7-point favorites in the game at Chicago.

The Philadelphia Eagles, tied for second with the Browns in the East, are at Washington (3-7). The Eagles' 6-4 record includes a 30-23 victory over the Redskins and Philadelphia is favored by 3 points this time. If the Eagles and Browns win Sunday, and the Eagles can beat the Browns next week while New York loses another, Philadelphia will tie New York for the title.

In games having no bearing on the conference crowns, the Los Angeles Rams (2-8) are favored by 5 points over the visiting Green Bay Packers (5-5), and the Detroit Lions (2-7-1) rate 4 better at home than the Chicago Cardinals (2-8).

The Rams have lost six in a row since beating the Packers 45-6.

"We'll play for a tie if we have to," says Giant Coach Jim Lee Howell, although pointing out that the New York team will naturally be trying to win.

The Giants won the 1958 Eastern title the hard way—by taking their last five games, including the regular season finale with the Browns and the Eastern playoff with Cleveland a week later. That gave the Giants all three meetings with the Browns last year and the Giants tacked on a 10-6 triumph at Cleveland in October.

Those four New York victories look impressive, but Cleveland has never gone two years without a conference title since coming into the NFL in 1950. The Browns won them all the first six years after beating New York in a playoff in '50. The Giants broke through in '56, finished second to Cleveland in '57, then won it back last year.

The only Giant unable to play Sunday is guard Buzz Guy who has a torn right thigh muscle. Cleveland is expected to be without its two top offensive linemen, tackle Mike McCormack and guard Jim Ray Smith.

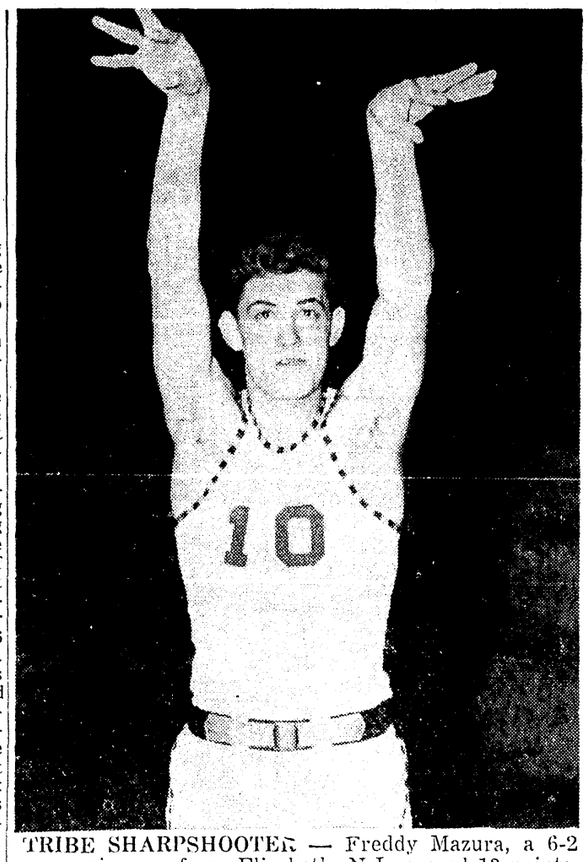
Their absence may aid the tough Giant defense in containing fullback Jimmy Brown, the league's leading ground gainer. Brown has gained 1,127 yards and scored 12 touchdowns in 10 games. In their earlier meeting, the Giants limited Jimmy to 86 yards in 22 carries, well under his 113 yards per game average. He also went scoreless.

But the big factor in the Giant triumph was the punting of Don Chandler. The former Florida star punted eight times that day for a 54-yard average. His league leading average, based on 47 boots is 48.0 yards.

The Giants also have another dangerous kicker in placement specialist Pat Summerall, the NFL scoring leader with 74 points, including 17 field goals.

Bobby Mitchell, Cleveland outside threat, ranks ninth in ground gaining, while the Giants do not have a runner in the top 10. In pass receiving the Browns' Billy Howton is seventh with 33, one more than New York's Frank Gifford.

Charley Conerly, the Giants' 33-year-old quarterback, ranks third in passing with an average gain per pass attempt of 8.19 yards. The Browns' Milt Plum is fifth with 7.56, but has thrown 13 TD passes to Conerly's 9.



TRIBE SHARPSHOOTER — Freddy Mazura, a 6-2 ex-serviceman from Elizabeth, N.J., scored 13 points, second high for the Tribe, in Northeast's opening game with East Texas State Friday night. The freshman guard will be in the lineup Monday night when Lenny Fant's Indians make their home debut at Ouachita against William Carey.

Iowa State Romps Past Badgers, 71-53

Sophomore Vince Brewer hit 18 points—10 in the first half—for the winners to lead scoring. Marty Gharrity and Rick Murray topped Wisconsin with 10 each.

The Cyclones outscored the Badgers 16-1 in a 3-minute first half stretch for a 31-10 lead. They were in front 43-23 at the half and stayed about 20 points ahead the rest of the way.

A tight shifting zone defense held Wisconsin to only seven baskets in 32 attempts in the first half while Iowa State hit .500 from the field.

Power Sees Return To .300 Season

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP)—Colorful Vic Power currently burning up the Puerto Rican Winter League with a leading .375 average, confidently predicts he will break back into the select .300 batting circle in the majors next season.

"Of course with current trade talk, I don't know whether I'll be playing with Cleveland, Chicago or some other club," the Cleveland clouter said. "But whoever I'm with, they can count on my hitting."

Power told friends that his average slipped below .300 last season only because he was sick during the last month of major league play. He finished at .289.

"No one knew I was sick," he said. "Joe Gordon (Cleveland manager) had plenty of worries without me complaining, and remember, the club was up there in contention for the flag. I felt I had to play."

Rumors and reports that the Cleveland first baseman would be involved in contemplated trades, do not seem to move Power. Instead he is playing a steady game with 33 hits in 88 times at bat for a .375 average. He is trailed for winter league batting honors by Al Nagel (.369) and Orlando Cepeda (.361), both of the Santurce ball club. Cepeda is the San Francisco Giants' slugger.

Power is playing manager of Caguas, the club he first went to play for as a professional back in 1947. The club is currently second in the P.R. League standings behind San Juan, with 21 victories in 32 starts, compared to San Juan's 24 wins in 36 games through games of Wednesday, Dec. 3.

SETS PRECEDENT

Norman Captures Offensive Crown

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The man who piled up the most individual yardage in major college football during the past season was a member of a team which went nowhere at all.

The total offense leader for the 1959 campaign is Dick Norman, quarterback of the Stanford team which lost seven games and finished on the bottom of the Pacific Coast's new Big Five Conference.

Norman's dead-eye passing not only carried him to the over-all offense and passing crowns but helped bring along the quarterback's chief target, Chris Burford, for the pass receiving championship.

It's the first time a seven-game loser ever produced the individual offense champion. Also Norman had the most completions and most passing yardage ever engineered against major opposition. Burford tied the single season high for pass receptions with 61.

Norman completed 152 passes in 263 attempts for a total of 1,963 yards and eleven touchdowns. His total offense yardage, including passing and running, was 2,018—nearly 400 yards ahead of second-place Charley Johnson of New Mexico State.

In the passing department along, Jack Lee of Cincinnati was closest with 132 completions in 232 passes for 1,535 yards.

Burford, in tying the reception record set a year ago by Dave Hibbert of Arizona, caught 13 more passes than Army's famous "lonely end," Bill Carpenter, who was second with 43.

Until Norman busted loose in the final game against California with 34 completions in 39 throws for 401 yards and an all-time single game record, tops for individual completions in a season was the 159 set by Don Klosterman of Loyola in 1951 and the most passing yardage was the 2,005 set by Stan Heath of Nevada in 1948.

The NCAB turned up some other interesting figures. Pete Hall Marquette quarterback, handled the ball 395 times, close to a record. Dwight Nichols, Iowa State, barely missed the all-time record for rushing and passing plays during a career—he had 875, just one shy of the 1947-49 mark of Texas Christian's Lindy Barry.

Howard Dyer of Virginia Military had the best average per play, 7.34 yards. Don Meredith of Southern Methodist smashed the career record for completion percentage, hitting 241 on 395 attempts for a .610 percentage, well above the .571 set by Paul Larson of California in 1952-54. Jack Lee of Cincinnati set a new mark for interception avoidance. Only six of his 232 passes fell into enemy hands.

Players Okay Appointment Of Counsel

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — The Major League Baseball Players Assn., officially approved the election of Judge Robert C. Cannon of Milwaukee, a Wisconsin Circuit judge, as its legal counsel Saturday.

Judge Cannon, 41, succeeds J. Norman Lewis, whose contract was not renewed when it expired last March. The players emphasized Judge Cannon will not act as a spokesman in any negotiations with the owners.

He will not attend Sunday's session between the player representatives and the club owners.

Robin Roberts, National League player representative, spoke of the players' complete confidence in any action Commissioner Ford Frick takes in regard to renewing the radio-TV contract for the All-Star game and world series.

The current contract, calling for 1¼ million dollars over five years, expires after the 1961 world series. The players get 60 per cent for their pension fund.

Frank Scott, head of the players' central office, said the players had agreed to accept a total of five night games on get-away dates of a series, four in the National League involving trips to Los Angeles and San Francisco and one in the American.

Harvey Kuenn, the American League player representative, said the players are asking for $10 a day meal money, an increase of $2. They also seek a higher allotment of world series and All-Star game tickets and improved conditions in bullpens and clubhouses of a few unspecified parks.

The players also expressed an interest in eventually sharing in the income from a special winter baseball TV series of the previous season's outstanding major league games. This series is now being seen on an experimental basis for the first time.

3 BENGALS NAMED

All-Americas Top Senior Bowl List

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — A solid mass of football talent, headed by All-Americas Jim Mooty and Don Floyd, was named Saturday to the South team for the Senior Bowl game here Jan. 9.

Mooty, a back from Arkansas, and tackle Floyd of TCU are the top names on a 25-man squad that also includes second and third team All-Americas and one Little All-America selection.

End Carroll Dale of Virginia Tech represents the second team. Vanderbilt back Tom Moore and guard Marvin Terrell of Mississippi were on the third team and end Hugh McInnis of Mississippi Southern was the Little All-A selection.

The North squad numbers All-America guard Roger Davis of Syracuse.

Georgia's Charley Britt, who led the Bulldogs to the Southeastern Conference championship, and Louisiana State's Warren Rabb will team at quarterback for the South.

Southeastern Conference teams will supply 14 of the 25 players. Five are from the Southwest Conference.

Auburn and Louisiana State lead with three each while Alabama, Mississippi, Clemson and Texas Christian have two each. Auburn's contributions include two from the massive Tiger line, guard Zeke Smith and center Jackie Burkett.

The players turn pro in the game and most are planning professional careers. Twenty of the 25 South stars and 19 of the Northerners already have been drafted by pro teams.

The game will be played in La Stadium, capacity 40,500. It will be televised nationally by NBC.

BOISVERT, BEASLEY

Ace Passers Head All-District 3-AA

By TOM LEDET
(Written for the Louisiana Sportswriter's Assn.)

ALEXANDRIA, La. — This year's version of the All-District 3-AA team, could very well be the most pass-minded ever chosen by the conference's coaches for the Louisiana Sportswriter's Assn.

With Menard's Bobby Boisvert, only a junior and holder of the state's most completions record for a single season, and smooth Don Beasley of Natchitoches, the district has two of the better passers in the state.

Young Boisvert, who weighs 182 pounds and runs with the power of a collegiate player, was chosen as the outstanding player in the district — edging Beasley by a scant one-vote margin.

"I sincerely believe that Bobby is one of the best in the state," said Menard Coach Charlie Crouch. "He does everything with equal ability. He's a standout on defense, a fine blocker, passer, runner and kicker. What more could a coach ask of a boy?"

The combination of Beasley and Boisvert gives this "dream team" a passing attack that would be inferior to none. All told, this duo could account for over 3,000 yards in total offense.

Boisvert completed 102 of 180 passes for 1,103 yards and rushed for 574 yards, while Beasley passed 94 times and was accurate with 65 for 1,152 yards. From scrimmage, the Red Devil signal caller carried for 244 yards.

In addition to all of this, Boisvert was one of the top punters in the district, booting 25 times for a 34.5 average. He scored 51 points to lead his team in scoring and passed for eight TDs. Beasley scored two touchdowns, but threw 17 aerial scores.

The other two backs, James Aymond of Pineville and Bill Hyams of Natchitoches, add a blend of speed and power. Aymond is a 145-pound junior scatback who totaled 522 yards rushing this season and let his team's scoring with 61 points.

Hyams, on the other hand, is a powerful line buster. Averaging 7.7 yards every time he carried the ball, Hyams ground out 882 yards from scrimmage. This enabled him to score 10 touchdowns and 15 extra points, good enough for second among the scorers in 3-AA.

Natchitoches, pulled in practically every honor on the team with the exception of the outstanding player award. Trent Melder, who has led the Red Devils to their second consecutive and first undefeated season in the school's history, was cited by his fellow coaches for the best coaching job.

Besides the two backfield posts, Natchitoches dominated the line selections with five players being chosen. They are ends Roy Gentry and Kenny Williams, tackles John Aaron and Jim Buckley and guard Don Stephens. Others named to line positions were guard John Simmonelli of Leesville and center Stanley Tuma of Pineville.

Gentry, a 190-pound senior standing six-two, led the district in pass reception with 517 yards on 25 catches. Five of these went for touchdowns. The other end, Williams, strongly resembles Gentry physically, weighing 185 pounds and standing six-two. He too, is a senior, but specializes on defense. Offensively, Williams pulled in 13 passes for 192 yards and four touchdowns.

The two big Red Devil Tackles, John Aaron and Jim Buckley, were both outstanding as blockers and defensive linemen. Aaron is a 215-pound junior and had his best night this season against the Pineville Rebels in a game that clinched the crown for Natchitoches. Buckley is a 215-pounder and is in his senior year.

Simmonelli of Leesville is a small but very aggressive guard. He has been instrumental in the tremendous success enjoyed at Leesville last season and the surprising record this year. The Wampus Cat lineman is 17 years of age and a senior. Stephens is slightly larger at 160 pounds and is equally as aggressive. He is only a junior.

Pineville's Tuma was well ahead of his nearest competitor in the balloting, mainly because of his sterling defensive play for second-place Pineville. He is only a junior, but weighs 185 pounds and moves with the ease of a backfield man.

The second team is composed of ends George Bennett of Pineville and Bob Rachal of Menard, tackles Harold Brown of Pineville and James Alford of Menard, guards Gene Knapp of Pineville and Douglas Marshall and center John Hromadka of Menard.

Indians Open Home Slate Monday Night

Coach Lenny Fant has only one returning starter. That's 6-2 Ronald Doyle, whom Fant is depending on as the nucleus for his club during what the coach calls the "toughest schedule in the history of the school."

Fant will also be leaning heavily on his other starting forward, Fred Bradely, a front-line reserve last season.

Sophomore Lannie Johnson, a former star at Ouachita High, and freshman Fred Mazura and Robert Cook, a redshirt last season, round out the starting quint.

Monday's home opener will be the third game for the Indians. They opened the season against East Texas State Friday night in Commerce and then moved on to Beaumont Saturday for a tilt with Lamar Tech.

After the home game against William Carey the Indians move to Hattiesburg, Miss., Thursday to meet Mississippi Southern.

TECH GRIDDERS

Statistics Show Balanced Team

RUSTON, La. (Special) — Final statistics on Louisiana Tech's 1959 championship football team reveal that much of the success of the Bulldog gridders was due to team effort.

In winning the GSC title and racking up a 9-1 season record, the Techmen scored a total of 191 points with 15 players getting in on the point-making. Topping the Bulldog scoring was halfback J. W. Slack, Bossier City senior, who romped for 40 points and was one of the leading scorers in the conference.

Techs 1959 team will go down as one of the best defensive outfits in the history of the college. The Buldogs kept their goalline uncrossed in six of the 10 games and allowed the opposition a total of only 48 points all season. Tech averaged 214 yards per game rushing and gave up 103 per tussle. The Canines averaged 69 yards per fray through the air and allowed the ten foes 79 each battle.

Fourteen Bulldog runners shared the ball-carrying duties last season. Slack topped this department with his 538 total yards and a 4.3 average per tote. Halfback Paul Hynes, Sulphur junior, was not far behind with a total of 544 yards rushing and 5.4 average.

Tech's third best rusher was halfback David Williamson, El Dorado, Ark., junior, who piled up 271 yards to average 4.9 per attempt. Minden fullback Max Rudd accounted for 258 yards with his 4.3 average while Lake Charles sophomore halfback Jack Howard averaged 2.2 per carry to pick up a total of 101 yards.

Tech's three quarterbacks completed 61 of 135 passes last season, good for 691 yards and six TDs. Only four Bulldog aerials were intercepted. Freshman Johnny Hudson, Minden, connected on 32 of 58 passes for 389 yards and three scores while Taylor McNeel, Pineville junior, hit receivers on 16 of 49 tosses for 210 yards and two TDs. Freshman Mickey Slaughter, Alexandria, had 13 of 28 passes completed, accounting for 92 yards and one touchdown.

Fourteen Techmen were on the receiving end of passes last season. End Tom Causey, Monroe junior, hauled down 17 passes good for 190 yards and three TDs to top the Bulldog reception. Jerry Hudson, junior end from Springhill, was next with 11 receptions for 137 yards.

Halfback Howard led the team in pass interceptions with three which he returned for 10 yards.

Most of Tech's punting chores were handled by Slack who averaged 37.7 per boot in 27 punts. Hynes booted 10 times for an average of 35.0 per kick.

Howard topped the team in punt returns, racing back 11 for 190 yards to average 17.2 per return. Hynes was next with eight punt returns for 83 yards. He also led the team in kickoff returns, bringing back five for 94 yards and an average of 18.8 per return.

A comparison of Tech's team statistics against that of the opponents reveals that the Bulldogs racked up 150 first downs to 95, averaged 4.0 yards per rushing attempt to 2.4, intercepted 14 passes and had only four stolen by the opposition.

The Techsters averaged 37.1 per punt and the opposition averaged 32.8. Tech had only one punt blocked while the Bulldogs blocked three themselves. As a team Tech averaged 12.3 per punt return and 18.2 per kickoff return. The Canines lost the pigskin 20 times on fumbles and they recovered 19 fumbles by the opposition.

Mangham Plays Cotton Valley At Home Friday

MANGHAM, La. (Special) Mangham and Cotton Valley will play here next Friday night at eight o'clock in a state class B second round playoff game, Mangham Principal Bennie Hixon announced yesterday.

Cotton Valley is the district 1-B champion and has been idle since winning the conference crown in a playoff with Haughton Thanksgiving Day. Mangham whipped Lake Providence, 7-0, in a district playoff and turned back precioustly - unbeaten Wisner of district 3-B, last Friday, 13-6.

Hixon said tickets would go on sale in Mangham Monday night at $1.25 and 50 cents. Tickets will cost $1.50 and 75 cents at the gate Friday night, Hixon said.

IN MONTANA

Quake Aftermath Report Is Given

ENNIS, Mont. (AP) — Every cloud, they say, has a silver lining.

Long out from under the cloud of death and danger created last August by the earthquake which shook this region to the roots of its scenic mountains, people here are talking of the tourist silver which may develop next summer.

"We've got one of the most terrific natural attractions for tourists," says Charles E. M. Bauer, mayor of Ennis. "Next tourist season, it will be very good. It's a wonderful sight where that mountain filled the Madison River canyon and formed a lake. There isn't anything just like that anywhere else in the world."

"I think it's going to make the country boom," declares Harold Young, operator of West Yellowstone's Westwood Motor Lodge, weather observer and part-time reporter. With a shortwave radio transmitter, Young spread the first quake alarms that fearful night last summer.

"We'll have more sightseers then we've ever had," predicts the owner of the Pioneer Bar in historic Virginia City, 15 miles west of here.

"There's been an awful lot of people already who have driven quite a ways to see Quake Lake," observes Ennis mechanic Chuck Armitage. "I don't think these earthquakes are scaring anybody out of here. People are inquisitive enough that next year they'll come in droves."

Mother nature's violent adjustment has not bothered the symbol of the National Park System—Old Faithful, which still sends its silver cascade 120 to 170 feet in the air every 65 minutes or so.

Far from hurting the tourist attractions at Yellowstone Park, the quake may have created a serious rival to Old Faithful.

Sapphire Pool in the park's upper geyser basin formerly labored every 10 to 20 minutes to send up an undistinguished fountain 4 to 12 feet high. Since the quake, Sapphire has turned into a real showpiece. About every hour and 10 minutes it shoots a tower of steaming water to a height of 80 to 100 feet. A white cloud of vapor rises even higher. Sometimes the eruption lasts longer than Old Faithful's four minutes.

The dozens of minor tremors which followed the big one are still causing changes in the geyser fields. Tour guides will have a field day next season explaining the shifts. One group of European geologists already has booked lodging for next season to make their own survey.

Except for a few days right after the quake, little loss of business from tourists was reported even this year. Mayor Bauer attributes this to false reports of isolation stemming from minor road blocks.

The mayor admitted some Ennis citizens were concerned about the threat of flood based on early versions of quake damage to Hebgen Dam on the Madison River above Ennis.

"One of the widow women who kind of got scared moved out of town," Bauer recalled. "But I think they were looking for any excuse. The water has never gotten out of the river banks."

The major mark of the earthquake remains the giant slides of rocks—some as large as automobiles—which form a huge natural dam across the Madison between Ennis and the man-made Hebgen Dam. Buried beneath are bodies of some 20 campers, caught before they could escape from the doomed Rock Creek campground. The death toll from the quake throughout the region was 28.

At first there were some fears the Madison might build up above the slide and then burst through in a sudden flood. U. S. Army Engineers have removed this danger by cutting a long gorge through the slide. In places, it's 80 feet deep. A channel in the bottom of the gorge carries the waters of Quake Lake through a stretch of rapids and returns them to the old riverbed below the slide. This action greatly reduced the erosive force of the escaping water and lowered the level of Quake Lake by at least 50 feet. It shortened the lake from seven miles to about four.

During the danger period, emergency evacuation siren signals were set up in Ennis.

"We've never gotten around to taking them down," says Mayor Bauer. "But there's no need for them now."

LEGAL EXPERIMENT

Mobile Revamps Police Methods

By ALLAN MERRITT

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — Members of the police department's Mobile Reserve stopped a suspicious looking man on a street corner recently and questioned him.

The man's papers were in order and there was no evidence he had violated the law. He was released, but not until the officers had taken down his name, address, and description.

Soon afterward there was a strongarming a few blocks away. At district headquarters, the description of the robber was compared with that of the man who had been stopped by the Mobile Reserve. They matched.

The man was picked up and identified as the criminal.

The Mobile Reserve is just one of the ways St. Louis police tactics are being altered to stem a rising rate of crime. Others include the use of police dogs and an intensified training program for officers.

The number of foot patrolmen is being reduced in the interest of mobility. Officers are shifted to trouble spots as they are needed. Emphasis is placed on preventing crime.

The change in police methods has been going on for several months in an effort to solve a problem faced by metropolitan areas throughout the nation—how to do a better police job with the manpower available.

Police Chief Joseph E. Casey says a better job is being done in St. Louis. He gives a large measure of credit to the Mobile Reserve and the dogs. "I'm very enthusiastic about them," he says.

"They're in the department to stay."

The Mobile Reserve, which does most of its work at night, includes 70 patrolmen, plus sergeants and officers to direct it. It functions like military reinforcements during a battle.

The officers are deployed by Lt. Robert E. Matteson, a former Marine who keeps tab of the city's crime on maps studded with multi-colored pins on the walls of a room at police headquarters.

Sometimes the reserve is used to saturate a trouble spot. More often the force is split up and sent into the city's 12 police districts as reinforcements to meet special crime conditions.

The reserve went into operation early this year. In the first five months its members questioned more than 23,000 persons and checked more than 13,000 automobiles.

In one section of the city police statistics showed daylight burglaries were flourishing. The reserve was sent into the neighborhood. No burglars were caught but the rate of burglaries dropped 75 per cent immediately.

Casey feels one of the reserve's greatest values is its deterrent effect upon would-be criminals. "If a man has been questioned and knows we have his name and background, he's a lot less likely to commit a crime," Casey says.

The canine corps, started with four German shepherds and their handlers, now numbers 22 dog-and-man teams and will be expanded to perhaps 40 or 50.

In the year of the canine corps' existence the dogs have assisted in numerous arrests, have helped quell at least three unruly mobs and have located missing persons, property and prisoners.

Crime index figures of the Federal Bureau of Investigation seem to bear out the claim of H. Sam Priest, president of the Board of Police Commissioners, that the rising crime rate in St. Louis has been halted and perhaps even reversed.

For the first time since 1950 the figures for the first eight months of the year show a decrease, as compared with figures for the corresponding period of the preceding year.

Enjoying our late fall sunshine are Mr. and Mrs. Ben Shaw and their daughter, Lesley, guests last week of Mr. and Mrs. George Snellings, Jr. The visitors, who were honored at a number of parties during their visit, sailed on Wednesday aboard the S. S. Queen Mary for their home in Huddersfield, Yorkshire, England.

Pictured upper right is Mrs. William Taylor Fain, Jr., who before her marriage on Thanksgiving Day was Miss Clara Ann Starnes, daughter of Mrs. Thomas Clyde Starnes. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Fain, Sr., of Houston, Texas. The Rev. George W. Pomeroy officiated at the ceremony, which took place in the home of the bride's mother.

at left: The Cypress Street Church of God in West Monroe was the scene of the marriage November 25 of Miss Ina Faye Owens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Owens, Sr. and Jimmy V. Haddox, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Haddox. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Carl R. Owens, brother of the bride.

Miss Joy Ann Facheux, whose engagement and approaching marriage to Albert Thibeaux, Jr., is announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilhelm Joseph Facheux, Jr., of New Orleans. The wedding will be solemnized December 26 in New Orleans, where the young couple will make their home while the groom completes his studies at the Louisiana State university Medical school.

Pictured in the garden of their new home on North Second street are Mrs. Thomas B. Godfrey and two children, Katherine June and Thomas Blake. Mr. Godfrey and family have been stationed at Fort Bragg, North Carolina, for the past two years and have recently returned to Monroe.

Miss Ina Faye Owens, Jimmy Haddox Wed

Miss Ina Faye Owens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. L. Owens Sr., became the bride of Jimmy V. Haddox Wednesday, November 25. The Rev. Carl R. Owens, brother of the bride, officiated at the double ring ceremony in the Cypress Street Church of God in West Monroe. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Haddox of West Monroe.

Four candelabra holding white candles were used behind the altar, which was decorated with green smilax. The bride and groom stood beneath an archway wreathed with smilax and flanked with two baskets of white mums and greenery.

As the guests were being seated by the ushers, David Johnston and Gary Huckabay, a pre-nuptial concert was given by Miss Christine Clampit. Soloists were Mrs. Henry Little, who sang "My Own True Love", and Benny Andrews, singing "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride entered on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage. Her floor - length white gown of imported French hand - clipped lace over tulle and taffeta was fashioned with a Sabrina neckline and lily - pointed sleeves. Wide panels of lace over tulle and taffeta flowed to the floor in a chapel train. A crown of seed pearls and sequins held her lace - edged veil of illusion. She carried a white orchid surrounded with white carnations centered on a white Bible.

Her attendants were Miss Glenda Owens, maid of honor, and Mrs. Nell Foster, matron of honor, both sisters of the bride. They wore identical waltz length dresses of turquoise crystal peau. Turquoise satin was used for the fitted cummerbund and the streamers flowing over the skirt. Their headdresses were turquoise satin bands with matching veils. They carried colonial bouquets of pink carnations with pink satin streamers.

Miss Vickie Coody, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Coody, was flower girl. She wore a dress similar to those of the maid and matron of honor and carried a lace basket filled with pink carnations.

Wamul Owens, brother of the bride, served as best man. Groomsman was Baxter Bradsher. Ray Owens and Kenneth Foster, nephews of the bride, were ringbearers.

A reception was held in the banquet hall of the church immediately following the ceremony. For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Owens was wearing a dress of gray lace over pink taffeta with a pink feather hat, and pink gloves. Mrs. Haddox, mother of the groom, choose navy blue silk with a pink satin and sequin hat and pink gloves. Both wore a pink carnation corsage.

The bride's table was covered with a pink cloth overlaid with white lace. Centerpiece was an arrangement of pink carnations surrounded with white candles. Pink punch was served at one end of the table by Mrs. Carl Owens and Miss Christine Clampit. At the other end of the table was placed the tiered bride's cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom. Mrs. Mack L. Owens, Jr., and Miss Pat Turner served the cake.

Miss Ann Edwards presided at the bride's book.

The bride is a graduate of West Monroe High School and attended Northeast Louisiana State College. She is a member of the National Honor Society and the Senior Board at Northeast. Mr. Haddox is also a graduate of West Monroe High School, and a senior at Northeast Louisiana State. He is a member of the Northeast Louisiana Geological Society and of Scabbard and Blade.

Cancer Boards Will Attend Coffee Friday

Members of local boards of the American Cancer society and others interested in cancer control are invited to a coffee to be held in the conference room of the First National Bank of West Monroe, Friday, between the hours of four and six p.m.

Dr. R. N. Spencer, president of the Ouachita parish board, in issuing the invitation, stated that guests of honor will be John McCarthy and George Hogan, state staff executives from New Orleans.

Board members from the entire fifth district as well as others interested in cancer control are invited to attend the coffee.

Pilot Club Meets Tuesday For Dinner

Members of the Pilot Club International met for dinner at the Frances Hotel on Tuesday, December 1, 1959 at seven o'clock for the monthly business meeting of the club with the president, Mrs. A. D. Tisdale presiding.

Following the invocation by Mrs. M. D. Garlington, the members enjoyed the dinner served from a gaily decorated table featuring the green and gold Pilot Wheel, the emblem of the club.

Discussion of the dental care project for children was the main item of business. The club voted to begin the pilot project in one of the city elementary schools where a dental survey had been made. Plans were made to initiate a dental survey in one of the parish schools using seventh and eighth grade students. This entire dental project will be under the supervision of Mrs. H. M. Chatham, chairman of Community Service Committee, and will be assisted by the following members: Miss Hermione Driskell, Mrs. Horace Hatten, Miss Helen Benoit, Mrs. Ivy Smith, Mrs. Valleye Willis and Mrs. Zera Edwards.

The club voted to make a contribution to the annual party to be given for the Veteran's Hospital in Alexandria on Sunday, December 13th. Plans were made for the Christmas party to be given in one of the convalescent homes for the senior citizens as this is one of the projects for this year.

It was announced that the club would have the annual Christmas party for members in the home of the president, Mrs. Tisdale, on December 15th at 7:30 p.m. An exchange of gifts and Christmas caroling will be the features of the evening.

Members present were: Mrs. Zera Edwards, Mrs. H. G. Thompson, Miss Helen Benoit, Mrs. Alyne Newsome, Mrs. A. M. Barrett, Mrs. A. D. Tisdale, Miss Hermione Driskell, Mrs. Frank Parker, Mrs. James N. Riddle, Miss Katie McGee, Mrs. J. H. Carroll, Mrs. W. L. Harker, Mrs. Valleye Willis, Mrs. Ivy Smith, Mrs. George Breece, Mrs. Horace Hatten, Miss Ida Rose Strohm, Mrs. W. L. Moore, Sr., Mrs. H. M. Chatham, Miss Eleona Brinsmade, Mrs. H. D. Garlington, Mrs. Louis Mockabee, Mrs. Carroll Aiken, Annie Lee W. Stahl.

McConnell-Russell Rites Held In Baton Rouge

In the Fairfields Baptist church in Baton Rouge on Saturday, Miss Betty Joe Russell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marc M. Russell, was married to Albert Mitchell McConnell Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert McConnell, Sr. of Clinton, formerly of Mangham.

The Rev. Virgil Culpepper officiated at the double ring ceremony. Frank L. Dees was organist and the Rev. Alvin Hall was soloist for the selections "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Baskets of white chrysanthemums interspersed with greenery were used as decorations throughout the church.

Given in marriage by her father, Miss Russell wore a fitted beige wool suit trimmed with seed pearls. Her accessories were of pearlized brown leather, and her hat was designed of shaded beige feathers which blended with her suit. The bride's bouquet was of brown cymbidium orchids interspersed with bronze feather chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Jack DeMent served as her sister's only attendant and was attired in a brown wool suit trimmed in beige. Her accessories were brown and she carried a bouquet of bronze feather chrysanthemums.

John McConnell served as his brother's best man. Ushers were Robert McConnell, brother of the groom, and Dr. Jack DeMent.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Russell chose a Dior blue silk dress. On her shoulder was a corsage of white carnations. Mrs. McConnell's dress was of royal blue crepe and her corsage was pink carnations.

Immediately following the ceremony, guests were greeted at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's book was placed on a table centered with an arrangement of chrysanthemums.

In the dining area was the bride's table which was covered with a white hand-crocheted table cloth. At one end of the table was a tiered cake, topped with four silver wedding bells.

The cake was served by Mrs. Charles Monroe while Mrs. Purser Smith served punch from a large crystal bowl on the opposite side of the table. Arrangements of chrysanthemums were used throughout the house.

After a wedding trip to the Ozarks, the McConnell's will reside in Baton Rouge.

LaVingt Club Hears OPHS Ensemble

The December meeting of the La Vingt Club was held Wednesday, December 2nd, in the home of Mrs. W. W. Wilkerson on Trenton Street in West Monroe.

The president, Mrs. E. W. Cruze, called the meeting to order. The club collect was read in unison, after which a short business session was held.

Members of the club were entertained by the Ouachita Parish High School Ensemble who presented a selected number of Christmas songs under the direction of Mrs. Lloydell Birdsong.

Delicious refreshments were served from the tea table which was appointed with a silver bowl filled with red carnations and white mums sprinkled with glitter. Mrs. Cruze presided at the coffee service.

Present to enjoy the occasion was one guest, Mrs. Ora Evans, and the following members: Mrs. A. D. Bernhardt, Mrs. D. E. Bivens, Jr., Mrs. Ralph Caldwell, Mrs. E. W. Cruze, Mrs. William Crow, Mrs. Walter Knapp, Mrs. A. Petrus, Mrs. L. D. Ritter, Mrs. Wayne Warren, Mrs. W. O. Webb, Mrs. W. W. Wilkerson, Mrs. Cecil Hill, Mrs. V. H. Reitzell, and Mrs. Bruce Brooks.

MR. AND MRS. STEWART STOVER cut their wedding cake at the reception following their marriage at Our Lady of Fatima Catholic Church.

Church Wedding Unites Miss Bradley, Mr. Stover

Miss Johnette Bradley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Bradley of Oak Grove, became the bride of Stewart "Smokey" Stover, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Stover of Seminole, Oklahoma. The Rev. George Martinez officiated at the double ring ceremony at Our Lady of Fatima Catholic Church at four in the afternoon, November 24.

The church was decorated with an arch entwined with magnolia leaves and flanked with baskets of white gladioli. White candles and magnolia leaves were used on the altar rail. A pre-nuptial concert was given by Mrs. Evelyn O'Connor while the guests were being seated by the ushers, Jim Laudadio and Fred Feency.

The bride entered on the arm of her uncle, Fred Herelvic, who gave her in marriage. Her floor length white satin dress was fashioned with a fitted bodice, scalloped lace. A lace cap trimmed with seed pearls held her shoulder length veil of nylon tulle. Her bouquet was a purple orchid encircled with white pompon chrysanthemums and white ribbon streamers.

Maid of honor was Miss Jo Ella McCleary, who wore royal blue velvet with a net overskirt. Her headdress was a short veil of blue nylon tulle, embroidered with scattered pearls. She carried white pompon chrysanthemums in a bouquet with blue velvet leaves.

Mrs. Clyde Moreau and Miss Jeanette McDonald were bridesmaids. They wore dresses of light blue velveteen with net overskirts. Their headdresses and bouquets were identical to those of the maid of honor. Lisa Cartwright was flower girl. She wore a full length blue taffeta dress with a headband of blue velvet flowers and carried a nosegay of white pompon chrysanthemums.

Best man was Larry Bradley and Clyde Moreau and Bob Tatum served as groomsmen. The ringbearer was Nicky Hervelic.

A reception was held in the recreation room of the church immediately after the ceremony. Mrs. Bradley chose for her daughter's wedding a dress of blue antique taffeta, with which she wore a white hat and a corsage of white carnations.

For travelling, the bride changed into a royal blue wool suit, worn with matching accessories and an orchid corsage. Mrs. Stover formerly attended Northeast State College.

Upon their return, the couple will be at home on Webster street in Monroe, while the groom continues his studies at Northeast State College.

Colony HDC Meets With Mrs. Huckabee

The business meeting and Christmas party of Colony Home Demonstration club was held in the home of Mrs. N. L. Huckabee with Mrs. R. W. Heagwood, co-hostess.

Mrs. Earl and Mrs. Heagwood gave Christmas readings. Roll call was answered with a Bible verse concerning the birth of Christ.

Members present were Mrs. Mrs. L. J. Bowers, Mrs. Henry Bowers, Mrs. Patti Carr, Mrs. E. W. Earl, Mrs. Frank Edney, Mrs. H. W. Gill, Mrs. M. M. Goodwin, Mrs. M. H. Goddard, Mrs. A. J. Hudson, Sr., Mrs. Heagwood, Mrs. N. L. Huckabee, Mrs. J. Heagwood, Mrs. Fred Hayton, Mrs. Charles Lawrence, Mrs. I. C. Moat, Mrs. Percy Neely, Mrs. Arthur West, Mrs. E. O. Welch, Mrs. C. C. Bedenbough, Mrs. W. W. Thompson, Mrs. T. J. Polaud, Mrs. John Adams, Mrs. J. N. Neely, Mrs. Lizzie Burnette and one visitor, Mrs. Goren Burnice.

The January 6 meeting will be at the Agriculture Building, 2 p.m.

Penwomen Meet With Poetry Society Here

Katherine Kelly Woodley of Lake Charles was guest speaker at the November luncheon of the North Louisiana Branch of the National League of American Pen Women, when it met in joint session with the Northeast Branch of the Louisiana State Poetry Society at the Frances Hotel.

Mrs. Woodley reviewed her latest book "Echoes Through the Years." Of special interest was the portrait of "Gardenia, the Library Cat," a large white feline that inhabits Ouachita Parish Library.

Mrs. V. S. Garnett announced that Mrs. James Russell has been named to serve as delegate to the national convention of State Poetry Societies, in Philadelphia, next April. Mrs. W. E. McCoy was the winner of the award presented each year by the society for the most outstanding work done with the group to promote poetry.

Mrs. Clifford LaFrance introduced Mrs. John H. Crump, a new member of the state poetry society.

In addition to those mentioned above, members and guests attending the luncheon were: Mesdames Annie Lee West Stahl, Elose Tugwell, Debbie Nettles, Ruth Dawkins, Hazel Harston, Ruth Davis, Adelaid Lawson, Zephyr Tarver, Ivy Oliver, Ethel Thomlinson, Anabel Panke, Bess James, Charlene Brown, Vivien Combs and Emma Hunnucut.

Seventy At Mo-Pac Women's Club Meeting

Seventy members and guests of the Missouri Pacific Women's club were served Thanksgiving dinner preceding the regular November meeting.

Mrs. J. W. Folk presided at the business meeting in the absence of Mrs. R. W. Hixson, club president. Mrs. Folk congratulated members who are participating in civic work. A recently completed project was that of dressing dolls for the Salvation Army Christmas baskets.

Plans were discussed for the children's party which is held annually for youngsters of Missouri Pacific families.

Sumrall-Light Nuptials Are Announced

Announcement is made today of the marriage of George Sumrall, Jr., of San Diego, Calif., son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Sumrall of Monroe, to the former Miss Geannie Lynn Light of San Diego, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Light of Casper, Wyoming.

The double ring ceremony was performed in the Chapel of the White Stars in Las Vegas, Nevada, on November 14.

The bride wore a sheath of white lace over satin with a white hat and powder blue shoes and gloves. She carried a white orchid tied with satin streamers.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Vinzeans of San Diego attended the couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Sumrall are now at home in San Diego, where he is stationed with the U. S. Navy.

December came in with a flourish Wednesday night at a beautiful party hosted by the R. C. SPARKS at the Bayou DeSiard country club. The club was in holiday attire, with red and green and gilt predominating in the decorations.

The table near the entrance of the club held a large arrangement of magnolia leaves centered with gilded fruit. Over the doors to the main lounge were long swags of greenery used with the fruit.

Large wrought iron candle trees were used on the wall at each end of the room. Magnolia leaves and holly berries were entwined among the red candles. A pair of stylized holly trees in red tubs were placed against the long wall. On the piano was a figurine holding a gilt candelabra. A rope of greenery wound round the candles and across the piano.

The refreshment table in the center of the room held a tiered epergne holding a mass arrangement of red carnations. Twin silver chafing dishes held an unusual hot dip flavored with Roquefort and blue cheese. Whole shrimp filled a silver Revere bowl, while a smaller bowl held hot sauce for dipping.

On a side table was a king-size roast of beef. Hot biscuits, natural gravy, horseradish, and pickles were offered with the beef, and guests enjoyed making tiny sandwiches. Several hundred guests called between the hours of seven and nine o'clock.

The mail this week contained a number of invitations foretelling gala times ahead. On Wednesday of this week, SHIRLEY LEA, MARY LOU FREEMAN, JANICE CALDWELL, and DOTTIE LAW will entertain with a coffee party at the Caldwell home on Park avenue.

Thursday afternoon, MARGARET ANN TIDWELL and ELIZABETH ATKINSON will be hostesses at a tea from three to five. The party will be held in Margaret Ann's new home on Westminster.

On Saturday night the CLIFFORD STRAUSS home on Deborah Drive will be the scene of the second of two parties. (The first was held last night.) Co-hosts for these affairs are JEAN and SAUL MINTZ and PEGGY and JIM GREENBAUM.

The GROVER HOLLOWAYS and the ROBERT WEAVERS have invited friends to a reception on the evening of Wednesday, December 16. The party will be at the Paragon Club between the hours of seven and nine in the evening.

The younger teen-age set are eagerly awaiting the night of December 22. Received this week were formal invitations bidding them attend a dancing party between the hours of nine and one. LINDA and JUDY ENGSTROM will be hostesses at the Paragon club ballroom.

□ □ □

Members of the Big Timers dance club are looking forward to Wednesday night, and their Christmas dance at the Bayou DeSiard country club. The social hour preceding the dance will begin at 7:30. Freddy Martin's orchestra will play for dancing between the hours of nine and one. Breakfast will be served at the club after the dance.

The December meeting of the Monroe Garden club will be held tomorrow, rather than on the second Monday of the month, to avoid conflict with Christmas. Theme of the meeting is "Harvest from the Past", with interpretations from the judges. CARRIE M'KENZIE will do the twenty-fifth anniversary centerpiece. The club meets at two p.m. at the Paragon club.

Girls of the college set who were home for the Thanksgiving holidays last weekend attended a coffee party Saturday morning at the home of JACKIE MASUR. Jackie entertained in honor of her house guest, GLORIA YOUNGE of Peoria, Illinois. The girls are classmates at Southern Methodist university in Dallas.

Yellow Fuji and pom pon chrysanthemums were used in the living room, where the guests gathered. Bronze mums centered the dining buffet, which was laden with fruit cake, date nut bread, and various "finger foods". The group saw movies made at parties they had previously attended together.

Last night the CHARLES SLADES, JR., entertained at an "election party". About thirty friends were invited to come for buffet supper and to wait for the returns from the polls. In the entrance hall was an arrangement of fall leaves used with a figure of a Democratic donkey. On the buffet the centerpiece was of yellow chrysanthemums. Included on the menu were such items as "Platform (escalloped) Chicken", "Favorite Son (shrimp) salad," and "Hat in the (aspic) Ring" salad.

The ALLEN JONES family's new home on Pargoud boulevard was the scene of merriment on Friday last. Six couples, all intimate friends, descended for a surprise party. They came bearing gifts and refreshments, and from all reports it was a most successful gala.

Sixty second graders were invited to help SUSAN ALEXANDER celebrate her seventh birthday at a skating party on Saturday. The group played, Stop the Music, with KATHLEEN WITTY an BILL HALE winning the prizes. Christmas tree suckers were given as favors. Susan's name was embossed on the cake squares which were served with soft drinks.

Speaking of children's parties, we hear that the one honoring BUDDY BURGESS of Mangham on his fifth birthday was something special. Favors were Mighty Mouse red capes and caps with big black ears, designed and made by Buddy's grandmother, MRS. JOHANNA PIRO. Mighty Mouse cake was served with ice cream to twenty - four children.

On Tuesday afternoon, VEE MARSHALL celebrated her seventh birthday with a skating party. Some sixty children came to skate, with ROBERT SHELTON and JEANNIE FRAZER being judged the best. BETHIA BROWN and CLAIRE JONES won prizes at the Stop the Music game. Doughnuts and sofe drinks were refreshments, with packages of gum given as favors.

Here is "Madman's Song" by Elinor Wylie:

Better to see your cheek grown hollow,
Better to see your temple worn,
Than to forget to follow, follow,
After the sound of a silver horn.
Better to bind your brow with willow
And follow, follow until you die,
Than to sleep with your head on a golden pillow,
Nor lift it up when the hunt goes by.
Better to see your cheek grown sallow,
And your hair grown gray, so soon, so soon.
Than to forget to hallo, hallo, hallo,
After the milk-white hounds of the moon.

B&PW Club's Monthly Program Meeting Held

The regular monthly program meeting of the Business and Professional Women's club was held Tuesday, November 24, at the Y. W. C. A.

Mrs. Billie Harrell, president, welcomed the members and guest and drew attention to the more than fifty dolls on display which had been dressed by the club members for the Salvation Army Christmas project. An announcement was made of the annual Christmas party to be held December 8, at 7:30 in the home of Mrs. Laura Slator. Each guest is to bring a gift.

The program was in charge of the committee on health and safety, the subject being "Effective Living through Health and Safety Practices." Mrs. Fay Heard as chairman introduced Miss Lillian Edwards of the Louisiana Health department who spoke on the functions of her department and showed a film explaining the method of mouth to mouth rescue breathing.

Miss Ruth Rogers, travel and fashion consultant for the Matson Steam Ship company and Larry Wagnor, district passenger representative for the company were then introduced.

Miss Rogers modeled four dresses designed and manufactured in Hawaii. These dresses can only be purchased in the Islands and are not available on the mainland.

Hostesses for the occasion was the public affairs committee, composed of Mrs. Evelyn Panky, Mrs. Lela Breard, Mrs. Johnnie Elbert, Mrs. Minnie Thibeaux and Mrs. Ella Pearl Sutton.

The linen covered table was artistically decorated with yellow and orchid chrysanthemums as a centerpiece with yellow candelabra at each end. Mrs. Breard and Mrs. Sutton poured coffee and tea from a silver service.

The buffet was decorated with paper mache turkeys and fruit symbolic of the Thanksgiving season. The entrance hall had a Pilgrim scene complete with tiny church.

The following guest and members were present: Mrs. Pankey, Miss Alice Baur, Mrs. Bessie Skinner, Miss Maibel Hood, Mrs. Heard, Mrs. Ava White, Mrs. Breard, Mrs. Opal Creasy, Mrs. Flora M. Seasmon, Mrs. Elizabeth Burdeaux, Mrs. Gladys Miles, Mrs. Billie Harrell, Mrs. Thibeaux, Miss Mary OKelly, Miss Mamie Ober, Miss Alberta D'Amico, Miss Ruth Whatley, Mrs. Helen Trichel, Miss Sutton, Mrs. Nethal McDermott, Mrs. Alma Bushnall, Mrs. Lois Harrell, Mrs. Mabel Wright, Mrs. Mae Modes, Mrs. Myrtle Porter, Mrs. Helen Luckett, Mrs. Zylpha Wainwright, Mrs. Thas Gwin, Mrs. Jewel Wise, Mrs. Carice King, Mrs. Marguerite Williamson, Mrs. Marguerite Meek, and guests were Miss Lillian Edwards, Miss Ruth Rogers, Larry Wagner, Mrs. Joe Combs and Eloise Hunt.

December came in with a flourish Wednesday night at a beautiful party hosted by the R. C. SPARKS at the Bayou DeSiard country club. The club was in holiday attire, with red and green and gilt predominating in the decorations.

The table near the entrance of the club held a large arrangement of magnolia leaves centered with gilded fruit. Over the doors to the main lounge were long swags of greenery used with the fruit.

Large wrought iron candle trees were used on the wall at each end of the room. Magnolia leaves and holly berries were entwined among the red candles. A pair of stylized holly trees in red tubs were placed against the long wall. On the piano was a figurine holding a gilt candelabra. A rope of greenery wound round the candles and across the piano.

The refreshment table in the center of the room held a tiered epergne holding a mass arrangement of red carnations. Twin silver chafing dishes held an unusual hot dip flavored with Roquefort and blue cheese. Whole shrimp filled a silver Revere bowl, while a smaller bowl held hot sauce for dipping.

On a side table was a king-size roast of beef. Hot biscuits, natural gravy, horseradish, and pickles were offered with the beef, and guests enjoyed making tiny sandwiches. Several hundred guests called between the hours of seven and nine o'clock.

The mail this week contained a number of invitations foretelling gala times ahead. On Wednesday of this week, SHIRLEY LEA, MARY LOU FREEMAN, JANICE CALDWELL, and DOTTIE LAW will entertain with a coffee party at the Caldwell home on Park avenue.

Thursday afternoon, MARGARET ANN TIDWELL and ELIZABETH ATKINSON will be hostesses at a tea from three to five. The party will be held in Margaret Ann's new home on Westminster.

On Saturday night the CLIFFORD STRAUSS home on Deborah Drive will be the scene of the second of two parties. (The first was held last night.) Co-hosts for these affairs are JEAN and SAUL MINTZ and PEGGY and JIM GREENBAUM.

The GROVER HOLLOWAYS and the ROBERT WEAVERS have invited friends to a reception on the evening of Wednesday, December 16. The party will be at the Paragon Club between the hours of seven and nine in the evening.

The younger teen-age set are eagerly awaiting the night of December 22. Received this week were formal invitations bidding them attend a dancing party between the hours of nine and one. LINDA and JUDY ENGSTROM will be hostesses at the Paragon club ballroom.

Members of the Big Timers dance club are looking forward to Wednesday night, and their Christmas dance at the Bayou DeSiard country club. The social hour preceding the dance will begin at 7:30. Freddy Martin's orchestra will play for dancing between the hours of nine and one. Breakfast will be served at the club after the dance.

The December meeting of the Monroe Garden club will be held tomorrow, rather than on the second Monday of the month, to avoid conflict with Christmas. Theme of the meeting is "Harvest from the Past", with interpretations from the judges. CARRIE MCKENZIE will do the twenty-fifth anniversary centerpiece. The club meets at two p.m. at the Paragon club.

Girls of the college set who were home for the Thanksgiving holidays last weekend attended a coffee party Saturday morning at the home of JACKIE MASUR. Jackie entertained in honor of her house guest, GLORIA YOUNGE of Peoria, Illinois. The girls are classmates at Southern Methodist university in Dallas.

Yellow Fuji and pom pon chrysanthemums were used in the living room, where the guests gathered. Bronze mums centered the dining buffet, which was laden with fruit cake, date nut bread, and various "finger foods". The group saw movies made at parties they had previously attended together.

Last night the CHARLES SLADES, JR., entertained at an "election party". About thirty friends were invited to come for buffet supper and to wait for the returns from the polls. In the entrance hall was an arrangement of fall leaves used with a figure of a Democratic donkey. On the buffet the centerpiece was of yellow chrysanthemums. Included on the menu were such items as "Platform (escalloped) Chicken", "Favorite Son (shrimp) salad," and "Hat in the (aspic) Ring" salad.

The ALLEN JONES family's new home on Pargoud boulevard was the scene of merriment on Friday last. Six couples, all intimate friends, descended for a surprise party. They came bearing gifts and refreshments, and from all reports it was a most successful gala.

Sixty second graders were invited to help SUSAN ALEXANDER celebrate her seventh birthday at a skating party on Saturday. The group played, Stop the Music, with KATHLEEN WITTY an BILL HALE winning the prizes. Christmas tree suckers were given as favors. Susan's name was embossed on the cake squares which were served with soft drinks.

Speaking of children's parties, we hear that the one honoring BUDDY BURGESS of Mangham on his fifth birthday was something special. Favors were Mighty Mouse red capes and caps with big black ears, designed and made by Buddy's grandmother, MRS. JOHANNA PIRO. Mighty Mouse cake was served with ice cream to twenty - four children.

On Tuesday afternoon, VEE MARSHALL celebrated her seventh birthday with a skating party. Some sixty children came to skate, with ROBERT SHELTON and JEANNIE FRAZER being judged the best. BETHIA BROWN and CLAIRE JONES won prizes at the Stop the Music game. Doughnuts and sofe drinks were refreshments, with packages of gum given as favors.

Here is "Madman's Song" by Elinor Wylie:

Better to see your cheek grown hollow,
Better to see your temple worn,
Than to forget to follow, follow,
After the sound of a silver horn.
Better to bind your brow with willow
And follow, follow until you die,
Than to sleep with your head on a golden pillow,
Nor lift it up when the hunt goes by.
Better to see your cheek grown sallow,
And your hair grown gray, so soon, so soon,
Than to forget to hallo, hallo,
After the milk-white hounds of the moon.

B&PW Club's Monthly Program Meeting Held

The regular monthly program meeting of the Business and Professional Women's club was held Tuesday, November 24, at the Y. W. C. A.

Mrs. Billie Harrell, president, welcomed the members and guest and drew attention to the more than fifty dolls on display which had been dressed by the club members for the Salvation Army Christmas project. An announcement was made of the annual Christmas party to be held December 8, at 7:30 in the home of Mrs. Laura Slator. Each guest is to bring a gift.

The program was in charge of the committee on health and safety, the subject being "Effective Living through Health and Safety Practices." Mrs. Fay Heard as chairman introduced Miss Lillian Edwards of the Louisiana Health department who spoke on the functions of her department and showed a film explaining the method of mouth to mouth rescue breathing.

Miss Ruth Rogers, travel and fashion consultant for the Matson Steam Ship company and Larry Wagnor, district passenger representative for the company were then introduced.

Miss Rogers modeled four dresses designed and manufactured in Hawaii. These dresses can only be purchased in the Islands and are not available on the mainland.

Hostesses for the occasion was the public affairs committee, composed of Mrs. Evelyn Panky, Mrs. Lela Breard, Mrs. Johnnie Elbert, Mrs. Minnie Thibeaux and Mrs. Ella Pearl Sutton.

The linen covered table was artistically decorated with yellow and orchid chrysanthemums as a centerpiece with yellow candelabra at each end. Mrs. Breard and Mrs. Sutton poured coffee and tea from a silver service.

The buffet was decorated with paper mache turkeys and fruit symbolic of the Thanksgiving season. The entrance hall had a Pilgrim scene complete with tiny church.

The following guest and members were present: Mrs. Pankey, Miss Alice Baur, Mrs. Bessie Skinner, Miss Maibel Hood, Mrs. Heard, Mrs. Ava White, Mrs. Breard, Mrs. Opal Creasy, Mrs. Flora M. Seasmon, Mrs. Elizabeth Burdeaux, Mrs. Gladys Miles, Mrs. Billie Harrell, Mrs. Thibeaux, Miss Mary OKelly, Miss Mamie Ober, Miss Alberta D'Amico, Miss Ruth Whatley, Mrs. Helen Trichel, Miss Sutton, Mrs. Nethal McDermott, Mrs. Alma Bushnall, Mrs. Lois Harrell, Mrs. Mabel Wright, Mrs. Mae Modes, Mrs. Myrtle Porter, Mrs. Helen Luckett, Mrs. Zylpha Wainwright, Mrs. Inas Gwin, Mrs. Jewel Wisc, Mrs. Carice King, Mrs. Marguerite Williamson, Mrs. Marguerite Meek, and guests were Miss Lillian Edwards, Miss Ruth Rogers, Larry Wagner, Mrs. Joe Combs and Eloise Hunt.

Smith-Kirkland Wedding Solemnized In Oak Grove

The wedding of Miss Peggy Jean Kirkland and Arden Jess Smith was solemnized on Saturday evening, November 28, in the First Methodist Church, of Oak Grove, Louisiana, with the Reverend Mr. W. O. Lynch, officiating at the double ring ceremony. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Kirkland, of Bayou Meadows Farms, Pioneer, Louisiana, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arden Bennett Smith, of Oak Grove.

Tall baskets containing white stock were placed against a background of palms about the altar, and the vows were spoken beneath a white wrought-iron arch entwined with white carnations and white satin ribbons. Two white tapers were lighted by Joe H. Nobles, of Shreveport, and Tommy Malone, of Farmerville.

While the guests were being seated by the ushers, Charles Pollard, of Columbia, Don Major, of Kilbourne, Mr. Malone and Mr. Nobles, soft organ music was played by Miss Dee Hamilton. Miss Hamilton also accompanied Mrs. Charles Pollard, who sang "Because" and "If I could Tell You", and who, with Mr. Pollard, sang "The Lord's Prayer" at the conclusion of the ritual.

Miss Virginia Kirkland was her sister's maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Miss Lynn Lawrence, of Alexandria, and Miss Sara Standifer, of Forest. Fashioned of ice blue taffeta with cobalt blue midriff, their ballerina dresses had bateau necklines and short sleeves, and they wore matching half-hats and slippers. Their bouquets were of American beauty roses. Little Miss Deborah Gay Pichoff was the flower girl, and her full-skirted frock was of cobalt blue taffeta with ice blue midriff, with a matching ribbon in her hair.

Entering with her father, who gave her in marriage, the bride wore a gown of French hand-clipped Chantilly lace over satin, with Sabrina neckline, fitted bodice, and long pointed sleeves. The bouffant skirt had a scalloped hemline, with the shirred, ruffled back of lace and tulle extending in a chapel train. Her veil was of Chantilly lace, and fell from a crown of lace and pleated tulle trimmed with pearls. A purple throated white orchid centered her bouquet of white Maiden roses, and her only ornament was a necklace of pearls.

Mr. Smith was attended as best man by Ed E. Cannon, Jr, of Oak Grove.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Kirkland wore a gown of French blue lace over taffeta, with portrait neckline. Her hat was fashioned of the lace, and her slippers were blue. Mrs. Smith's dress was cafe-au-lait silk lace over pink satin, with which she wore iridescent slippers and a hat of matching hue. Their corsages were Cattleya orchids.

RECEPTION

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Kirkland were hosts at a reception at the American Legion Home, in Oak Grove. Blue and white flowers were placed at vantage points about the rooms, with a bower arrangement of blue carnations placed on the mantel. Members of the bridal party and the parents of the groom assisted in receiving.

The refreshment tables were covered with white embroidered linens, with blue candles and white carnations placed down the center. Mrs. Joe Nobles, sister of the groom, and Mrs. R. H. Crow, aunt of the bride, both of Shreveport, served the wedding cake, assisted by Mrs. Ed E. Cannon, Jr. Alternating at the punch tables were Mrs. W. O. James, Mrs. Arnold Kuykendall, Mrs. Edgar McCormick, Mrs. W. C. Hudson, and Mrs. L. H. Willis.

MRS. ARDEN JESS SMITH

Mrs. Meredith Crook was in charge of the bride's book.

Later in the evening, when Mr. and Mrs. Smith departed for their wedding trip to New Orleans and the Gulf coast, the bride was wearing a suit of Alice blue imported wool with fox fur collar and little fur hat. Her accessories were in black, and at her shoulder she wore the orchid from her bridal bouquet. Upon their return, they will be at home in the Calloway Apartments, in Oak Grove.

Among the guests from out of town who attended the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Merle B. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Norval B. Smith, and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Pierce all of Pine Bluff, Arkansas; Mrs. Roy Robertson and Jack L. May, of Monroe; Dr. and Mrs. Loys Huckaby, Jr., of Bastrop; Dr. and Mrs. James Fraser, Montgomery, Alabama; J. R. Pratt, Crockett, Texas; and Miss Nancy McCormick, of New Orleans.

MISS JOY JEAN FEAZEL, whose engagement and approaching marriage to Emmitt Lee Curry of Delhi is announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Max L. Feazel of West Monroe. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. (Bill) Curry of Delhi. The wedding is planned for three o'clock in the afternoon of December 20 at the Ridge Avenue Baptist church, with the Rev. A. T. Mitchell officiating.

CLEANLINESS

Many small children — about six years or even older — need to be given "laws" governing personal habits of cleanliness. Otherwise they don't understand the importance of hygiene. Here are two essential laws for parents to enforce: "Before we eat we wash our hands" and "Before we leave the bathroom we wash our hands." If these rules are strictly observed — and it's up to the parents to see that they are —they will become automatic in time. Then you will have established good personal hygiene standards in your child for life.

Miss Faucheux Engaged To Albert Thibeaux, Jr.

The engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Joy Ann Faucheux to Albert Thibeaux, Jr., is announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilhelm Joseph Faucheux, Jr., of New Orleans. Mr. Thibeaux is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Thibeaux of Monroe.

The wedding will take place at St. Leo the Great Catholic church in New Orleans on December 26. Father Clements will officiate at the ceremony at ten o'clock in the morning.

Miss Faucheux has chosen her sister, Miss Martha Ann Faucheux, to attend her as maid of honor. The bridesmaids are to be the Misses Margot Gearheard of Lutcher and Mary Anne Crawford of New Orleans. The bride-elect's younger sister, Barbara Ann Faucheux, will be flower girl and her brother, Billy Faucheux, ring bearer.

Albert Thibeaux will serve his son as best man and the groomsmen-ushers are to be Bob Sigerson of New Orleans, Bobby Wilson of Monroe, Robert Tedeaux of Chalmette, Calvin Bourgeois of Guy LeBlanc, both of New Orleans.

The bride-to-be is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Bourgeois of New Orleans and Mrs. Wilhelm Joseph Faucheux and the late Mr. Faucheux of Lutcher. Miss Faucheux is presently attending Louisiana State University, where she is a member of Beta Sigma Omicron sorority, and from which she will be graduated in January.

The prospective bridegroom is the grandson of Mrs. W. C. Martin of Monroe and the late Mr. Martin of Natchitoches, and of the late Mr. and Mrs. Norbert Thibeaux of Delcambre. He is a graduate of St. Matthew's High School and received his BS degree from Louisiana State University, where he was a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity. He is presently attending Louisiana State University Medical school in New Orleans, where he Morgan City, Mark Roy Jr., and will continue his studies following his marriage to Miss Faucheux. They will live in New Orleans.

Plum St. PTA Has Christmas Tea At School

An early Christmas tea was given by the Plum Street School Parent - Teacher Association in the auditorium. As guests arrived, they were greeted by the entertainment chairman, Mrs. W. A. Whitfield, with the room mother chairman, Mrs. Michael Solomon, assisting.

The serving table was covered with a white cloth and centered with a lovely pink and silver arrangement of candles and magnolias, with Miss Eloise Cann presiding at the silver service. A conversational center was a three tier net tree in pink by Mrs. Leonard Hancock. The members and guests brought gifts of demi-tasse cups for the unit's entertainment programs. A pink deer under a silver tree by Mrs. T. G. McMath was placed on the piano.

During the coffee hour the children of the five grades sang Christmas carols. They were presented under the direction of Miss Hermoine Driscoll, city school music supervisor, assisted at the piano by Mrs. Nelda Dunn.

Better Home Maker's HDC Plans Party

The Better Home Maker's Home Demonstration Club met on Thursday, November 19. in the home of Mrs. Pat Wright, 3300 Dick Taylor St.

Mrs. Frank Buce, president, conducted the business meeting. A discussion followed concerning the Christmas party, which will be held December 15 at the Paragon Club.

Mrs. Audrey Dawson, home demonstration agent, gave a chart illustrated talk on "Meats in the Family Meals," showing types and grades of meat, ways of cooking and temperatures needed to get the maximum flavor and eatibility.

Refreshments were served to Mrs. Buce, Mrs. Kate Everitt, Mrs. Jessie Liggin, Mrs. Dorothy Johnson, Mrs. Buster Crowley, Mrs. Martha Logan, Mrs. Earnest Grubbs, Mrs. Carolyn Gannaway, Mrs. Lois Miller, Mrs. Velva Deaton, Mrs. Wright, Mrs. J. Smith, and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Pierce all of Pine Bluff, Arkansas; Mr. and Mrs. Pierce, all of Pine Bluff, Arkansas; Mrs. Roy Robertson and Jack L. May, of Monroe; Dr. and Mrs. Loys Huckaby, Jr., of Bastrop; Dr. and Mrs. James Fraser, Montgomery, Alabama; J. R. Pratt, Crockett, Texas; and Miss Nancy McCormick, of New Orleans.

MISS JOY JEAN FEAZEL, whose engagement and approaching marriage to Emmitt Lee Curry of Delhi is announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Max L. Feazel of West Monroe. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. (Bill) Curry of Delhi. The wedding is planned for three o'clock in the afternoon of December 20 at the Ridge Avenue Baptist church, with the Rev. A. T. Mitchell officiating.

CLEANLINESS

Many small children — about six years or even older — need to be given "laws" governing personal habits of cleanliness. Otherwise they don't understand the importance of hygiene. Here are two essential laws for parents to enforce: "Before we eat we wash our hands" and "Before we leave the bathroom we wash our hands." If these rules are strictly observed — and it's up to the parents to see that they are —they will become automatic in time. Then you will have established good personal hygiene standards in your child for life.

Miss Faucheux Engaged To Albert Thibeaux, Jr.

The engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Joy Ann Faucheux to Albert Thibeaux, Jr., is announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilhelm Joseph Faucheux, Jr., of New Orleans. Mr. Thibeaux is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Thibeaux of Monroe.

The wedding will take place at St. Leo the Great Catholic church in New Orleans on December 26. Father Clements will officiate at the ceremony at ten o'clock in the morning.

Miss Faucheux has chosen her sister, Miss Martha Ann Faucheux, to attend her as maid of honor. The bridesmaids are to be the Misses Margot Gearheard of Lutcher and Mary Anne Crawford of New Orleans. The bride-elect's younger sister, Barbara Ann Faucheux, will be flower girl and her brother, Billy Faucheux, ring bearer.

Albert Thibeaux will serve his son as best man and the groomsmen-ushers are to be Bob Sigerson of New Orleans, Bobby Wilson of Monroe, Robert Tedeaux of Chalmette, Calvin Bourgeois of Guy LeBlanc, both of New Orleans.

The bride-to-be is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Bourgeois of New Orleans and Mrs. Wilhelm Joseph Faucheux and the late Mr. Faucheux of Lutcher. Miss Faucheux is presently attending Louisiana State University, where she is a member of Beta Sigma Omicron sorority, and from which she will be graduated in January.

The prospective bridegroom is the grandson of Mrs. W. C. Martin of Monroe and the late Mr. Martin of Natchitoches, and of the late Mr. and Mrs. Norbert Thibeaux of Delcambre. He is a graduate of St. Matthew's High School and received his BS degree from Louisiana State University, where he was a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity. He is presently attending Louisiana State University Medical school in New Orleans, where he will continue his studies following his marriage to Miss Faucheux. They will live in New Orleans.

Plum St. PTA Has Christmas Tea At School

An early Christmas tea was given by the Plum Street School Parent - Teacher Association in the auditorium. As guests arrived, they were greeted by the entertainment chairman, Mrs. W. A. Whitfield, with the room mother chairman, Mrs. Michael Solomon, assisting.

The serving table was covered with a white cloth and centered with a lovely pink and silver arrangement of candles and magnolias, with Miss Eloise Cann presiding at the silver service. A conversational center was a three tier net tree in pink by Mrs. Leonard Hancock. The members and guests brought gifts of demitasse cups for the unit's entertainment programs. A pink deer under a silver tree by Mrs. T. G. McMath was placed on the piano.

During the coffee hour the children of the five grades sang Christmas carols. They were presented under the direction of Miss Hermoine Driscoll, city school music supervisor, assisted at the piano by Mrs. Nelda Dunn.

Mothers Teach Prevention Of Accidents

"The mothers of the community have done more in prevention of accidents to children than any other one factor. This has been accomplished by their everyday instilling of safety habits and cautions to their children." These words were brought to the Crosley P.T.A. at their November meeting by West Monroe Chief of Police Caldwell.

Some 75 to 100 persons heard Mr. Caldwell give an interesting report on the Police Department of West Monroe and their efforts towards the safety of the community. The program on safety was brought to the unit by Safety Chairman, Mrs. D. M. Frantom, Jr.

A membership of 355 was reported by Mrs. G. C. Bedenbender, Membership Chairman. Mrs. T. C. Cockerham reported that the executive board had recommended a spaghetti supper and talent show in February, the unit adopted the recommendation.

Membership awards were given to Mrs. Gaston's second grade, 100 per cent; Mrs. Roussell's third grade and Mrs. Jordan's fifth grade, 80 per cent. Room count prize went to Mrs. Roussell's third grade.

The refreshment table was presided over by mothers from Mrs. Armstrong's fifth grade.

MIX WASH

When loading your washing machine, mix large items with smaller ones for best results. For example, suds big sheets along with towels and pillow cases.

DON'T SOAK

Don't soak fabrics with a permanent finish. Instead, pre-treat badly soiled areas with thick soap or detergent suds, rubbing gently with your fingers or a soft brush.

The couple will make their home in Houston.

Girl Scout News

If we seem to write often of troop camping, it's because the girls who are lucky enough to have the experience think it's the most fun ever. Too, we hope Brownie Scouts and their leaders will be looking forward to overnight camping when they are older.

Eighteen girls of Troop 8 are the latest group to have had the adventurous experience at Pine Wood. Accompanied by their leader, Mrs. E. M. Varnado, Mrs. G. R. Fowler, and Mrs. P. L. Johnson and by Mickie Varnado of Troop 24 and Jane Edwards of Troop 1, the girls took advantage of the Thanksgiving holiday to go to camp. They used opportunity to practice skills that will help them qualify for the Adventurer and Camperaft badges.

Several troops have found it fun to go on a night hike from camp, so these girls tried the idea, going by the road to the old ferry landing at Ouachita City. Of course, a daytime hike was a must, as well as the usual cooking out of doors, kapers, sleeping on the porch, campfire of singing and games in front of the fire. Perfect weather helped them to have fun, the girls agreed. Members of the troop who participated are: Barbara Antley, Linda Bradshaw, Cynthia Chambliss, Mary Lou Gibson, Charlotte Hicks, Judy Hunt, Linda Ann Hunt, Sherry Lasuzzo, Mary Louise Schempf, Judy Varnado, Brenda Hale, Sandra Fowler, Carol Johnson, Leslie Leath, Joyce Maddox, Shelia McGough, Kathy Davis, Anita Christman.

Two more troops are scheduled for overnights before the winter season really sets in. Several improvements are being made at Pine Wood. The kitchen is to have a ceiling, at last, new screening is being installed on the porch, and several pieces of new equipment provided.

Registering for their fourth year of Scouting with the addition of several new girls is Troop 12, made up of sixth-grade girls at Mitchell School, under the leadership of Mrs. George L. Housely. Some of the girls, Dianne Boyington, Judy Cunningham, Barbara Groves, Paige Housley, Alice Jordan, and Nancy Phillips, are veteran day campers and we are sure their enthusiasm will rub off on the others. Other members of the troop are: Judy Crawford Pamela Cummings, Judy Ferguson, Wanda Gates, Ellen Gibson, Charlotte Scarborough, Lynda Traylor, Glenda Sawyer, and Peggy Moses.

A fourth grade group at the same school, registering for its second year of Brownie Scouting consists of the following girls: Ruth Bassett, Connie Bates, John Ellen Brown, Sharon Chambless, Kathy Grant, Jo Ann McClain, Mary Beth Ward, Shirley White, Donna Whitehead, Sheila Wyles, Pam Rich, Vickie Ann Head, Kathleen Creech, Debra Albritton. Mrs. Morris E. Chambless and Mrs. Clyde Bassett are leaders and Mrs. Willis F. Ward, Mrs. Jack [illegible]n and Mrs. Laurence White, Jr., serve on the troop committee.

Mrs. Pitt Speaks To Evergreen Club

The November meeting of the Evergreen Garden club was held in the home of Mrs. Roy Riley with Mrs. I. M. McLain, co-hostess.

The president, Mrs. Neal Collins, presided at the brief business session. Mrs. B. B. Seale introduced the guest speaker. Mrs. Thomas Pitt, who spoke on formal Christmas decorations and creative arrangements. She demonstrated the use of candles and accessories with the arrangements. Patterns were given to each member.

A Thanksgiving fruit basket was used on the dining table. Coffee, tea, and individual pumpkin pies were served to Mesdames J. B. Corder, R. F. Howell, Rose Moffett, Richard Jones, C. L. Kissel, J. T. Gaddis, Bobby Johnson, L. G. McCain, Frank T. Nolden, Bill Hutto, Collins, Seale, D. W. Tillman, Dick Young, Ladshaw, J. K. Ezell, Riley and Pitt.

Dolls Set Pace For Fashions

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

Some of the best - dressed women this year are dolls.

High fashion takes over the doll world to such an extent this Christmas that doll clothes not only refelect the last word in style, but in some cases forecast next season's trends. Doll dresses, coats, suits, jewelry and accessories do credit to the haute couture. The well-dressed doll this Christmas has her own earrings, bangles and hair ornaments, sports an Italian hairdo, has gold brocade theater suits and fur stoles for evening, is supplied with the latest in sportswear, from leotards to kilts and wouldn't be caught dead in anything but Italian style shoes.

Herwardrobe includes the bubble silhouette, the hobble skirt and the many - petticoated bouffant ball gown demanded by today's fashion - conscious little girls, says the Toy Guidance Council.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM LESTER of DeKalb, Texas, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Juanell, to Roy (Buddy) Cagle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elby G. Cagle of West Monroe. The wedding will be an event of Saturday, December 19, at 6:30 p.m. in the Hubbard Baptist church. The Rev. W. H. Snead will officiate. The couple will be making their home in Kilgore, Texas.

CHILD'S ROOM

It's a good idea to equip the room of school age youngsters with child - proof furniture, easier to clean and take care of. A painted finish on chairs and desks will take scratches easier than fine polished woods.

Rodney Hobbs Auxiliary Meets Tuesday

The Rodney J. Hobbs Ladies Auxiliary 1809 held their regular meeting Tuesday at the post home. The president, Mrs. Odie Lee Gossett, was the presiding officer.

The Auxiliary voted to participate in the "Operation Fireside" program for the elderly citizens for the Twin Cities. The members will donate 40 dozen homemade cookies and provide gifts for the Annual Twin City Christmas party at the Alexandria Veterans Hospital.

The Rodney J. Hobbs annual Christmas party will be held on December 18 at 7:30 p.m. The Auxiliary is in charge of the program and refreshments.

Mrs. Gossett announced that the Auxiliary had won first place in the Community Club Awards contest. She reminded the members that the CCA contest would end on December 19 and urged everyone to participate in these last few weeks.

After the business meeting, Mrs. Rose Bartlett, Mrs. Christine Hendry, and Mrs. Irene Semmes were hostesses for a social hour.

BEFORE WASHING

Since dirt usually becomes ground into collars, cuffs, and hemlines, brush these areas with soap or detergent before laundering the entire garment. You can't expect your washing machine to know it must wash certain spots more thoroughly than others!

Beta Sigma Phi Meets At St. Paul's

The Beta Pi chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority met on Thursday at St. Paul's Methodist Church with Mrs. George Smale presiding.

Members opened the meeting by reciting the opening ritual. Plans for the Christmas dinner-dance, which will be held Dec. 12, were discussed. Plans were made for a rummage sale on Dec. 5.

The ways and means committee reported that the spaghetti supper was a success. A service project to help the children in December was talked about.

A very interesting program was given by Mrs. Roger Somsen and Mrs. Jim Phelps. Title of the program was "Verse Making."

Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. Albert Racer and Mrs. Frank Pettit. Door prize was won by Mrs. Somsen.

Members present were: Mrs. E. H. Bailey, Mrs. Harry Black, Mrs. Bill Brown, Mrs. Ted Carter, Mrs. Bob DeMoss, Mrs. Billy Hargiss, Mrs. Walter Hinckley, Mrs. Earl Hoodemaker, Mrs. V. A. Hubka, Mrs. Carl Johnson, Miss Helen Johnson, Miss Joyce Lanier, Miss Lorna Montgomery, Mrs. Pettit, Mrs. Phelps, Mrs. Racer, Miss Gyl Rowell, Mrs. Steve Savanna, Mrs. Marty Schempf, Mrs. Smale, Mrs. Somsen.

Hemingway's Work Reviewed For Book Club

The Bono Nostrorum Club held its November meeting in the home of Mrs. T. G. McKay of Archibald with Mrs. E. D. Baker and Mrs. Terry Clingan serving as co-hostesses.

Mrs. E. B. Busbice, Program leader, gave a biographical sketch of Ernest Hemingway, the widely discussed author. Briefly tracing his early life, Mrs. Busbice recalled some of his early novels, the first successful one, "Farewell to Arms," and "For Whom the Bell Tolls" written in 1940 and read by millions.

"The Old Man and the Sea" by Hemingway was reviewed by Mrs. H. G. Tillman who stated that 3,000,000 persons have read this Nobel prize winner. It was called a story of an old fisherman who ventured far out into the gulf stream. Each evening for 84 days old Santiago returned empty-handed. Like most great stories it can be read on more than one level of meaning, according to the speaker.

Mrs. J. U Douciere, president, conducted the business session at which time plans were made for the Christmas party to be held in the home of Mrs. C. W. Jones.

Refreshments were served to the members present, Mrs. Baker, Mrs. H. J. Brown, Mrs. Busbice, Mrs. Douciere, Miss Virgie Evans, Mrs. B. N. Hixon, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. McKay, Mrs. H. L. Murray, Mrs. Maud Parham, Miss Kate Talbert, Mrs. Tillman, Mrs. C. N. Underwood, and Miss Ethel Watson.

READY AT LAST

NEW YORK (AP) — Lillian Helman has a new play ready for Broadway after two years of work involving four extensive rewrites of the material.

The untitled drama, which is due in February under the sponsorship of Kermit Bloomgarden and Lester Osterman, is just about ready for viewing, in the author's judgment.

"Any extensive rewriting is not going to improve it," she says.

HEALTH RULES

Soap for the teacher may well replace the traditional apple, if a women's group in County Wexford, Ireland, has its way.

These Irish women feel that the schools should teach the children to wash themselves, and so passed this resolution: "That the department of education should be asked to include in all primary schools a weekly period for the teaching of health rules and hygiene."

ANNOUNCEMENT IS MADE TODAY of the engagement of Miss Sandra Houston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. K. D. Houston of West Monroe, to Johnny Fields of Russellville, Arkansas. The groom-elect, who is a student at the University of Arkansas, is the son of Mrs. Earl Bennett of Russellville and the late John Fields. A late December wedding is planned.

HEALTH RULES

Soap for the teacher may well replace the traditional apple, if a women's group in County Wexford, Ireland, has its way.

These Irish women feel that the schools should teach the children to wash themselves, and so passed this resolution: "That the department of education should be asked to include in all primary schools a weekly period for the teaching of health rules and hygiene."

ANNOUNCEMENT IS MADE TODAY of the engagement of Miss Sandra Houston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. K. D. Houston of West Monroe, to Johnny Fields of Russellville, Arkansas. The groom-elect, who is a student at the University of Arkansas, is the son of Mrs. Earl Bennett of Russellville and the late John Fields. A late December wedding is planned.

Mrs. Egloff Is Hostess To Lakeshore HDC

The Lakeshore Home Demonstration Club held its November meeting at the home of Mrs. Clarence Egloff on Tennessee street.

Regan-Adams Vows Said At St. Edwards Church

Miss Carol Adams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Ziegler Adams of Tallulah, and Carroll Robert Regan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alva Bates Regan of Magnolia, Miss., were married Thursday, November 26, in Tallulah. The Rev. B. F. Maguire performed the double ring ceremony in St. Edward's Catholic church at eleven-thirty o'clock.

Bouquets of white gladioli, stock and fern adorned the main altar and side altars. Between were cathedral candles in floor candelabra entwined with greenery. The reserved pews were marked with white bows of satin and tulle and similar bows were attached to the side windows of the church.

A program of organ music given by Mrs. J. C. Sherwin included "Blessed Be This Day", "O Perfect Love", "Ave Maria," "Panis Angelicus," and "Priere." "The Bride's March" by Barnby was used for the processional and for the recessional "March Nuptiale" by Caron was played.

The matron of honor, Mrs. John Weimar of Baton Rouge, sister of the bride, and bridesmaids, Misses Dorothy and Sherrill Sevier and Miss Betty Jo Oakes of Tallulah; Miss Margaret Green of Ferriday; Miss Juanita Morrison of Shreveport; Mrs. Peter Bruin Hays Jr.; and Mrs. Richard Bradford Wilkins Jr., of Baton Rouge, wore identical dresses of burgundy velveteen with high scoop necklines, cap sleeves, crushed cummerbunds with silk panels in the back. They wore matching slippers and their headdresses were small clusters of burgundy flowers, ribbon and veiling. Each carried a single pink glamellia bloom and bud.

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father, was attired in an imported gown of pure silk peau de soie and re-embroidered Alencon lace. The bodice was fashioned with a lace yoke, sabrina neckline finished with scallops, and long lace sleeves tapering to points over the hands. The empire skirt featured a tiny self bow and bouffant peau de soie overskirt, caught up in front with bows. Lace scallops extended into a wide sweeping train. Her fingertip veil of illusion fell from a cap of lace and pearls.

She carried a small bouquet of lilies of the valley on a white prayer book that had belonged to her maternal grandmother. An heirloom bracelet completed the costume.

Little John W. Weimar Jr., nephew of the bride served as ringbearer. The bridegroom had as best man, William B. Bilbo of Magnolia, Miss. Ushers were John W. Weimar, Peter Bruin Hays, Jr., Richard Bradford Wilkins Jr., all of Baton Rouge; Bruce Jordan of Alexandria; William R. Adams of Tallulah, cousin of the bride; Russell Stovall of Magnolia, Miss., and Don Davis of Biloxi, Miss.

Mrs. Adams chose for her daughter's wedding an American Beauty silk faille with lace top and sleeves, matching accessories and feathered hat. Her corsage was a white orchid. Mrs. Regan, the groom's mother, wore a Christian Dior blue silk with fitted jacket, matching accessories and a corsage of sweetheart roses.

The parents of the bride entertained with a reception at the Tallulah Country club which was decorated throughout with white flowers and gleaming candles in silver candelabra.

Mrs. R. W. Gandy Jr., Mrs. Rufus Yerger and Mrs. Henry Sevier Jr., alternated at the punch service and were assisted by Miss Carolyn Sevier and Miss Ann Willett. In charge of serving the wedding cake were Mrs. A. H. Willett Sr., and Mrs. Henry G. Sevier Sr.

Guests were requested to register in the bride's book by Mrs. Cliff C. Adams. Distributing rice bags were the young cousins of the bride, Flora Yerger, Retta and Sally Gandy, Linda, Janet and Mary Kate Sevier.

When the couple left for a trip to Florida the bride was wearing a mauve tweed suit, a hat of velvet leaves in harmonizing shades, black accessories and a white orchid.

The bride is a graduate of Tallulah High School and attended Louisiana State university where she was affiliated with Delta Delta Delta sorority. Mr. Regan graduated from Chamberlain-Hunt Military Academy and Louisiana State University. His fraternity is Kappa Alpha. He recently joined the Navy and is stationed at Pensacola, Fla.

Out of town guests at the wedding were Mrs. Noland Harvey Sr. and Paul Harvey of Monroe; Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Evans, Mr. and Mrs. King Trieschman and Mr. and Mrs. Pearce Bailey of Lake Providence; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bailey of Natchez; Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Cook and Mrs. E. W. Cook, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hall of Jackson, Miss.; Mrs. John Gray and Mrs. Kent A. Russell of New Orleans.

Mrs. Olivia M. Birdsong, Mrs. Sidney S. Champion, Mr. and Mrs. William Champion and Mrs. Louise Williamson of Edwards, Miss.; Mr. and Mrs. Carneal Warfield of Lake Village, Ark.; Mr. and Mrs. Will Harvey Jr., of Yazoo City, Miss.; Mrs. Ben Green of Ferriday; Mrs. Lily Jumonville, of Plaquemine; Eddie Roberts of Alexandria; Mrs. Otto Weimar, Miss Carol Weimar and Miss Hazel King of Vicksburg. Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Wright Jr., Mrs. Milton Womack, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Michael and Dr. and Mrs. B. R. Burgoyne of Baton Rouge; Mrs. Fred Johnson and Mrs. A. R. Conley of Shreveport; and from Magnolia, Miss., Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Regan, Mrs. Richard Young, Miss Sharon Alleman, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Bilbo, Mrs. Thelma Prescott, Mrs. Russell Stovall, Mr. and Mrs. Guerico, Mrs. Bernice Simmons, Mrs. Clifton Simmons, Miss Lazel Lawson, Dr. and Mrs. Petty and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Dement.

Marion P-TA Has Night Meeting

The November meeting of the Marion P.T.A. was a night meeting held in the school auditorium. Mrs. S. D. Kennedy, presided during the business session.

Mrs. Glen Post, Jr., program chairman, introduced Mrs. Louise Jones, moderator, who in turn introduced the panel — Mrs. Faye Futch, C. W. Causey, Dr. Grady Dugas and the Rev. L. J. Futch — who gave an interesting discussion on "Disciplining the Child."

A social hour in the school cafeteria was hosted by the fifth and seventh room mothers.

The second grade won the room count.

Revival Opens Tomorrow At Local Church

Evangelist Clarence Cooper, of Savannah, Tenn., will be with the Victory Baptist Church, South 10th and Pecan Sts., Monroe, for a series of revival services beginning tomorrow evening and continuing through Sunday evening, December 13.

The Rev. Mr. Cooper is a full-time evagelist, and has led in many evangelistic campaigns throughout the south, according to Rev. Willard Fuller, pastor. He stands for the verbal inspiration of the Bible, Christ's blood atonemen, salvation by faith and the premillennial return of Christ.

The services will start at 10:00 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. each day. The nursery will be open, the pastor said.

Grace Church Sets Advent Prayer School

An Advent School of Prayer will be conducted in Grace Episcopal Church December 6 through 11 by the Reverend Robert Cheney Smith of the Order of the Society of Saint John the Evangelist.

The School of Prayer, planned by the church as a special Advent devotional discipline, provides opportunity for members to deepen their understanding of the meaning of prayer in the Christian life, the Rev. Donald Davies, rector at Grace Church, said.

Each evening, Sunday through Friday, beginning at 7:30 p.m., the Rev. Smith will present informal instructions and a series of sermons.

The Reverend Robert C. Smith, deputy assistant superior at the Mother House of the Order of Saint John the Evangelist, Cambridge, Massachusetts, comes to Monroe with a wealth of experience and blessing as a conductor of retreats, schools of prayer and missions. Educated in New Jersey, Fr. Smith is a graduate of New Jersey State Teachers College and the Episcopal Theological School of Cambridge. Clothed as a novice in the ordeer in 1934, Fr. Smith was ordained to the Sacred Priesthood in Milwaukee and made his life profession in the order in 1941. During World War II he ministered as chaplain to artillery and infantry units in the United States, Australia, New Guinea, Philippines and Japan.

Fr. Smith has served on the staff of St. John the Evangelist, Boston, was in residence at the Mother House of the Order in Oxford while attending Oxford University; has served as chaplain to the Sisterhood of St. John, Ontario, and presently is chaplain to the Community of St. Mary here in America.

Why You Should Choose a

Hammond Organ
for Your Church

When you are ready to choose an organ, remember that a Hammond Organ offers your church the best value.

Over 40,000 churches have chosen a Hammond Organ: because only a Hammond Organ has:

- A far greater range of true church tones than any other organ.
- "Living" cathedral-like tones for any enclosure.
- No tuning expense—only a Hammond can't get out of tune.
- Easy to play.
- Rich percussion effects of chimes, bells, celeste, marimba, and others.

The Hammond Organ

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

QUESTION: Recently we had a discussion about who the Holy Ghost is. Will you please explain this to us?

A.F.

ANSWER: It is not easy to explain in non - theological terms just who the Holy Spirit of God is. Perhaps we could best explain by telling what He does.

When you feel an impulse to do good rather than wrong, that is the Holy Spirit speaking through your conscience.

When you feel drawn to God and repulsed by evil, that is the Holy Spirit trying to bring you back into God's fellowship.

When you hear the church bells ringing on Sunday morning, and you stretch out in your easy chair with the Sunday paper and watch people going to church, the Holy Spirit will make you feel ill - at - ease and empty on the inside.

When you start to do wrong and you look around to see who might be looking at you, that is the Holy Spirit reminding you that you have an influence and that you ought to use it in the right way.

When you lie, He brings a sense of guilt. When you cheat, He makes you feel like a criminal in the making, which you are. When you become irritable, He whispers that you are not the man you ought to be. In short, He is God's personal agent to your heart, and you should never spurn Him or grieve Him. David prayed, "Cast me not away from they presence; and take not thy Holy Spirit from me."

In theological terms, the Holy Spirit is the Third Person of the Trinity. He is God!

Speakers For Mass Meeting Here Named

Speakers from two leading Shreveport Baptist churches will address "Mobilization Night" meetings of the Ouachita and Trenton Associations Monday at 7:30 p.m., it was announced today.

Charles P. Wood, training union director of the Ouachita Parish Association, said Dr. Stanley Jordan, pastor of the Queensborough Baptist Church of Shreveport, would address members of 22 churches who will assemble at Ouachita Parish High School.

Dr. James W. Taylor, pastor of the Highland Baptist Church also of Shreveport, will be the featured speaker when the 23 churches of the Trenton Association assemble at the First Baptist Church in West Monroe, according to W. H. McLin, training union director of the association.

"M" Night, or Mobilization Night, is a special time for launching the Training Union program in Baptist churches for the coming year. Started in 1946 by the Training Union Department of the Baptist Sunday School Bard, Nashville, Tennessee, this type of meeting has created widespread interest throughout the Southern Baptist Convention. Last year 1,056 such meetings were held with 471,517 persons from 19,743 churches attending.

First Christian Church Slates Woman's Day

An address by Dr. Kenneth Bonham will highlight the annual Woman's Day meeting to be held today at 7 p.m. at the First Christian Church, Mrs. M. W. Montgomery, president, announced.

The occasion of Woman's Day was first observed on July 6, 1890. It was pointed out this was not only a day set a side for the raising of funds but a day on which the church shows evidence of its work.

Parkview Will Hold Services In New Bldg.

The pastor, the Reverend H. L. Sampson, and members of the Parkview Baptist Church, Forsyte Ave. in Monroe, along with guests, will worship in the newly completed sanctuary Sunday, December 6, at 10:30 o'clock in the morning. This service will be the first meeting of the membership in the new building since its completion.

The structure is of colonial architecture with enough modern accents to contrast and tie together the old with the new. Going into the four columned edifice one is ushered into the spacious foyer with an enclosed recess on either side. The color theme is one of off-white and gives an atmosphere of quiet dignity. Over the foyer is the balcony which will seat approximately 300 people.

Within the auditorium which seats 850, the painted areas are of light blues, accented by turquoise carpet and matching seating pads. Indirect lighting is featured from the recessed pin lights in the ceiling. There are six stained glass windows on either side of the room. At the top of each is a small paneled cross of gold. In the center and at the bottom are other small panels of different figures and symbols depicting the life of Jesus from the proclaiming of the birth of the Saviour to the ascension of the Lord. Each window is framed with gray - white stone enclosing a stone panel underneath.

Centered back of the chancel and choir area is the baptistry window which reaches from near the ceiling to the dado of the wall. The window is of one inch thick Italian glass set in cement. Small panels of translucent glass make up the entire surface which has been textured by chipping to pick up varying degrees of light so that no two pieces of glass appear to be the same color. Shades of deep blue form the background of the window over which is a gold cross extending from the top of the window to the bottom. At the top of the cross looking to the baptismal waters is a white dove with spread wings. The dove is outlined in prisms and reflects the indirect lighting. The entire opening is framed in stone of the same soft gray-white as that which frames the windows in the sanctuary.

The ceiling in the chancel and choir area is also vaulted with indirect recessed pin lights controlled with automatic dimmers in order to vary the lighting for different types of services. A piano and an electronic organ will furnish the music. An electronic system of chimes will also be used for worship.

The Parkview Baptist Church was organized July 21, 1946 with 33 charter members. In 1947 the church purchased a lot on the corner of 10th street and Forsythe avenue. The chapel and first unit was constructed in 1948. In 1950 additional Sunday School rooms were added. A home for the pastor was also constructed that year. In the year 1951 a large recreation room was built, along with improvemnets to the church.

In 1953 the church established a mission in the Highland Park area which is today known as the Highland Park Baptist church.

During 1954 and 1955 a third unit and educational building was begun and finished in 1957.

The present new building was started in March of this year and completed in November with the laying of the cornerstone on November 29. The total value of the church now stands at $500,000.00 with a membership of approximately 700. Parkview Baptist Church with God's help has truly prospered in that these inspired few have progressed so rapidly in order to help spread the gospel in this community and throughout the land.

To make this service complete, the church is desirous of having as many members, former members and friends in attendance as possible on December 6.

The new time for worship each Sunday will be 9:15 a.m. for Sunday school and 10:30 for the preaching hour. The night worship will continue with 5:45 for Training Union and 7:00 p.m. for the evening service.

Grace Church Sets Advent Prayer School

An Advent School of Prayer will be conducted in Grace Episcopal Church December 6 through 11 by the Reverend Robert Cheney Smith of the Order of the Society of Saint John the Evangelist.

The School of Prayer, planned by the church as a special Advent devotional discipline, provides opportunity for members to deepen their understanding of the meaning of prayer in the Christian life, the Rev. Donald Davies, rector at Grace Church, said.

Each evening, Sunday through Friday, beginning at 7:30 p.m., the Rev. Smith will present informal instructions and a series of sermons.

The Reverend Robert C. Smith, deputy assistant superior at the Mother House of the Order of Saint John the Evangelist, Cambridge, Massachusetts, comes to Monroe with a wealth of experience and blessing as a conductor of retreats, schools of prayer and missions. Educated in New Jersey, Fr. Smith is a graduate of New Jersey State Teachers College and the Episcopal Theological School of Cambridge. Clothed as a novice in the ordeer in 1934, Fr. Smith was ordained to the Sacred Priesthood in Milwaukee and made his life profession in the order in 1941. During World War II he ministered as chaplain to artillery and infantry units in the United States, Australia, New Guinea, Philippines and Japan.

Fr. Smith has served on the staff of St. John the Evangelist, Boston, was in residence at the Mother House of the Order in Oxford while attending Oxford University; has served as chaplain to the Sisterhood of St. John, Ontario, and presently is chaplain to the Community of St. Mary here in America.

Why You Should Choose a

Hammond Organ

for Your Church

When you are ready to choose an organ, remember that a Hammond Organ offers your church the best value.

Over 40,000 churches have chosen a Hammond Organ: because only a Hammond Organ has:

- A far greater range of true church tones than any other organ.
- "Living" cathedral-like tones for any enclosure.
- No tuning expense—only a Hammond can't get out of tune.
- Easy to play.
- Rich percussion effects of chimes, bells, celeste, marimba, and others.

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

QUESTION: Recently we had a discussion about who the Holy Ghost is. Will you please explain this to us?

A.F.

ANSWER: It is not easy to explain in non - theological terms just who the Holy Spirit of God is. Perhaps we could best explain by telling what He does.

When you feel an impulse to do good rather than wrong, that is the Holy Spirit speaking through your conscience.

When you feel drawn to God and repulsed by evil, that is the Holy Spirit trying to bring you back into God's fellowship.

When you hear the church bell's ringing on Sunday morning, and you stretch out in your easy chair with the Sunday paper and watch people going to church, the Holy Spirit will make you feel ill - at - ease and empty on the inside.

When you start to do wrong and you look around to see who might be looking at you, that is the Holy Spirit reminding you that you have an influence and that you ought to use it in the right way.

When you lie, He brings a sense of guilt. When you cheat, He makes you feel like a criminal in the making, which you are. When you become irritable, He whispers that you are not the man you ought to be. In short, He is God's personal agent to your heart, and you should never spurn Him or grieve Him. David prayed, "Cast me not away from they presence; and take not thy Holy Spirit from me."

In theological terms, the Holy Spirit is the Third Person of the Trinity. He is God!

Revival Opens Tomorrow At Local Church

Evangelist Clarence Cooper, of Savannah, Tenn., will be with the Victory Baptist Church, South 10th and Pecan Sts., Monroe, for a series of revival services beginning tomorrow evening and continuing through Sunday evening, December 13.

The Rev. Mr. Cooper is a full-time evagelist, and has led in many evangelistic campaigns throughout the south, according to Rev. Willard Fuller, pastor. He stands for the verbal inspiration of the Bible, Christ's blood atonemen, salvation by faith and the premillennial return of Christ.

The services will start at 10:00 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. each day. The nursery will be open, the pastor said.

THE HOME SHIFT

Santa Claus Loads Sleigh

By MILDRED SWIFT

Children, the latest word from the North Pole is that Santa Claus is enlarging his sleigh to accommodate the enormous amount of new and exciting toys scheduled for delivery Christmas morning.

Mom says she'd like to have Santa bring some shrubs. Just be sure you get that list made up or you may end up with those you don't want.

Since the poinsettia is the flower - of - the - month, and you may receive one as a Christmas gift, you'll be interested in this advice from the flower people: the blossom can be satisfactorily cut and kept from one to three weeks, depending on the woodiness of the stem. Here's how to do it. Soak your plant heavily overnight so that the stems absorb as much water as possible. Then cut the stems and dip them in denatured alcohol for 3 to 5 minutes — no longer. This sears or seals off the ends and your poinsettias should stay crisp for many days. Hot water may do the same as the alcohol, but I haven't tried it.

ARRANGEMENTS

I have seen some beautiful okra that had been bleached with clorox and used in arrangements. The curved spikes work in well.

A dried artichoke is very pretty, too. Turn it upside down in a glass and place the container on the window sill. Or — you can dry these by putting them in an oven with just the pilot light on. Leave for 6 hours.

When making a Della Robbia wreath for Christmas, shellac your fruit and it will hold up longer.

When you're doing your Christmas decorating, that's a good time to prune your evergreens. You'll want them for the house, your church and your friends who have no plants yet.

For the framework for Christmas wreaths, use privet hedge canes with the leaves stripped. Take a very long cane and wrap it round and round. This holds greens well for a wreath or swag.

Hardware cloth is just right for weaving greens in and out for swags for doors, mantels or any place you want to put them. This hardware cloth can be bought at feed and seed stores and hardware stores. Cut with your pruning shears to the desired shape. It is purchased by the foot.

AJUGA

Ajuga is a ground cover with ever growing popularity in this area. This is a low, dense, fast-spreading creeper which grows about four to six inches high, and which prefers shade locations. It has lovely egg - shaped leaves.

Some varieties have dark green foliage; others have green leaves with a bronze tint. The plant produces sweet little blue flowers in the spring.

Late winter or spring is the best time for transplanting ajuga. However, some growers claim it can be put out any month of the year. Space the plants about a foot apart, water well after planting. This plant does not thrive during dry spells unless it is kept watered. In a sunny spot, ajuga gets ragged but will stay lush and green with some shade.

This little plant responds well to fertilization and can be fed twice a year during the growing season. One of those feedings could be cotton seed meal as this will enrich the soil, too.

The ajuga is susceptible to a white mold at times in the summer. This is caused by a fungus and soil - borne organism known as "Southern blight" or Sclerotia rolsfu. It gets on the plants at ground level, in the summer. It clears in the winter. So far, nothing practical has been found to combat it.

Another name for ajuga is "bugle" and "bugle weed." It belongs to the mint family.

SHADE TREES

More on shade trees. Remember if you want shade in a hurry, you'll plant a fast growing tree such as red bud, crabapple, mimosa. Rapid growth means weak wood, so these trees have shorter life.

Now, let's see the monetary value of shade trees. Evergreen trees, planted where there are cold winter winds, can serve as wind breaks thus cutting down on fuel bills. In fact, in experiments it was found such windbreaks could reduce fuel bills as much as twenty per cent.

Shade trees make homes more comfortable in summer, inside and outside. They reduce the cost of air conditioning considerably. For those homes without air conditioning, trees will help a great deal in relieving the sun's ray. Deciduous trees shed their leaves in winter and let in the sun.

IRIS

If you're interested in a bulletin on iris, write "Office of Information, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C." and ask for "Growing Iris in the Home Garden." Individual copies will be mailed, but you cannot get these in quantity.

This is the first bulletin on iris I have seen and it is just off the press. It gives growing instructions, varieties, when to plant, where to plant, preparing the soil, how to plant, care of plants, propagation, iris diseases and insects. It's an interesting, attractive and informative bulletin.

Garden iris are hardy, long lived perennials that need minimum care, the leaflet states. They bloom when few other plants do — after the spring flowering bulbs and before many of the late spring and early summer perennials blossom. Thus, in a garden planned to have some flowers in bloom all season, iris may be considered one of the basic perennials. Easy to grow flowers now are adapted in every region of the United States. They produce graceful flowers in a wide range of shapes and sizes. Colors range from white through shades of yellow, pink, red, blue, purple and bi - colored.

Illustrations in the new leaflet show the four principle types of iris — the German, Japanese, Siberian and Crested. Gardeners now have a choice of several thousand varieties and more are introduced each year.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Garden Club Exhibits Show

By MARY JARDINE

By CARRIE McKENZIE
Guest Writer

Mrs. Jimmie Allen placed gold sprayed pine branches, Mullien, magnolia leaves, nandina berries and red Christmas balls in a classical urn to create a very holiday arrangement. Her design was symetrical and vertical. The pine and mullien were the first placements. It gave the height. Next were placed the berries and magnolia leaves that gave depth and weight. A cluster of red Christmas balls were placed as the center of interest.

Mrs. Dan Green's composition was very original and most commented on. She placed snowed pine and driftwood on a natural rustic base — giving it a woody feeling. Placed to the front was a very perky red-nosed reindeer. The deer is really a pine stump she found resembling a deer. It's amazing what a seeing eye can find.

Mrs. Cass Cole exhibited a very gay live - looking composition. She used blue cedar in a brown flat container. To tie the container to the design, she placed a piece of brown twig as the center of interest. Perched on the brown limbs were birds made of tiny pine cones.

YULE COLORS

Christmas colors were featured in a large milk glass compote or fruit bowl to create a centerpiece by Mrs. Curtis Reppond. Buford holly was used to form the horizontal pattern. Added for color were holly berries, white and red Christmas balls.

As this season arrives, many of us are planning arrangements and decorations for our churches.

When making a church design, we should use bold and distinctive forms, not feathery or confused. Each will be viewed from a distance and in a subdued light. Flowers in the church are subservient — not dormant. For instance, flowers near a cross are placed on each side and lower than the cross itself — possibly behind it.

Expressiveness is considered to be important in church arrangements. They should have an upward feeling. We aim to express dignity and formality.

Large arrangements are usually made because they are consistent with the scale of our churches.

Containers for the church should be classical in design without decorations. Gray, brown, tan white and metallic colors are most serviceable.

EXTENSION NEWS

Transplanting Hints Listed

By AUDREY DAWSON

Do you need a tree or trees on your lawn for shade — or one just to add interest to your landscape. There is a great deal of work in transplanting a tree, so here are a few suggestions that will insure that tree growing. If you select a wild tree, look for material in open, sunny places, since plants grown in the open are usually of better shape and will stand transplanting better. This is expecially true of holly and dogwood. Trees grown in less rich soil often transplant more successfully. Smaller trees can be moved more safely than large ones, and usually catch up with the latter in a few years.

The best time to move trees is when the leaves are off. December, February and March are probably the best times to move deciduous (leaf falling) trees.

FIRST DAY

If you dig a tree in the woods for home use, reset it in the soil the day it is dug. It can be held several days if its roots are kept moist, but it will never be better than it is the first day. While we are on the subject of trees, if you are one of the fortunate ones and have big trees on your lawn be sure to save the leaves. Smoke from burning leaves may lend fragrance to the autumn air, but to any thrifty gardener it is a great waste. So put them in a compost pile.

Here are steps in building a compost pile. Start with a layer of leaves about 6 inches deep. Then sprinkle 3 or 4 pounds of commercial fertilizer over each 100 foot square of organic material. Water this layer well, and spread several inches of garden soil on top. Continue this process until the pile is about four feet high. Add extra water to the compost pile during dry periods to prevent it from drying. Turn and mix the pile every few months to hasten the decomposition process. In about six months the compost should be thoroughly decomposed and ready for the garden.

GIRL'S DIET

The average American teen-age girl lives on a diet only slightly better than that in many of the world's starvation areas. But it is because of the girl's choice according to a nutrition study from Washington State University Extension specialist. The study showed that six of every 10 girls do not get sufficient amounts of protein, calcium, iron, vitamin A, thiamine, riboflavin and vitamin C.

One of the causes is the traditional woman worry "overweight." But another is the ever popular candy and pop routine which ranks high with a teenager. These foods do not have the essential food elements that growing teen-age girl needs. Of course parents can't supervise every meal that their girls eat but mothers can be sure that meals eaten at home contain needed nutrients. All home economists recommend that the meals be planned using the "big four" food groups as a daily guide. This includes, milk, meat, vegetables and fruit and the bread and cereal groups.

HEART DISEASES

In the past 10 years 122,000 Louisiana residents have died of diseases of the heart and blood vessels. The death rate from heart disease has not increased and may be on a downward trend. Following are some excerpts from a leaflet which came over my desk last week. Some forms of heart disease can be prevented. A few can be cured. All heart cases can be cared for best if diagnosed early. Almost every heart condition can be helped by proper treatment. Most heart patients can keep on working very often at the same job. Your "symptoms" may or may not mean heart disease but see your doctor and be sure.

FOR MEN

Suits are being worn for business and social occasions where more casual attire apparently was in favor just a short time ago.

The new "midweight" suits have made remarkable strides. These suits are in a category about half way between the featherweight tropicals and the regular weight winter suits. This suit proves to be the perfect in between weight for comfort on fall and spring days when it is too warm for a regular weight suit, but too brisk for a summer weight.

A THOUGHT — Success is nothing more than a good idea coupled with hard work.

THE SOUTHERN GARDENER

Garden Books For Presents

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

If you wish to give your gardening friends books, here are a few outstanding ones that are a bit different from the ones currently on the book stands. Sometimes books that came out some time ago are as good or better than the freshly advertised ones.

Elizabeth Lawrence's The Little Bulbs, Criterion, 1957 is an eye opener for Southern gardeners because most people do not know that, here in the South, we can grow all kinds of rare beautiful small bulbs like the hardy cyclamens. If you can lay your hands on a second-hand copy of Miss Lawrence's A Southern Garden, U. N. C. Press, by all means do so because it is out of print. This one is a fundamental to flower gardening in the South. It is informally written but meaty.

ROSES

Some interesting books on roses are: Francis E. Lester's My Friend the Rose, The J. Horace MacFarland Co., 1942; Graham Stuart Thomas' The Old Shrub Roses, Phoen House, 1955, and Roy E. Shepherd's History of the Rose, The MacMillan Company, 1954. Your friends who are really "gone" on roses will enjoy any one of these books because they go into the history and beginning of roses. Anyone who likes the old roses will be delighted with them. It may be a little difficult to get the Lester book now, but if you can find it, it has a colored frontispiece and many fine black and white reproductions from a famous rose artist, Mary Lawrence. Her "Collection of Roses from Nature", published in London in 1799 is now a collector's item. Of course, Dr. Harold Hume's books: Azaleas, Camellias and Hollies are necessary to gardening if your friends do not already have them. They are usually in stock or ought to be in Southern book stores.

AZALEAS

As we learn more about azaleas, books keep coming out about these colorful plants. Amateurs have forged ahead in this country to become the authorities, in many cases, on different groups of plants. Mr. Frederic P. Lee is an expert on constitutional and administrative law in Washington, but his The Azalea Book was sponsored by The American Horticultural Society, Room 635, Southern Bldg., Washington 5, D.C. The Society also published The Handbook of Hollies in 1957.

This year The American Association of Nurserymen published a gorgeous book on the Flowering Crabapples by Arie den Boer. A name like this certainly shows that the Dutch are a part of our heritage in American horticulture. Numerous photographs in this volume will help you to identify your crabs. There are color photographs and just about all that we know, today, about this subject.

Finally, in this short space, we should like to mention Montague Free's Plant Propagation in Pictures, Doubleday, and Mr. and Mrs. John Grant's Garden Design Illustrated, U. of Washington Press, 1954. These two books quite successfully teach their points with photographs.

CAMERA NEWS

HOLIDAY GREETINGS can be simple yet express personal warmth. Gene Richner of Rochester, N.Y., inked in the message on the negative to simulate a child's writing. The style of writing goes well with pictures showing children.

By IRVING DESFOR

If your personal Christmas card isn't finished or in the final stage by now, you need goading or some last minute advice.

We'll assume you've just taken a special holiday photo or have found a good family picture you wish to use. The simplest way to incorporate a Yuletide message is to combine India ink lettering with the chosen negative. The message can be lettered on clear acetate or cellophane to avoid damage to the negative and to permit moving it around so as to find the most legible area.

Attach the message on the shiny side of the negative with adhesive tape so it reads correctly when printed. The opaque ink will print pure white so it will look best against a dark portion of the picture.

Careful handwriting is apt to show less imperfection than printing but enlargements can magnify shaky handwork which may not be visible in a contact print. If the original negative is tiny and enlargements are needed, the inked - in message on clear acetate can be placed on the enlargement paper to produce the greeting. The acetate can be attached to the easel with tape at one side, like a hinge, so the enlarging paper can slip under it in place for quantity printing.

A clear piece of glass placed on top of the acetate or cellophane will prevent out-of-focus lettering.

If you don't want to fool around with hand lettering, your camera store might still have a selection of Christmas folders into which contact prints of your chosen negative can be slipped. Or you might find a choice of negative masks which have the message imprinted and a window into which your negative fits to make a complete card. Add your name, make contact prints and away you go.

Be sure you know the proper grade of contact or enlargement paper that your negative requires, or take it with you to the camera store for expert appraisal.

Don't be so original in size or shape of your personal card that you can't get an envelope for it. In fact, after choosing a negative the next step is to get enough envelopes and the proper size and grade of paper to carry the job through to completion.

THE HOME SHIFT

Santa Claus Loads Sleigh

By MILDRED SWIFT

Children, the latest word from the North Pole is that Santa Claus is enlarging his sleigh to accommodate the enormous amount of new and exciting toys scheduled for delivery Christmas morning.

Mom says she'd like to have Santa bring some shrubs. Just be sure you get that list made up or you may end up with those you don't want.

Since the poinsettia is the flower - of - the - month, and you may receive one as a Christmas gift, you'll be interested in this advice from the flower people: the blossom can be satisfactorily cut and kept from one to three weeks, depending on the woodiness of the stem. Here's how to do it. Soak your plant heavily overnight so that the stems absorb as much water as possible. Then cut the stems and dip them in denatured alcohol for 3 to 5 minutes — no longer. This sears or seals off the ends and your poinsettias should stay crisp for many days. Hot water may do the same as the alcohol, but I haven't tried it.

ARRANGEMENTS

I have seen some beautiful okra that had been bleached with clorox and used in arrangements. The curved spikes work in well.

A dried artichoke is very pretty, too. Turn it upside down in a glass and place the container on the window sill. Or — you can dry these by putting them in an oven with just the pilot light on. Leave for 6 hours.

When making a Della Robbia wreath for Christmas, shellac your fruit and it will hold up longer.

When you're doing your Christmas decorating, that's a good time to prune your evergreens. You'll want them for the house, your church and your friends who have no plants yet.

For the framework for Christmas wreaths, use privet hedge canes with the leaves stripped. Take a very long cane and wrap it round and round. This holds greens well for a wreath or swag.

Hardware cloth is just right for weaving greens in and out for swags for doors, mantels or any place you want to put them. This hardware cloth can be bought at feed and seed stores and hardware stores. Cut with your pruning shears to the desired shape. It is purchased by the foot.

AJUGA

Ajuga is a ground cover with ever growing popularity in this area. This is a low, dense, fast-spreading creeper which grows about four to six inches high, and which prefers shade locations. It has lovely egg - shaped leaves.

Some varieties have dark green foliage; others have green leaves with a bronze tint. The plant produces sweet little blue flowers in the spring.

Late winter or spring is the best time for transplanting ajuga. However, some growers claim it can be put out any month of the year. Space the plants about a foot apart, water well after planting. This plant does not thrive during dry spells unless it is kept watered. In a sunny spot, ajuga gets ragged but will stay lush and green with some shade.

This little plant responds well to fertilization and can be fed twice a year during the growing season. One of those feedings could be cotton seed meal as this will enrich the soil, too.

The ajuga is susceptible to a white mold at times in the summer. This is caused by a fungus and soil - borne organism known as "Southern blight" or Sclerotia rolsfu. It gets on the plants at ground level, in the summer. It clears in the winter. So far, nothing practical has been found to combat it.

Another name for ajuga is "bugle" and "bugle weed." It belongs to the mint family.

SHADE TREES

More on shade trees. Remember if you want shade in a hurry, you'll plant a fast growing tree such as red bud, crabapple, mimosa. Rapid growth means weak wood, so these trees have shorter life.

Now, let's see the monetary value of shade trees. Evergreen trees, planted where there are cold winter winds, can serve as wind breaks thus cutting down on fuel bills. In fact, in experiments it was found such windbreaks could reduce fuel bills as much as twenty per cent.

Shade trees make homes more comfortable in summer, inside and outside. They reduce the cost of air conditioning considerably. For those homes without air conditioning, trees will help a great deal in relieving the sun's ray. Deciduous trees shed their leaves in winter and let in the sun.

IRIS

If you're interested in a bulletin on iris, write "Office of Information, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C." and ask for "Growing Iris in the Home Garden." Individual copies will be mailed, but you cannot get these in quantity.

This is the first bulletin on iris I have seen and it is just off the press. It gives growing instructions, varieties, when to plant, where to plant, preparing the soil, how to plant, care of plants, propagation, iris diseases and insects. It's an interesting, attractive and informative bulletin.

Garden iris are hardy, long lived perennials that need minimum care, the leaflet states. They bloom when few other plants do — after the spring flowering bulbs and before many of the late spring and early summer perennials blossom. Thus, in a garden planned to have some flowers in bloom all season, iris may be considered one of the basic perennials. Easy to grow flowers now are adapted in every region of the United States. They produce graceful flowers in a wide range of shapes and sizes. Colors range from white through shades of yellow, pink, red, blue, purple and bi - colored.

Illustrations in the new leaflet show the four principle types of iris — the German, Japanese, Siberian and Crested. Gardeners now have a choice of several thousand varieties and more are introduced each year.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Garden Club Exhibits Show

By MARY JARDINE

By CARRIE McKENZIE
Guest Writer

Mrs. Jimmie Allen placed gold sprayed pine branches, Mullien, magnolia leaves, nandina berries and red Christmas balls in a classical urn to create a very holiday arrangement. Her design was symetrical and vertical. The pine and mullien were the first placements. It gave the height. Next were placed the berries and magnolia leaves that gave depth and weight. A cluster of red Christmas balls were placed as the center of interest.

Mrs. Dan Green's composition was very original and most commented on. She placed snowed pine and driftwood on a natural rustic base — giving it a woody feeling. Placed to the front was a very perky red-nosed reindeer. The deer is really a pine stump she found resembling a deer. It's amazing what a seeing eye can find.

Mrs. Cass Cole exhibited a very gay live - looking composition. She used blue cedar in a brown flat container. To tie the container to the design, she placed a piece of brown twig as the center of interest. Perched on the brown limbs were birds made of tiny pine cones.

YULE COLORS

Christmas colors were featured in a large milk glass compote or fruit bowl to create a centerpiece by Mrs. Curtis Reppond. Buford holly was used to form the horizontal pattern. Added for color were holly berries, white and red Christmas balls.

As this season arrives, many of us are planning arrangements and decorations for our churches.

When making a church design, we should use bold and distinctive forms, not feathery or confused. Each will be viewed from a distance and in a subdued light. Flowers in the church are subservient — not dormant. For instance, flowers near a cross are placed on each side and lower than the cross itself — possibly behind it.

Expressiveness is considered to be important in church arrangements. They should have an upward feeling. We aim to express dignity and formality.

Large arrangements are usually made because they are consistent with the scale of our churches.

Containers for the church should be classical in design without decorations. Gray, brown, tan white and metallic colors are most serviceable.

EXTENSION NEWS

Transplanting Hints Listed

By AUDREY DAWSON

Do you need a tree or trees on your lawn for shade — or one just to add interest to your landscape. There is a great deal of work in transplanting a tree, so here are a few suggestions that will insure that tree growing. If you select a wild tree, look for material in open, sunny places, since plants grown in the open are usually of better shape and will stand transplanting better. This is expecially true of holly and dogwood. Trees grown in less rich soil often transplant more successfully. Smaller trees can be moved more safely than large ones, and usually catch up with the latter in a few years.

The best time to move trees is when the leaves are off, December, February and March are probably the best times to move deciduous (leaf falling) trees.

FIRST DAY

If you dig a tree in the woods for home use, reset it in the soil the day it is dug. It can be held several days if its roots are kept moist, but it will never be better than it is the first day. While we are on the subject of trees, if you are one of the fortunate ones and have big trees on your lawn be sure to save the leaves. Smoke from burning leaves may lend fragrance to the autumn air, but to any thrifty gardener it is a great waste. So put them in a compost pile.

Here are steps in building a compost pile. Start with a layer of leaves about 6 inches deep. Then sprinkle 3 or 4 pounds of commercial fertilizer over each 100 foot square of organic material. Water this layer well, and spread several inches of garden soil on top. Continue this process until the pile is about four feet high. Add extra water to the compost pile during dry periods to prevent it from drying. Turn and mix the pile every few months to hasten the decomposition process. In about six months the compost should be thoroughly decomposed and ready for the garden.

GIRL'S DIET

The average American teen-age girl lives on a diet only slightly better than that in many of the world's starvation areas. But it is because of the girl's choice according to a nutrition study from Washington State University Extension specialist. The study showed that six of every 10 girls do not get sufficient amounts of protein, calcium, iron, vitamin A, thiamine, riboflavin and vitamin C.

One of the causes is the traditional woman worry "overweight." But another is the ever popular candy and pop routine which ranks high with a teenager. These foods do not have the essential food elements that growing teen-age girl needs. Of course parents can't supervise every meal that their girls eat but mothers can be sure that meals eaten at home contain needed nutrients. All home economists recommend that the meals be planned using the "big four" food groups as a daily guide. This includes, milk, meat, vegetables and fruit and the bread and cereal groups.

Evangelistic Effort Set At Local Church

At 10:55 a.m. today at McGuire Methodist Church, Arkansas Rd. and North 12th St., West Monroe, The Reverend George Harbuck will begin a series of evangelistic messages, it has been announced.

Mr. Harbuck will speak again on Sunday at 7 p.m., and each evening of the week through Friday night at 7:30. Eugene Smith who holds a graduate degree in church music will direct the choir and congregational singing each service. Miss Biddy Dupree, senior student in West Monroe High School, will be organist accompanist each evening. Mrs. John Clark, Jr. will play the organ Sunday morning.

Rev. Harbuck, the grandson of a Methodist circuit rider, was born in East Texas. He holds a B. S. degree from Houston Univeristy; and a bachelor of divinity degree from Duke University Divinity School.

Mr. Harbuck organized and became the first pastor of the Trinity Methodist Church in Alexandria, La., a church which he served for five years. Then he was appointed to serve the Mansfield Methodist Church for four successive years. Prior to being appointed district superintendent of the Methodist Churches in Monroe district, he had served the Broadmoor Methodist Church as pastor for six years. Broadmoor is the fourth largest Methodist Church in the state of Louisiana.

At each service the choir of the church will have special music, and assist in the congregational singing.

Judge Denies Damages To Publisher

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — A federal judge denied damages Friday to a newspaper publisher who sued a printing trades union and a rival paper for $6,625,471 in an antitrust case.

U.S.Dist. Judge W. D. Murray of Butte, Mont., ruled in favor of the International Typographical Union and the Columbia Basin News of Pasco, Wash., and several other defendants in a lawsuit brought by the Tri-City Herald of Kennewick.

Judge Murray rejected the contention of Herald publisher Glenn C. Lee that the ITU and the News conspired to monopolize the newspaper field in the Pasco-Kennewick-Richland, Wash., area — site of the Hanford atomic works.

Lee's attorney said he is studying the opinion to decide whether to appeal.

The case was tried here this fall after being in the courts for four years.

Lee contended the union and the News conspired to drive the Herald out of business after the ITU struck the Herald in 1950. The Kennewick paper has continued to publish with nonunion printers.

Judge Murray, in an opinion mailed here from Butte, held there was no evidence of conspiracy or restrain of trade.

Evidence in the trial showed the ITU loaned the News $1,178,000 between 1950 and Jan. 1, 1959. Judge Murray held that the ITU's purpose "was simply to keep in operation in the Tri-City area a newspaper to compete with the Tri-City Herald, and was not to drive the Tri-City Herald out of business for the purpose of establishing a monopoly."

Medical Team Reports More Smoking Links

DALLAS, Tex. (UPI) —A team of medical researchers reported Friday they have found new evidence linking cigaret smoking to the prevalence of lung cancer.

Cigarets are not only a major cause of the cancer itself, but they lead to lung conditions which are favorable for the development of cancer, the report said.

The researchers, headed by Dr. Oscar Auerbach, chief of laboratory service at the Veterans Administration Hospital in East Orange, N.J., and associate professor of pathology at New York Medical College, based their report on tissue samples taken from 402 men who died at the VA hospital.

Of that number, 63 died of lung cancer and the remainder of other causes.

Auerbach's report was said to be the first medical evidence in which tissue samples were studied to show a link between lung cancer and cigaret smoking.

The report was delivered at Friday's session of the American Medical Association's 13th annual clinical meeting.

A five-year study showed that the prevalence of lung cancer, and of the conditions favorable for its development, were linked "almost completely" to the number of cigarets smoked by the victims, according to the report.

Auerbach and his associates studied nearly 20,000 separate tissue samples taken from the dead men. Nearest relatives of the 63 shown by the autopsy to have died of lung cancer said that all of them were smokers.

Dancer Set For Debut In America

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Dancer Juliet Prowse, a South African import, is making her American TV debut hoping to climb aboard the rocket to stardom that carried hoofer Barrie Chase to the top.

Miss Chase was an overnight success after her first appearance on Fred Astaire's award winning show last year.

"I certainly hope my first opportunity will do as much for me as Barrie's did for her," said Juliet who appears on Frank Sinatra's Dec. 13 show.

The 23 - year - old Juliet was brought to America five months ago and signed to a long term contract by 20th Century Fox which cast her in "Can Can."

With that picture out of the way, Juliet has been sitting around waiting for reaction from studio bosses who'll chart her career.

"I hate this business of working one week and not doing anything else for a month," Juliet complained.

"Before I came to Hollywood, I worked for five straight years in Europe."

Miss Prowse, who bears a resemblance to Leslie Caron, is casting a critical glance at Hollywood.

"I often think about whether or not I'll stay," she said in her sighty Engish accented voice.

"One thing is certain," she insisted, "I'm not going to beat my head against the wall here looking for work."

If filmland doesn't come up with the right offers next year, Juliet will return to Europe.

"I know I could be active if I went back to Europe," Juliet claimed. "In Italy I have a chance to become one of their leading ladies.

"They have five big musical comedy companies in Italy and each of them does a new show every year. I could be star of one of those companies and make a lot more money over there than I do in Hollywood."

Handyman Projects Given For Winter

NEW YORK (UPI) — For those handymen who are bored because old man winter has ended their outdoor puttering, I offer a few helpful hints on getting that old furniture to look like new.

A colorful coat of quality enamel will do the trick. However, there are three points to remember if you want a first-class job on wooden or metal furniture: Prepare the surface properly, buy only quality enamel, apply it properly.

Preparation of wooden furniture can be easy. If the old finish is in good condition just remove any wax or oil with odorless paint thinner and then dull the gloss with steel wool, sandpaper or one of the new liquids designed for this purpose.

A cracked or chipped finish should be removed with paint remover, following the instructions for its use and neutralization, if necessary. Avoid breathing the fumes and be sure to provide plenty of ventilation.

Fill any holes or cracks with water putty or plastic wood, and when the piece is dry, sand lightly before applying an enamel undercoat. The topcoat should be applied only after the undercoat is completely dry.

The job can be done more easily if all drawer pulls and other hardware are removed before starting.

An important point to remember is not to brush out the enamel as you would ordinary paint. Fill the brush and apply quickly and freely, flowing on the enamel with the grain of the wood. Without refilling the brush, stroke across the grain. This will spread the enamel evenly and cover any misses.

Lastly, tap the brush against the inside of the can until it is nearly dry and then brush lightly once more with the grain, making the strokes as long as possible. This is especially important on vertical surfaces to prevent snags.

For small pieces or those with intricate surfaces, you might find the self-spraying enamels handy to use. However, these are not meant for major decorating jobs.

Refinishing metal furniture is done much the same way. Any rust spots should be sanded or steel-wooled away to bright metal, which should then be primed with a metal primer such as zinc chromate.

A noteworthy fact is that aluminum furniture which lost its sheen can be enameled the same as iron or steel pieces. First apply the prime coat and then finish with the enamel of your choice.

Lastly, tap the brush against the inside of the can until it is nearly dry and then brush lightly once more with the grain, making the strokes as long as possible. This is especially important on vertical surfaces to prevent snags.

For small pieces or those with intricate surfaces, you might find the self-spraying enamels handy to use. However, these are not meant for major decorating jobs.

Refinishing metal furniture is done much the same way. Any rust spots should be sanded or steel-wooled away to bright metal, which should then be primed with a metal primer such as zinc chromate.

A noteworthy fact is that aluminum furniture which lost its sheen can be enameled the same as iron or steel pieces. First apply the prime coat and then finish with the enamel of your choice.

CAN ACT ALSO

Rita Hayworth Not Only Screen Beauty

By JAMES BAON
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)— Rita Hayworth, who was never given a chance to act when she was the screen's favorite love goddess, is surprising critics with her serious performances.

She is even surprising herself.

"I never consciously made the change from glamour roles to serious acting. I just thought I needed a change of pace in my acting career and went ahead and did it.

"If it's come out well, I'm glad but I didn't plan it that way."

Whether it's coincidence or not, Rita's emergence as a serious dramatic actress started about the time that she married producer James Hill, her fifth husband.

Friends say Hill is the first of five husbands who has never tried to guide his wife's career.

Rita, docile by nature, has had a history of domination by men—from her father to Dick Haymes.

"When it wasn't husbands, it was lawyers," she says. "The income tax people couldn't believe when I reported that I paid $40,000 a year retainer fees to one law firm."

She cited the recent settlement of her custody squabble with Aly Khan over the Princess Yasmin.

"We were in court fighting all the time. Finally, Jimmy (Hill) suggested that we meet with Aly for dinner some night and discuss the matter without the lawyers. We settled it all in one night—and now the three of us are the best of friends."

Rita's first taste of showbusiness was in her father's Spanish dance troupe. It was a troupe that Eduardo Cansino ruled with a Castilian hand.

It was there that oilman Ed Judson saw her. He became her first husband and introduced her to important movie people. Back in the early 30s, she almost became a star overnight in the movie "Ramona."

Winfield Sheehan then was the boss at the old Fox studio. Judson had introduced his then black-haired wife to Sheehan and the production boss saw her as the perfect senorita for the story of early California.

The picture was started and then came the merger with 20th Century. Sheehan was out and Darryl Zanuck was in. Zanuck scrapped the Hayworth footage in "Ramona" and recast the picture with Loretta Young.

"I also let Clark Gable go once," Zanuck admits ruefully.

Judson took his wife over to Harry Cohn at Columbia—and it was there that she rose to become the screen's top siren during the war years.

In 1942, she and Judson were divorced. Her next husband was Orson Welles, pudgy genius who wanted to educate his wife.

Her pictures, especially during the war years, became monumental box office success. She did little but look sexy—and to the boys overseas she couldn't have contributed more to the war effort.

Her marriage in 1949 to the son of the Aga Khan zoomed Rita from mere movie star to international headline maker. Her divorce from Aly in 1953 made her even bigger headline news.

Then came the marriage to Dick Haymes and a downward curve in her career. Haymes, as it turned out, was the most dominating of all her mates.

Cohn had invested $400,000 in the spectacle "Joseph and his Brethren," a picture that has yet to be made. Rita had the key feminine role but one day she walked off the picture. Or rather she was dragged off by Haymes.

"That crooner told me that either he played 'Joseph' or his wife was out of the cast," Cohn once told a reporter.

Rita left and Cohn made a star of the next good-looking girl who came through the studio gates—Kim Novak.

Rita was unmarried for three years and did little but appear in court. She made her peace with Cohn and made "Pal Joey."

Her marriage to Hill caught movieland by surprise.

He was known as the exact opposite of Rita's former husbands. He figured her career was her own business. But he did make it his when he put her in his "Separate Tables."

It was a highly dramatic role that had been played to perfection on the stage by such top actresses as Margaret Leighton and Geraldine Page.

Hollywood waited for the producer's wife to fall on her face in the picture. She didn't. In fact, critics wrote of a newly discovered dramatic talent behind the beautiful face and body of Rita Hayworth.

Next came "They Came to Cordura," in which Rita shed herself of all glamor and sex appeal. Once again she scored.

Clifford Odets sent her the script for "The Story on Page One."

"It had 450 pages—and most of it dialogue by me," says Rita. "I told him I loved the script but 450 pages—I hadn't spoken that many pages in my whole career."

But Odets was adamant. Rita has just finished the role.

Mike Waits Word After Examination

Mike was examined by physicians of the department of physical medicine at Richmond Friday, who said he may not get limb by Dec. 25. He was born with no left hand.

Ever since he entered school, this fall the robust, happy-looking youngster has expressed a constant desire to have the artificial the hand by Christmas.

Dr. Ray Dawson, department director, said Friday "it would be most unusual" if the hand is ready by Christmas.

"It usually takes longer than that to produce it," he said, "about 30 days."

Funds have already been contributed and have flooded the home of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Plaugher in Alexandria, a suburb of Washington were the Washington Post and Times Herald first told of Mike's dream for a hand.

Mike's father is an $85,-a-week radio and television repairman and had been unable to finance treatment.

Results of Friday's examination will be forwarded to the Alexandria health department for a final decision. Still to be decided is what use will be made of the contributions and whether the state will assume any financial responsibility.

Mike's case attracted widespread attention when his 5-year-old brother, Donnie, took a hand from a department store mannikin. Donnie told his mother he wanted to give the hand to Mike.

'Summer Place' Is At Paramount

"A Summer Place," the popular novel by Sloan Wilson, author of "The Man In The Gray Flannel Suit," has been brought to the screen by Warner Bros. as a Technicolor production starring Richard Egan, Dorothy McGuire, Sandra Dee, Arthur Kennedy and Troy Donahue and featuring Constance Ford and Beulah Bondi.

The direction of the motion picture, coming today to the Paramount Theatre, was entrusted to one of Hollywood's great talents, Delmer Daves, who also wrote the screen adaptation.

"A Summer Place" is a present day story with a Maine background. Millionaire Ken Jorgenson, with his wife, Helen and daughter Molly, returns to the Pine Island Mansion where he once worked as a lifeguard. The owner, Bart Hunter, has dissipated the family fortune and is now operating the summer place with his wife Sylvia and son Johnny, as an inn for paying guests.

Ken and Sylvia face their old love, determine on divorce. The scandal causes difficult problems for Molly and Johnny, who forget their loneliness in each other. Like their parents 20 years ago they have an illicit love affair. How the problems are solved and greater understanding between the parents and children established, is frankly and sensitively told.

Richard Egan portrays the self-made millionaire, Ken Jorgenson. Dorothy McGuire, who captivated audiences on both stage and screen, is cast as Sylvia Hunter, trapped into marriage to a man she never really loved.

Beautiful 16-year-old Sandra Dee plays Molly Jorgenson, the voluptuous teen-ager with a love of living and a great capacity to love. Five-time Academy Award nominee Arthur Kennedy returned to Warner Bros. where he made his film bow as James Cagney's brother in "City for Conquest." In "A Summer Place" he is playing Bart Hunter, a cultured gentleman with a wicked sense of humor and a love of the bottle.

Troy Donahue, a handsome young New Yorker, is seen as Johnny Hunter, the scion of a distinguished New England family. After a long search for the right actor for this role Warner Bros. signed the talented newcomer to a long term contract as well as the picture.

Broadway actress Constance Ford is cast in the highly dramatic role of Helen Hunter, the domineering wife and mother. Famed character actress Beulah Bondi portrays Mrs. Hamble, an independent dowager and long-time friend of the Hunter family.

Director Delmer Daves directed his first motion picture at Warner Bros. when he was assigned to "Destination Tokyo" for which he had written the screenplay. Since then, whenever possible, he has written as well as directed his motion pictures. Some of the more recent pictures Daves has directed are "The Hanging Tree," "Kings Go Forth," "3:10 to Yuma" and "Cowboy."

STAMPS

The 4-cent Boy Scouts of America Golden Jubilee commemorative stamp will feature a head and shoulders view of a Scout saluting. The stamp will be placed on sale Feb. 8, 1960, at Washington, D. C.

The new adhesive was designed by artist Norman Rockwell, who has drawn the covers for many of the official Scouting calendars.

The likeness of the Scout will be printed in gradations of khaki. The lettering "1910-1960" at the left and all other writing on the stamp will be in blue.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations may send their addressed envelopes, together with remittance to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed, to the Postmaster, Washington 13, D. C. prior to Feb. 8.

The outside envelope to the Postmaster should be clearly endorsed "First Day Covers 4-Cent Boy Scout Commemorative Stamp."

Austria has issued a new semi-postal honoring Postage Stamp Day in that country, reports Edwin Mueller. The design shows a Roman coach of about 100 A. D. which was used on the "cursus publicus," a forerunner of the present day mail service. It was taken from a marble relief on the south facade of the church of Maria Saal in Corinthia. The value is 2.40 — schilling and the surtax is 60 - groschen.

The 1960 edition of "Stamp Collectors Guide" has just been published. The 64-page booklet combines helpful philatelic information with an up-to-the-minute market guide of current prices for United States stamps. Readers of this column may obtain a free copy by writing to H. E. Harris & Co., Boston 15, Mass.

France has issued four new stamps. One is an anti-polio adhesive which shows a youth discarding crutches. Another is for the centenary of the birth of the French philosopher Henri Bergson. It is a 50-franc and bears his portrait. A 20-franc depicts buildings at Avesnes-Sur-Helpe. A 30-franc pictures the castle at Perpignan surrounded by flowers and coats of arms.

LITTLE THEATRE

Next Friday, December 11, will usher in the run of another Little Theatre Production, "Caine Mutiny Court Martial." Many committees and individuals are working to make this production a success. It is a very dramatic production with an all - male cast and Director Ivan Uttall still needs two men for non-speaking parts. Won't some loyal Little Theatre member volunteer today? Bill Smith has recently joined the cast and is playing the part of Lt. Greenwald. He will do it expertly. Ivan also needs a stenotype machine. Isn't there someone who has one he can use?

Frances Ritter, who has been very busy arranging the hosts and hostesses for "Caine Mutiny Court Martial" is going to New Orleans next week to see the opera "Aida." Remember that the play will open on Friday, December 11 and run through Wednesday December 16. For the first night, three men will serve as hosts. They are Frank Breese, Fred Frazier and John Allen. On Saturday night December 12, the hostesses are Mrs. E. C. Rowan and Mrs. J. C. Brown, Jr. On Sunday night December 13, the hostesses will be Mrs. Fritz Becker, Mrs. A. M. Guerriero and Dr. Elaine Fichter Mickey. On Monday night December 1, Miss Frances Flanders, Mrs. H. M. Butler and Mrs. Carroll S. Edgar will serve as hostesses. On Tuesday night the hostesses will be Mrs. W. J. Veazey, Mrs. John Collins and Mrs. T. Fitzhugh Wilson. On the closing night of the play, December 16, Mrs. W. B. Inabnet, Mrs. J. S. Harbuck and Mrs. Aaron Parker will serve as hostesses.

Remember to make your reservations to see this play with the Little Theatre Box Office in the afternoons between 2:00 and 7:00 beginning on Thursday, December 10.

Birth Control 'False Issue'

NEW YORK (AP) — Former President Harry S. Truman said today that birth control is "a false issue—so far as the presidency is concerned."

He made the comment on the controversy over whether the United States should furnish birth control aid to underdeveloped, overpopulated countries. Truman was taking a brief prebreakfast stroll here.

He was asked specifically whether the birth - control issue would affect the presidential chances of U. S. Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, considered a contender for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Truman replied: "Why should it? It's a false issue to begin with so far as the presidency is concerned. It has nothing to do with it."

'MAJORITY' TO LONDON

NEW YORK (AP) — Molly Picon, veteran star of the Yiddish theater, is to play the distaff lead in the British edition of "A Majority of One." Gertrude Berg plays the role in the still-running Broadway hit production.

Due in London in mid - February, the venture is being presented by the original producers, The Theatre Guild and Dore Schary, in association with H. M. Tennent Ltd.

Cohn had invested $400,000 in the spectacle "Joseph and his Brethren," a picture that has yet to be made. Rita had the key feminine role but one day she walked off the picture. Or rather she was dragged off by Haymes.

"That crooner told me that either he played 'Joseph' or his wife was out of the cast," Cohn once told a reporter.

Rita left and Cohn made a star of the next good-looking girl who came through the studio gates—Kim Novak.

Rita was unmarried for three years and did little but appear in court. She made her peace with Cohn and made "Pal Joey."

Her marriage to Hill caught movieland by surprise.

He was known as the exact opposite of Rita's former husbands. He figured her career was her own business. But he did make it his when he put her in his "Separate Tables."

It was a highly dramatic role that had been played to perfection on the stage by such top actresses as Margaret Leighton and Geraldine Page.

Hollywood waited for the producer's wife to fall on her face in the picture. She didn't. In fact, critics wrote of a newly discovered dramatic talent behind the beautiful face and body of Rita Hayworth.

Next came "They Came to Cordura," in which Rita shed herself of all glamor and sex appeal. Once again she scored.

Clifford Odets sent her the script for "The Story on Page One."

"It had 450 pages—and most of it dialogue by me," says Rita. "I told him I loved the script but 450 pages—I hadn't spoken that many pages in my whole career."

But Odets was adamant. Rita has just finished the role.

'Summer Place' Is At Paramount

"A Summer Place," the popular novel by Sloan Wilson, author of "The Man In The Gray Flannel Suit," has been brought to the screen by Warner Bros. as a Technicolor production starring Richard Egan, Dorothy McGuire, Sandra Dee, Arthur Kennedy and Troy Donahue and featuring Constance Ford and Beulah Bondi.

The direction of the motion picture, coming today to the Paramount Theatre, was entrusted to one of Hollywood's great talents, Delmer Daves, who also wrote the screen adaptation.

"A Summer Place" is a present day story with a Maine background. Millionaire Ken Jorgenson, with his wife, Helen and daughter Molly, returns to the Pine Island Mansion where he once worked as a lifeguard. The owner, Bart Hunter, has dissipated the family fortune and is now operating the summer place with his wife Sylvia and son Johnny, as an inn for paying guests.

Ken and Sylvia face their old love, determine on divorce. The scandal causes difficult problems for Molly and Johnny, who forget their loneliness in each other. Like their parents 20 years ago they have an illicit love affair. How the problems are solved and greater understanding between the parents and children established, is frankly and sensitively told.

Richard Egan portrays the self-made millionaire, Ken Jorgenson. Dorothy McGuire, who captivated audiences on both stage and screen, is cast as Sylvia Hunter, trapped into marriage to a man she never really loved.

Beautiful 16-year-old Sandra Dee plays Molly Jorgenson, the voluptuous teen-ager with a love of living and a great capacity to love. Five-time Academy Award nominee Arthur Kennedy returned to Warner Bros. where he made his film bow as James Cagney's brother in "City for Conquest." In "A Summer Place" he is playing Bart Hunter, a cultured gentleman with a wicked sense of humor and a love of the bottle.

Troy Donahue, a handsome young New Yorker, is seen as Johnny Hunter, the scion of a distinguished New England family. After a long search for the right actor for this role Warner Bros. signed the talented newcomer to a long term contract as well as the picture.

Broadway actress Constance Ford is cast in the highly dramatic role of Helen Hunter, the domineering wife and mother. Famed character actress Beulah Bondi portrays Mrs. Hamble, an independent dowager and long-time friend of the Hunter family.

Director Delmer Daves directed his first motion picture at Warner Bros. when he was assigned to "Destination Tokyo" for which he had written the screenplay. Since then, whenever possible, he has written as well as directed his motion pictures. Some of the more recent pictures Daves has directed are "The Hanging Tree," "Kings Go Forth," "3:10 to Yuma" and "Cowboy."

STAMPS

The 4-cent Boy Scouts of America Golden Jubilee commemorative stamp will feature a head and shoulders view of a Scout saluting. The stamp will be placed on sale Feb. 8, 1960, at Washington, D. C.

The new adhesive was designed by artist Norman Rockwell, who has drawn the covers for many of the official Scouting calendars.

The likeness of the Scout will be printed in gradations of khaki. The lettering "1910-1960" at the left and all other writing on the stamp will be in blue.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations may send their addressed envelopes, together with remittance to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed, to the Postmaster, Washington 13, D. C. prior to Feb. 8.

The outside envelope to the Postmaster should be clearly endorsed "First Day Covers 4-Cent Boy Scout Commemorative Stamp."

Austria has issued a new semi-postal honoring Postage Stamp Day in that country, reports Edwin Mueller. The design shows a Roman coach of about 100 A. D. which was used on the "cursus publicus," a forerunner of the present day mail service. It was taken from a marble relief on the south facade of the church of Maria Saal in Corinthia. The value is 2.40 — schilling and the surtax is 60 - groschen.

The 1960 edition of "Stamp Collectors Guide" has just been published. The 64-page booklet combines helpful philatelic information with an up-to-the-minute market guide of current prices for United States stamps. Readers of this column may obtain a free copy by writing to H. E. Harris & Co., Boston 15, Mass.

France has issued four new stamps. One is an anti-polio adhesive which shows a youth discarding crutches. Another is for the centenary of the birth of the French philosopher Henri Bergson. It is a 50-franc and bears his portrait. A 20-franc depicts buildings at Avesnes-Sur-Helpe. A 30-franc pictures the castle at Perpignan surrounded by flowers and coats of arms.

Birth Control 'False Issue'

NEW YORK (AP) — Former President Harry S. Truman said today that birth control is "a false issue—so far as the presidency is concerned."

He made the comment on the controversy over whether the United States should furnish birth control aid to underdeveloped, overpopulated countries. Truman was taking a brief prebreakfast stroll here.

He was asked specifically whether the birth - control issue would affect the presidential chances of U. S. Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, considered a contender for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Truman replied: "Why should it? It's a false issue to begin with so far as the presidency is concerned. It has nothing to do with it."

LITTLE THEATRE

Next Friday, December 11, will usher in the run of another Little Theatre Production, "Caine Mutiny Court Martial." Many committees and individuals are working to make this production a success. It is a very dramatic production with an all - male cast and Director Ivan Uttall still needs two men for non-speaking parts. Won't some loyal Little Theatre member volunteer today? Bill Smith has recently joined the cast and is playing the part of Lt. Greenwald. He will do it expertly. Ivan also needs a stenotype machine. Isn't there someone who has one he can use?

Frances Ritter, who has been very busy arranging the hosts and hostesses for "Caine Mutiny Court Martial" is going to New Orleans next week to see the opera "Aida." Remember that the play will open on Friday, December 11 and run through Wednesday December 16. For the first night, three men will serve as hosts. They are Frank Breese, Fred Frazier and John Allen. On Saturday night December 12, the hostesses are Mrs. E. C. Rowan and Mrs. J. C. Brown, Jr. On Sunday night December 13, the hostesses will be Mrs. Fritz Becker, Mrs. A. M. Guerriero and Dr. Elaine Fichter Mickey. On Monday night December 1, Miss Frances Flanders, Mrs. H. M. Butler and Mrs. Carroll S. Edgar will serve as hostesses. On Tuesday night the hostesses will be Mrs. W. J. Veazey, Mrs. John Collins and Mrs. T. Fitzhugh Wilson. On the closing night of the play, December 16, Mrs. W. B. Inabnet, Mrs. J. S. Harbuck and Mrs. Aaron Parker will serve as hostesses.

Remember to make your reservations to see this play with the Little Theatre Box Office in the afternoons between 2:00 and 7:00 beginning on Thursday, December 10.

'MAJORITY' TO LONDON

NEW YORK (AP) — Molly Picon, veteran star of the Yiddish theater, is to play the distaff lead in the British edition of "A Majority of One." Gertrude Berg plays the role in the still-running Broadway hit production.

Due in London in mid - February, the venture is being presented by the original producers, The Theatre Guild and Dore Schary, in association with H. M. Tennent Ltd.

UN Group In Session On Algeria

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) —The U. N. Political Committee went into weekend session yesterday in hope of reaching a vote on the thorny problem of Algeria.

Debate was bogged down, however, by a parade of Asian-African nations plumping for their resolution which urged talks between France and Algeria on political issues as well as a cease-fire in the five-year-old rebellion.

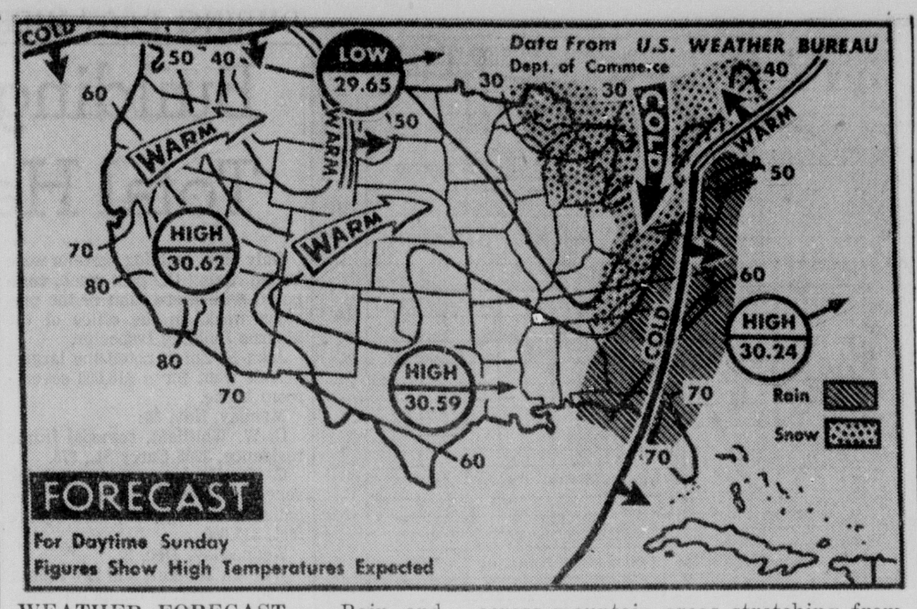
Sources close to the French who are boycotting the debate, already have branded the resolution as unacceptable because it appeared to give recognition to the Algerian Front of National Liberation as sole spokesman for the Algerians.

These sources predicted the resolution would fail to get the two thirds majority required to pass the General Assembly.

But Burmese Ambassador U Thant, who introduced the resolution cosponsored by 22 Asian-African nations, was optimistic that it would get the needed two thirds.

Algerian representatives here observing the debate, put out a declaration Friday that they would not stop fighting until France guarantees them free elections on Algeria's future.

French President Charles de Gaulle has offered the Algerians a chance to vote on whether they want to be independent or remain tied to France.



WEATHER FORECAST — Rain and snow are expected today in eastern third of nation. Rain is due in north Atlantic coast area and in the mid and southern Atlantic coast states. Snow is expected in northern New England and across mountain areas stretching from New York State to Tennessee. Snow is expected also throughout Great Lakes region. It will be colder throughout eastern half of nation and warmer in western half. (AP Wirephoto Map)

'Mack The Knife' Rated Top Hit

CHICAGO (UPI) — Bobby Darin's award-winning "Mack the Knife" slashed back to the top of United Press International's top 20 popular tunes survey Saturday, setting a record for the year.

"Mack," number one tune at one point or another since early fall, gained first place for the ninth week, the first song in 1959 to hold on so long. It also marked the third time this year that "Mack," having slipped to second, regained first.

In second, displaced by "Mack was Della Reece's "Don't You Know," followed by two fast-gaining tunes, Bobby Rydell's "We Got Love" and Guy Mitchell's "Heartaches by the Numbers." "We Got Love" was in seventh last week and "Heartaches," a veteran on the survey, was ninth.

In fifth this week was "Mr. Blue," followed by "Way Down Yonder in New Orleans" and, in seventh, a newcomer to the top 20, Toni Fisher's "The Big Hurt." Another newcomer was in 10th, Paul Anka's "It's Time to Cry."

Six other new tunes made up the second 10 on the popularity poll.

The top 20:

(2--114) Mack the Knife. Bobby Darin (Atco).

(2-1-10) Don't You Know. Della Reece (Victor)

(3-7-6) We Got Love. Bobby Rydell (Cameo).

(4--8) Heartaches By the Numbers. Guy Mitchell (Columbia).

(5-3-12) Mr. Blue. The Fleetwoods (Dolton).

(6-8-2) Way Down Yonder in New Orleans. Freddie Cannon (Swan).

(7-0-2) The Big Hurt. Toni Disher (Signet).

(8-4-6) Oh, Carol. Neil Sedaka (Victor).

(9-6-4) Uh, Oh. The Nutty Squirrels (Hanover).

(10-0-1) It's Time to Cry. Paul Anka. (ABC-Paramount)

(11-0-6) So Many Ways. Brook Benton (Mercury).

(13-0-10) Misty. Johnny Mathis. (Columbia).

(14-5-6) Unforgettable. Diniah Washington (Mercury).

(15-17-6) Talk to Me. Frank Sinatra (Capitol).

(16-15-2) Torquay. Fireballs (Top Rank).

(17-14-2) Believe Me. Royal Teens (Capitol).

(18-0-1) Why. Frankie Avalon (Chancellor).

(20-0-4) Be My Guest. Fats Domino. (Imperial).

Italy's Reds Complain Over Ike Reception

ROME (AP) — Italy's Communist party today complained that the City of Rome had not given President Eisenhower a big enough welcome.

The Reds used the Eisenhower visit as a political club against an old opponent, Mayor Urbano Cioccetti of Rome.

Normally the mayor of Rome does not welcome visitors at the airport or railway station. He usually greets them as their motorcade passes the Colosseum. The mayor also usually arranges a reception for visitors at the great city hall, designed by Michelangelo.

Cioccetti did neither. He went to the airport to greet Eisenhower. No other program was arranged. Italian officials said this was because Eisenhower's visit was not a ceremonial state affair.

Sam Trades Space Ride For Wagon

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — Sam the monkey, hungry, frisky and unimpressed with his 55 - mile flight into space, shook hands with his private physician Saturday, munched an apple and headed for home.

Sam traded his berth in the sick bay of a U. S. destroyer for a staton wagon ride to nearby Langley Air Force Base, Va., home of the seven human astronauts who hope to take the same rocket ride that the monkey pioneered Friday.

He waited at the Langley veterinarians clinic with his doctor, Air Force Maj. Cloid Greene, for a flight to Brooks Air Force Base, San Antonio, Tex., where Sam will undergo intensive tests.

Sam received his pre - flight "training" at Brooks under Greene who followed him to Wallops Island, Va., for the historic shot and was the first person aboard the destroyer USS Brodie when it docked at the Norfolk Naval Base Saturday.

The two shook hands. "Hi, Sam," the doctor said.

They were quickly whisked away to Langley, Sam under a blanket and Greene right behind, while reporters thronged the rail of a ship moored alongside and shouted for news of the monkey's condition.

"He's in good shape," Greene replied.

The doctor was quoted at a news conference aboard the destroyer tender USS Tidewater as saying he was "very pleased" with Sam's condition following the trip which marked the first time the mercury capsule had been tested with a living creature aboard.

The experiment was a howling success.

Conducted by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), it was designed to test the escape mechanism to be used if a space shot goes wrong with a human being aboard.

Sam's bell-shaped capsule parachuted softly into the Atlantic and was picked up less than two hours later by the Brodie, summoned by an airplane hovering overhead.

Cmdr. Joseph Sahaj, of Saten Island, N. Y., commanding officer of the Brodie, was the first man to see the monkey after its recovery from the ocean.

Top Demo Guns Primed For Whirl

NEW YORK (AP)—Some of the top guns of the Democratic party are in town today, all primed for a three-day political whirl.

Among the party notables set to appear at a series of receptions, dinners and speeches are former President Harry S. Truman and seven possible presidential candidates for 1960.

The round of events has been called the party's election kickoff.

Notably missing will be an influential pair from Texas, Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson and Rep. Sam Rayburn.

Johnson, majority leader in the Senate, will be the only one of the leading contenders for the nomination not present.

But neither he nor Rayburn, speaker of the House, take very kindly to the Democratic Advisory Council, which has had a big hand in organizing the action here this weekend. The council was set up after the party's 1956 defeat to advise the Democrats in Congress on policy.

The weekend schedule starts with meetings of the Advisory Council and will be climaxed Monday night with a $100-a-plate dinner in honor of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

It was mainly friends of Mrs. Roosevelt who arranged the social plans and this has created something of a sticky situation for most of the party big-wigs.

Mrs. Roosevelt and other guests of honor—former Sen. Herbert H. Lehman and former Air Force Secretary Thomas K. Finletter—have tried without success to depose Tammany chieftain Carmine DeSapio on grounds of bossism.

Both DeSapio and his ally, state party chairman Michael H. Prendergast, were all but overlooked in the arrangements for the weekend, but both men wield great political power — especially for hopefuls with an eye on next year's nominating convention.

Mayor Robert F. Wagner Friday urged both men to attend a reception he is giving for visiting party members and former New York Gov. W. Averell Harriman sent them special invitations to a buffet he is giving for the advisory committee.

DeSapio and Prendergast reportedly were miffed at not getting formal invitations earlier.

They were reported to have accepted Wagner's offer but pleaded previous engagements in turning down Harriman's.

Possible presidential aspirants scheduled to speak at Monday's dinner are Sens. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota and Stuart Symington of Missouri; Govs. Edmund G. Brown of California, Robert B. Meyner of New Jersey and G. Mennen Williams of Michigan; and former Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois, the Democratic candidate in 1952 and 1956.

Boy, 4, Freed From Tear Gas Bomb On Lip

He had stuck the clip of the pocket bomb on his lip and couldn't get it off.

His father, an insurance salesman, kept the bomb on a closet shelf and used it for protection when he took a considerable amount of money on trips.

"I was terrified," his mother said. She took Kenneth in her arms to a neighbor's, and called police.

Patrolman Charles Overheiser and members of a fire company came to help.

"We've seen those bombs before," Asst. Fire Chief John DeJong said, "But we were afraid to move it because if it went off, the boy could lose his eyesight from the gas."

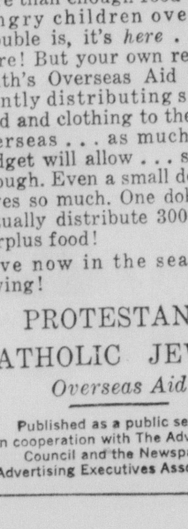
The firemen wrapped gauze around Kenneth's eyes, and Overheiser drove him to a hospital.

Doctors were ready to cut through Kenneth's lip to remove the bomb, rather than risk dismantling it. Overheiser remembered that a fellow policeman, Maurice Stice, 29, had once taken such a tear gas weapon from a burglary suspect.

Stice was summoned to the hospital. He patted Kenneth's head, pointed the business end of the bomb toward his own chest, and delicately unscrewed it.

The tear gas cartridge fell into Stice's hand.

"There you are, son," he told Kenneth, and went back to duty.



World Refugee Year 1959-60

"Sorry, little girl, your dinner's in America!"

Here in America—we have more than enough food to feed hungry children overseas. Trouble is, it's here . . . not there! But your own religious Faith's Overseas Aid is constantly distributing surplus food and clothing to the needy overseas . . . as much as its budget will allow . . . still not enough. Even a small donation gives so much. One dollar can actually distribute 300 lbs. of surplus food!

Give now in the season of giving!

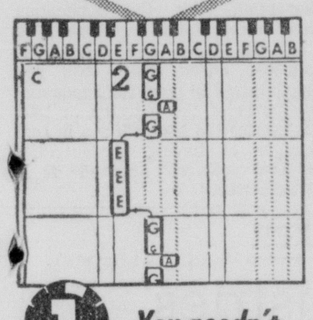
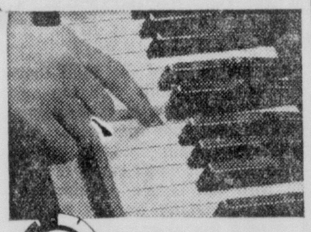
LEARN TO PLAY THE ORGAN BY CHRISTMAS

Here's How



1 You needn't know a note!

The new "picture music" provided with the Hammond Chord Organ shows you which keys you touch to play the melody notes.



2 You don't need lessons!

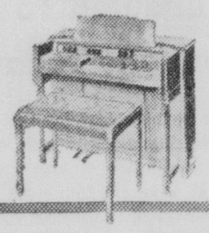
3 You play chords one finger!

Rich harmony chords that normally take 3 to 5 fingers, take only 1 finger of your left hand on the Chord Organ.



THE HAMMOND CHORD ORGAN

Sounds easy? Well it is. Come in and spend a few minutes in private and prove to yourself how easy, how much fun it is to play a Hammond Chord Organ.

UN Group In Session On Algeria

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) —The U. N. Political Committee went into weekend session yesterday in hope of reaching a vote on the thorny problem of Algeria.

Debate was bogged down, however, by a parade of Asian-African nations plumping for their resolution which urged talks between France and Algeria on political issues as well as a cease-fire in the five-year-old rebellion.

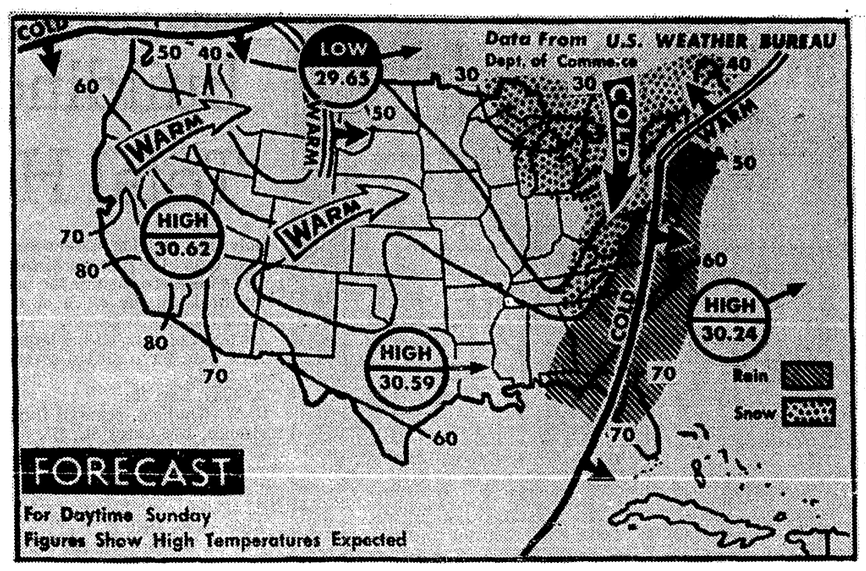
Sources close to the French who are boycotting the debate, already have branded the resolution as unacceptable because it appeared to give recognition to the Algerian Front of National Liberation as sole spokesman for the Algerians.

These sources predicted the resolution would fail to get the two thirds majority required to pass the General Assembly.

But Burmese Ambassador U Thant, who introduced the resolution cosponsored by 22 Asian-African nations, was optimistic that it would get the needed two thirds.

Algerian representatives here observing the debate, put out a declaration Friday that they would not stop fighting until France guarantees them free elections on Algeria's future.

French President Charles de Gaulle has offered the Algerians a chance to vote on whether they want to be independent or remain tied to France.



WEATHER FORECAST — Rain and snow are expected today in eastern third of nation. Rain is due in north Atlantic coast area and in the mid and southern Atlantic coast states. Snow is expected in northern New England and across mountain areas stretching from New York State to Tennessee. Snow is expected also throughout Great Lakes region. It will be colder throughout eastern half of nation and warmer in western half. (AP Wirephoto Map)

'Mack The Knife' Rated Top Hit

CHICAGO (UPI) — Bobby Darin's award-winning "Mack the Knife" slashed back to the top of United Press International's top 20 popular tunes survey Saturday, setting a record for the year.

"Mack," number one tune at one point or another since early fall, gained first place for the ninth week, the first song in 1959 to hold on so long. It also marked the third time this year that "Mack," having slipped to second, regained first.

In second, displaced by "Mack was Della Reece's "Don't You Know," followed by two fast-gaining tunes, Bobby Rydell's "We Got Love" and Guy Mitchell's "Heartaches by the Numbers." "We Got Love" was in seventh last week and "Heartaches," a veteran on the survey, was ninth.

In fifth this week was "Mr. Blue," followed by "Way Down Yonder in New Orleans" and, in seventh, a newcomer to the top 20, Toni Fisher's "The Big Hurt." Another newcomer was in 10th, Paul Anka's "It's Time to Cry."

Six other new tunes made up the second 10 on the popularity poll.

The top 20:

(2--114) Mack the Knife. Bobby Darin (Atco).

(2-1-10) Don't You Know. Della Reece (Victor)

(3-7-6) We Got Love. Bobby Rydell (Cameo).

(4--8) Heartaches By the Numbers. Guy Mitchell (Columbia).

(5-3-12) Mr. Blue. The Fleetwoods (Dolton).

(6-8-2) Way Down Yonder in New Orleans. Freddie Cannon (Swan).

(7-0-2) The Big Hurt. Toni Disher (Signet).

(8-4-6) Oh, Carol. Neil Sedaka (Victor).

(9-6-4) Uh, Oh. The Nutty Squirrels (Hanover).

(10-0-1) It's Time to Cry. Paul Anka. (ABC-Paramount)

(11-0-6) So Many Ways. Brook Benton (Mercury).

(12-0-1) Hound Dog Man. Dabian (Chancellor).

(13-0-10) Misty. Johnny Mathis. (Columbia).

(14-5-6) Unforgettable. Diniah Washington (Mercury).

(15-17-6) Talk to Me. Frank Sinatra (Capitol).

(16-15-2) Torquay. Fireballs (Top Rank).

(17-14-2) Believe Me. Royal Teens (Capitol).

(18-0-1) Why. Frankie Avalon (Chancellor).

(20-0-4) Be My Guest. Fats Domino. (Imperial).

Italy's Reds Complain Over Ike Reception

ROME (AP) — Italy's Communist party today complained that the City of Rome had not given President Eisenhower a big enough welcome.

The Reds used the Eisenhower visit as a political club against an old opponent, Mayor Urbano Cioccetti of Rome.

Normally the mayor of Rome does not welcome visitors at the airport or railway station. He usually greets them as their motorcade passes the Colosseum. The mayor also usually arranges a reception for visitors at the great city hall, designed by Michelangelo.

Cioccetti did neither. He went to the airport to greet Eisenhower. No other program was arranged. Italian officials said this was because Eisenhower's visit was not a ceremonial state affair.

Sam Trades Space Ride For Wagon

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — Sam the monkey, hungry, frisky and unimpressed with his 55 - mile flight into space, shook hands with his private physician Saturday, munched an apple and headed for home.

Sam traded his berth in the sick bay of a U. S. destroyer for a staton wagon ride to nearby Langley Air Force Base, Va., home of the seven human astronauts who hope to take the same rocket ride that the monkey pioneered Friday.

He waited at the Langley veterinarians clinic with his doctor, Air Force Maj. Cloid Greene, for a flight to Brooks Air Force Base, San Antonio, Tex., where Sam will undergo intensive tests.

Sam received his pre - flight "training" at Brooks under Greene who followed him to Wallops Island, Va., for the historic shot and was the first person aboard the destroyer USS Brodie when it docked at the Norfolk Naval Base Saturday.

The two shook hands. "Hi, Sam," the doctor said.

They were quickly whisked away to Langley, Sam under a blanket and Greene right behind, while reporters thronged the rail of a ship moored alongside and shouted for news of the monkey's condition.

"He's in good shape," Greene replied.

The doctor was quoted at a news conference aboard the destroyer tender USS Tidewater as saying he was "very pleased" with Sam's condition following the trip which marked the first time the mercury capsule had been tested with a living creature aboard.

The experiment was a howling success.

Conducted by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), it was designed to test the escape mechanism to be used if a space shot goes wrong with a human being aboard.

Sam's bell-shaped capsule parachuted softly into the Atlantic and was picked up less than two hours later by the Brodie, summoned by an airplane hovering overhead.

Cmdr. Joseph Sahaj, of Saten Island, N. Y., commanding officer of the Brodie, was the first man to see the monkey after its recovery from the ocean.

Top Demo Guns Primed For Whirl

NEW YORK (AP)—Some of the top guns of the Democratic party are in town today, all primed for a three-day political whirl.

Among the party notables set to appear at a series of receptions, dinners and speeches are former President Harry S. Truman and seven possible presidential candidates for 1960.

The round of events has been called the party's election kickoff.

Notably missing will be an influential pair from Texas, Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson and Rep. Sam Rayburn.

Johnson, majority leader in the Senate, will be the only one of the leading contenders for the nomination not present.

But neither he nor Rayburn, speaker of the House, take very kindly to the Democratic Advisory Council, which has had a big hand in organizing the action here this weekend. The council was set up after the party's 1956 defeat to advise the Democrats in Congress on policy.

The weekend schedule starts with meetings of the Advisory Council and will be climaxed Monday night with a $100-a-plate dinner in honor of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

It was mainly friends of Mrs. Roosevelt who arranged the social plans and this has created something of a sticky situation for most of the party big-wigs.

Mrs. Roosevelt and other guests of honor—former Sen. Herbert H. Lehman and former Air Force Secretary Thomas K. Finletter—have tried without success to depose Tammany chieftain Carmine DeSapio on grounds of bossism.

Both DeSapio and his ally, state party chairman Michael H. Prendergast, were all but overlooked in the arrangements for the weekend, but both men wield great political power — especially for hopefuls with an eye on next year's nominating convention.

Mayor Robert F. Wagner Friday urged both men to attend a reception he is giving for visiting party members and former New York Gov. W. Averell Harriman sent them special invitations to a buffet he is giving for the advisory committee.

DeSapio and Prendergast reportedly were miffed at not getting formal invitations earlier.

They were reported to have accepted Wagner's offer but pleaded previous engagements in turning down Harriman's.

Possible presidential aspirants scheduled to speak at Monday's dinner are Sens. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota and Stuart Symington of Missouri; Govs. Edmund G. Brown of California, Robert B. Meyner of New Jersey and G. Mennen Williams of Michigan; and former Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois, the Democratic candidate in 1952 and 1956.

Boy, 4, Freed From Tear Gas Bomb On Lip

He had stuck the clip of the pocket bomb on his lip and couldn't get it off.

His father, an insurance salesman, kept the bomb on a closet shelf and used it for protection when he took a considerable amount of money on trips.

"I was terrified," his mother said. She took Kenneth in her arms to a neighbor's, and called police.

Patrolman Charles Overheiser and members of a fire company came to help.

"We've seen those bombs before," Asst. Fire Chief John DeJong said, "But we were afraid to move it because if it went off, the boy could lose his eyesight from the gas."

The firemen wrapped gauze around Kenneth's eyes, and Overheiser drove him to a hospital.

Doctors were ready to cut through Kenneth's lip to remove the bomb, rather than risk dismantling it. Overheiser remembered that a fellow policeman, Maurice Stice, 29, had once taken such a tear gas weapon from a burglary suspect.

Stice was summoned to the hospital. He patted Kenneth's head, pointed the business end of the bomb toward his own chest, and delicately unscrewed it.

The tear gas cartridge fell into Stice's hand.

"There you are, son," he told Kenneth, and went back to duty.

"Sorry, little girl, your dinner's in America!"

Here in America—we have more than enough food to feed hungry children overseas. Trouble is, it's here . . . not there! But your own religious Faith's Overseas Aid is constantly distributing surplus food and clothing to the needy overseas . . . as much as its budget will allow . . . still not enough. Even a small donation gives so much. One dollar can actually distribute 300 lbs. of surplus food!

Give now in the season of giving!

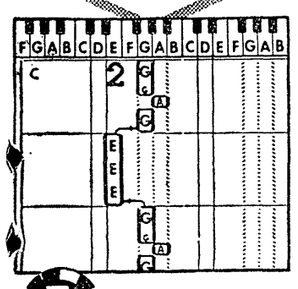
LEARN TO PLAY THE ORGAN BY CHRISTMAS

Here's How



1 You needn't know a note!

The new "picture music" provided with the Hammond Chord Organ shows you which keys you touch to play the melody notes.

2 You don't need lessons!

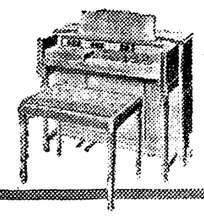
3 You play chords one finger!

Rich harmony chords that normally take 3 to 5 fingers, take only 1 finger of your left hand on the Chord Organ.



THE HAMMOND CHORD ORGAN

Sounds easy? Well it is. Come in and spend a few minutes in private and prove to yourself how easy, how much fun it is to play a Hammond Chord Organ.

WIDEST SINCE OCT. 30

Stocks Register Gain In Turnover

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks during the past week registered their widest gain since Oct. 30 in active turnover.

Business news continued favorable with many divided increases, several highly favorable earnings reports, and what appeared to be some progress toward settlement of the steel impasse.

Wall Street regarded the steel situation as much improved since the steel union has begun to make proposals — not as yet accepted— for a settlement of the long drawn out dispute.

The market proved itself very sensitive to steel news. Each time it appeared as if a settlement might be reached steel shares moved up swiftly and other sections of the market followed, particularly the rails.

Oil shares, long behind the market, also showed demand at rising prices. Electronics continued to feature in the gain column although many encountered profit-taking.

Industrial shares rose in four out of the five sessions and at the close of the week their average stood at 664.00 up 11.48 points on the week, the best gain since the week ending Oct. 30 when this figure rose 13.53 points.

Railroad issues rose to 152.73 up 4.13 points on the week, having shown a gain in each of the five sessions. That was the best weekly rise since Oct. 2 when the average rose 4.60 points.

Utilities firmed 0.35 point to 86.75 in their average and the 65-stock average closed the week at 215.88 up 3.63 points.

The market has been in an almost continual rise since Nov. 16. In that period industrials have risen 29.54 points; rails 5.92 points and utilities 0.82 points.

The list made its best gain of the week on Monday when electronics, electrical equipments, rails and oils were in demand. Tobaccos, hit last week by another cancer scare, were helped by the report of the Internal Revenue Service that September cigarette consumption had set a new record high.

Drug stocks moved higher when several companies were cleared of price fixing in the sale of Salk vaccine. American Motors was churned into profit-taking activity when the company voted to split the stock 3-for-1, declared an extra and promised higher dividends on the split stock.

On Tuesday the market benefitted from a move of the Federal Reserve to make money a bit easier by counting banks' vault cash as reserves. This was seen as a possible forerunner of further easing of credit.

Steel operations ran up to above 92 per cent of capacity and Steel flowed more freely into production channels for industry. General Motors recalled more than half the workers it had laid off and resumed auto output. Chrysler planned to renew production on some models.

Cotton Ends Irregularly On Market

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures prices milled around irregularly last week to close 80 cents a bale lower to 35 cents a bale higher on the New York Cotton Exchange.

Sustaining factors during the week included short covering, mill and trade price fixing and local buying influenced by favorable reports from textile centers and a continued good demand for spot cotton.

Meanwhile, offerings were furnished through light hedge selling, and profit-taking attracted by advances. A midweek drop was attributed to the uncovering of stop-loss orders.

Although the effective cotton parity price for the present month announced Monday by the U.S. Department of Agriculture showed a generally unexpected advance, the market showed little or no reaction to the report. The latest parity price for the staple was placed at 37.93 cents per pound against 37.80 cents a month earlier and 38.93 cents a year earlier.

As the week ended, the cotton trade was looking forward with interest to the issuance on Tuesday of the government's fifth estimate of the crop. The consensus appeared to be that the forthcoming estimate would show some reduction from the official Nov. 1 forecast of 14,801,000 bales.

Reported exports of lint cotton by this country declined during the week ended last Tuesday but expected the level for the corresponding week a year earlier.

According to the New York Cotton Exchange Service Bureau, exports for the current season through Dec. 1 had reached an estimated 1,195,000 bales against 939,000 to approximately the same time last season. For the full count season they are expected to total 5,500,000 bales against 2,-800,000.

CLOCK WATCHERS

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Two clock-watching patrolmen, Charles Hunt and Melvin Young, were suspended for three days after they stopped their investigation of a collision promptly when their tour ended at 3:10 p.m., leaving a traffic jam behind them.

Business Briefs

Mrs. Barbara Koch Joseph, formerly of Monroe, has joined the staff of Shell Oil Company's treasury department in New Orleans.

Mrs. Joseph attended Neville High School in Monroe and also studied commerce for two years at Louisiana State University.

R. G. Mitchell, Armour and Company Grocery Products Division sales representative, will attend the national sales meeting Dec. 7 and 8 at the Statler-Hilton Hotel, Dallas, Texas.

Mr. Mitchell lives at 2605 Chaucer St., Monroe.

Jim Boone, for the past four years represetative of the New York Life Insurance company in Bastrop, has been transferred to Monroe.

Boone was a graduate of Northeast State in 1952. He has been a resident of Bastrop for the past 14 years.

The Boone's and their young son reside in Lakeshore.

Wheat, Corn Futures Lose As Others Gain

CHICAGO (UPI) — Nearby wheat and corn futures lost ground, but other grains advanced this week on the Board of Trade.

Compared with last week, wheat was off 1¼ to up 2; corn off ⅜ to up ⅜; oats up ⅜ to 1½; rye off ½ to up 1½; soybeans up 1⅝ to 3¼ and lard up 10 to 20 points.

Much of the week's activity centered in liquidation of the December contracts and spreading transactions. Tenders were liberal in wheat.

December wheat fell off more than a cent as longs liquidated and other traders exchanged it for deferred contracts. The distant months were strong. Spreaders took December against sales of March and May.

Cash wheat prices were ½ to 1½ cents lower.

Corn showed little change. Liquidation and spreading operations were active. Commercial and export interests bought. Spot corn lost ⅛ to 1 cent.

In oats, support came from cash and shipping houses. Offerings were easily absorbed. The cash market added ¾ cent to previous gains.

Soybeans were irregular, but the market finished higher on speculative buying.

Rye was uneven.

Mamie Slated To Leave Today For Denver

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mamie Eisenhower will leave Sunday night for Denver, Colo., to visit her 81-year-old mother, Mrs. John S. Doud.

She planned the trip to coincide with the period that the President is out of the country on his goodwill mission.

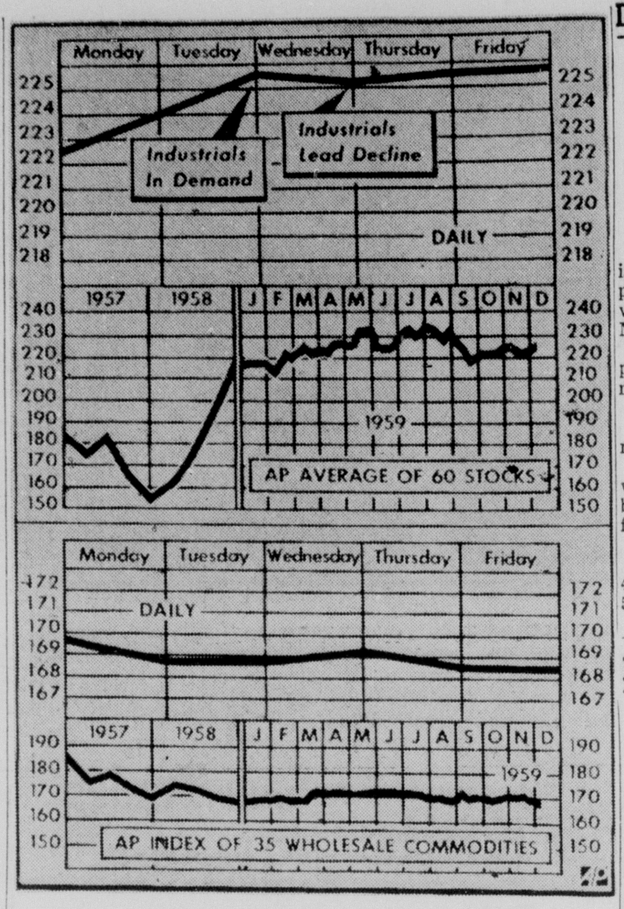
The White House denied reports that the First Lady might make a stopover at Maine Chance a desert resort near Phoenix, Ariz., where she has vacationed in past years.

Mrs. Eisenhower is expected to make the trip to Denver by train.

Her sister, Mrs. G. Gordon Moore, who usually accompanies her, will not go along this time. Mrs. Moore said she has just come back from a Thanksgiving visit with Mrs. Doud.

Mrs. Doud has been ailing recently and both daughters have made frequent visits to Denver to be with her.

There was no indication from the White House as to how long Mrs. Eisenhower will remain in Denver.



STOCKS UP, COMMODITIES DOWN — The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced for the second straight week, closing at 22.8 from 222.5 the previous week. This was the best weekly gain since July 31. The commodity index, led by the industrial and livestock components, declined to 168.4 from 169.7 in the preceding period. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

FINANCIAL REPORT

Optimism Tumbles In Business Area

NEW YORK (AP)—Optimistic predictions for 1960 tumbled out of the business world the past week.

Developments showed that 1959 is a great business year except for those hurt by the steel strike.

This is what some authoritative sources said they expect in 1960:

A record steel production of 127 to 130 million tons.

The automobile industry will try to build more cars — some 2,240,800—in the first three months than in any previous quarter.

Food sales will reach an all-time high of 76 billion dollars.

New construction will hit a record of $55,300,000,000.

These developments added to the 1959 picture:

Machine tool orders in October totaled $67,130,000, highest since March, 1957.

Installment buying reached a peak of $38,421,000,000 at the end of October.

Sales of the domestic electronics industry are expected to total nine billion dollars this year, up a billion from 1958.

Constructon contractng totaled $1,458,000,000 in November, highest ever for that month.

Business affected by the steel strike, and the steel industry itself, continued the past week to snap back as tension mounted over outook for a settement.

Steel production climbed to about 92 per cent of capacity, with the mills rushing to meet a great backlog of orders.

Auto production was stepped up after a long decline due to steel shortage. The industry hopes this was the last week of curtailed output.

General Motors has recalled 115,000 of 215,000 workers laid off because of the strike. It will resume production Monday. Chrysler,which also had closed down production lines, expects 10,000 workers to be back at their jobs within a week.

November production amounted to about 250,000 cars, more than 50 per cent below what the industry planned to build had steel been available.

A new entry in the auto field appeared with introduction of the Superba sedan and station wagon by Checker Motors Corp., taxicab manufacturer.

Retail trade scored a slight gain the past week over a year ago on a post-Thanksgiving increase in Christmas shopping. The dollar volume was up to four per cent higher than last year.

The Agriculture Department reported a drop of five per cent in prices of meat animals in November helped push farm markets to their lowest point since March, 1957. Prices also were lower for cotton and oranges. The declines were partially offset by somewhat hgher prices for dairy products, potatoes, wheat, turkeys and soybeans.

Briefly around the business scene: The British pound sterling was quoted below par of $2.80 in New York and London foreign exchange markets for the first time since December, 1958 . . . The Air Force cut the B70 supersonic bomber program to two test planes, dropping immediate plans to build a fleet . . . Midcontinent refiners raised heavy fuel oil prices 10 cents a barrel to $1.80, up 20 cents from a year ago . The toy industry estimates it will sell a record $1,650,000,000 worth of playthings this year . . . SEGREGATION

Two Bills Revived In Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Two hotly controversial segregation bills that lost in the 1958 Legislature have been revived with virtual assurance of passage next year, a legislative source said Saturday.

Returning legislators, meeting with newcomers to advise them of what to expect in the 1960 session, have been pushing the two bills, according to the reliable source who declined to be identified by name.

The two bills, differing only slightly from their 1958 counterparts, would:

1. Authorize individual Methodist churches to secede from their conferences and take with them all real estate and other property they donated to the conference as prerequisite to affiliation.

2. Authorize counties and municipalities to contribute public funds to the citizens councils.

The Methodist bill was killed in 1958 after opponents charged it would violate separation of church and state in that it would be state interference in church matters.

The Citizens Council donation bill was killed in 1958 after opponents charged the councils are private groups whose books are not available for public inspection, that some taxpayers oppose use of public funds to help support private groups, and that the bill would have permitted the council to spend the money for any purpose without state control or knowledge.

The Methodist bill was described as aimed at preventing the assignment of Negro preachers to white churches. The donation bill was described as aiding the fight to preserve segregation.

Two events during the past 18 months gave virtual assurance of passage to the two bills:

1. The Alabama Legislature enacted into law a bill permitting churches to secede from their conferences.

2. Ross Barnett, an outspoken segregationist and a strong member of the Citizens Councils, was elected governor beginning with the 1960 Legislature.

Barnett's presence in the governor's office could lend sufficient influence to pass both bills.

W. J. Simmons, national and state administrator of the Citizens Councils, has said the councils are not supporting either bill. But they are not opposing them, either.

Only this week, the councils mailed dues statements to members and urged them to become either sustaining members at $25 a year or contributing members at $100 a year.

"To be quite frank," the council statement read, "it is impossible to operate your council on just regular ($5) memberships, as important as they are."

DURING PAST WEEK

Building Permits Total Here Is 8

Only eight building permits were issued during the past week, compared with more than 20 the previous week, in the office of the Monroe Building Inspector.

John E. Zufall noted the largest permit went for a $16,000 seven - room house.

Monday, Nov. 30:

C. W. Whitfield, remodel frame residence, 3906 Curry St., $75.

C. O. Hayton, construct brick veneer residence, five rooms, two baths, 2210 Dogwood, 2100 square feet, $16,000.

Wednesday, Dec. 2:

William Medkiff, add two rooms, 410 square feet, to frame residence 515 Filhiol, $3,000.

Thursday, Dec. 3:

J. S. James Construction Co., was issued two permits for construction of frame residences, five rooms and bath, at:1506 Dilling, 945 square feet, $7,500; 2. 1603 South 11th St., 1000 square feet, $10,000.

G. P. Bergeron, add one room, 240 square feet, brick veneer residence 3200 Albert, $275. Wall in carport.

INDEPENDENT OPERATOR

Oilman In Texas For Modernizing

HOUSTON (AP)—A Texas oilman believes oil states must modernize petroleum conservations or risk federal control.

"Partial conservation is a made to order vehicle for the proponents of federal control," said Michel Halbouty, an independent operator.

"The best protection lies in shoring up state conservation laws and regulations in Texas and elsewhere if we are to avoid federal control."

The Houston geologist and petroleum engineer who recently expanded his operations to include explorations in Alaska said some current conservation laws actually encourage rather than prevent waste of gas and liquids when applied to modern gas fields.

"We know that within a very few years it will take twice as much oil to meet the requirements of the people in this country as it takes t day," he said. "Therefore, petroleum conservation is far more vital today than it was in the 1930s when most of the present laws on the subject were placed on the books."

Halbouty said an attack on state level conservation of oil and gas was made in a book published last month under a direct grant from the American Petroleum Institute. "Integration and competition in the Petroleum Industry" was written by two economists, Melvin de Chazeau and Alfred Kahn.

Kalbouty said the book should be accepted by oilmen as a warning in that it advocates mandatory unitization under federal control for all pools throughout the nation.

Halbouty objected particularly to two paragraphs in the book.

The authors said:

"It is clear that state control under prorationing has failed to achieve attainable standards of efficiency in the development of oil reservoirs. . .

"In our view, these goals stand a better chance of attainment if a uniform federal statute governing oil development is substituted for the present multiplicity of state regulations."

Halbouty said such views are being supported by some of the leading business publications of the nation.

"Attacking our system of conservation by states has become a popular national pastime," he said. "These attacks should make us all realize that unless the conservation laws, the application and interpretation of these laws and the rules and regulations adopted under these laws are modernized to meet the needs and demands of the industry in 1960 as opposed to 1930, we are in real danger of having bureaucratic federal control imposed from Washington."

WILLYS AND CHECKER

Auto Industries' 'Little Two' Speak

DETROIT (UPI)—The auto industry's "ignored two" aren't competitive with the giants of the industry, but they're happy about it. In their little niches, they're making money.

Generally, everyone thinks of the American auto industry as the "big three" and the "little two," ignoring completely the fact that Willys and Checker Motors have carved out unique little corners of the industry all for themselves.

But the lack of recognition does not bother either of the companies.

Checker even fosters it.

"We don't like to give out those figures. When they are put alongside the figures for the other companies, it looks like peanuts. The average layman can't understand, that you don't have to have whopping production figures to make money."

And in the obscurity of small production figures and a plant location far enough away from the auto industry's central headquarters, Detroit, but close enough to benefit from the skilled labor in the area, Checker is making money.

On the basis of the solid foundation it has built with the sale on taxicabs, Checker is even venturing into the passenger car field, but again into a limited area where it won't compete head on with the bigger companies.

It is planning limited production of a four-door sedan built on the same chassis as the taxicab. It will feature greater interior room, durability and greater safety to attract a small group of customers who can't find enough of these features in the offerings of the big companies.

Kaiser - Willys has found its niche in production of the jeep and overseas sales.

"We tried competing on a model - for - model basis with the bigger companies until 1955," a spokesman for the company said. "We've made money since we stopped making passenger cars. We didn't before."

Many of the cars that tried to compete with the giant auto companies in the past are no longer on the scene.

Bit Willys jumped its production from 74,100 in the first 10 months of 1958 to 95,383 in the first 10 months of this year, with about 65 per cent of the output going to foreign markets in both years.

Mickey Cohen Free But Set To Appear

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Mickey Cohen was free today but must appear next week before a county grand jury in connection with the restaurant-slaying of a strongarm bookmaker.

Police released Cohen, his 18-year-old girlfriend, model Claretta (Sandy) Hashagen, and George Piocitelle, 28, who were seized after the Wednesday night shooting of Jack (The Enforcer) Whalen, 39.

The trio allegedly sat a a table six feet away from Whalen when he was killed at Ronelli's restaurant in nearby Sherman Oaks. Tony Reno, 25, with the Cohen party, was still in custody after voluntarily surrendering Thursday.

Ex-convict Cohen and his girl were given subpenaes before leaving the jail and driving off in a sports car with an unidentified man. Cohen sneered at officers but broke into a big smile when he again tasted freedom.

Police Chief William H. Parker said the three were released because the case remained too complex to seek complaints from the district attorney's office. State law requires a suspect be released within 48 hours of arrest if no complaint is filed.

Singing Meet Scheduled To Convene Today

The regular first Sunday Booster Singing convention is scheduled to convene at 1:30 p.m. today at Booster Hall, 400 Ouachita Avenue, according to Garland May, convention president.

The evening program will continue through 4 p.m., and will include singing groups from throughout the parish, state and Arkansas as well.

Three major music companies will introduce their latest song books to the convention, and these new books will be used during the convention, May added.

He extended an invitation to the public to attend the singing convention today.

The 1960 Raven National sailboat races will be held at Marblehead, Mass.

WIDEST SINCE OCT. 30

Stocks Register Gain In Turnover

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks during the past week registered their widest gain since Oct. 30 in active turnover.

Business news continued favorable with many divided increases, several highly favorable earnings reports, and what appeared to be some progress toward settlement of the steel impasse.

Wall Street regarded the steel situation as much improved since the steel union has begun to make proposals — not as yet accepted— for a settlement of the long drawn out dispute.

The market proved itself very sensitive to steel news. Each time it appeared as if a settlement might be reached steel shares moved up swiftly and other sections of the market followed, particularly the rails.

Oil shares, long behind the market, also showed demand at rising prices. Electronics continued to feature in the gain column although many encountered profit-taking.

Industrial shares rose in four out of the five sessions and at the close of the week their average stood at 664.00 up 11.48 points on the week, the best gain since the week ending Oct. 30 when this figure rose 13.53 points.

Railroad issues rose to 152.73 up 4.13 points on the week, having shown a gain in each of the five sessions. That was the best weekly rise since Oct. 2 when the average rose 4.60 points.

Utilities firmed 0.35 point to 86.75 in their average and the 65-stock average closed the week at 215.88 up 3.63 points.

The market has been in an almost continual rise since Nov. 16. In that period industrials have risen 29.54 points; rails 5.92 points and utilities 0.82 points.

The list made its best gain of the week on Monday when electronics, electrical equipments, rails and oils were in demand. Tobaccos, hit last week by another cancer scare, were helped by the report of the Internal Revenue Service that September cigarette consumption had set a new record high.

Drug stocks moved higher when several companies were cleared of price fixing in the sale of Salk vaccine. American Motors was churned into profit-taking activity when the company voted to split the stock 3-for-1, declared an extra and promised higher dividends on the split stock.

On Tuesday the market benefitted from a move of the Federal Reserve to make money a bit easier by counting banks' vault cash as reserves. This was seen as a possible forerunner of further easing of credit.

Steel operations ran up to above 92 per cent of capacity and Steel flowed more freely into production channels for industry. General Motors recalled more than half the workers it had laid off and resumed auto output. Chrysler planned to renew production on some models.

Cotton Ends Irregularly On Market

Sustaining factors during the week included short covering, mill and trade price fixing and local buying influenced by favorable reports from textile centers and a continued good demand for spot cotton.

Meanwhile, offerings were furnished through light hedge selling, and profit-taking attracted by advances. A midweek drop was attributed to the uncovering of stop-loss orders.

Although the effective cotton parity price for the present month announced Monday by the U.S. Department of Agriculture showed a generally unexpected advance, the market showed little or no reaction to the report. The latest parity price for the staple was placed at 37.93 cents per pound against 37.80 cents a month earlier and 38.93 cents a year earlier.

As the week ended, the cotton trade was looking forward with interest to the issuance on Tuesday of the government's fifth estimate of the crop. The consensus appeared to be that the forthcoming estimate would show some reduction from the official Nov. 1 forecast of 14,801,000 bales.

Reported exports of lint cotton by this country declined during the week ended last Tuesday but expected the level for the corresponding week a year earlier.

According to the New York Cotton Exchange Service Bureau, exports for the current season through Dec. 1 had reached an estimated 1,195.000 bales against 939,000 to approximately the same time last season. For the full count season they are expected to total 5,500,000 bales against 2,-800,000.

CLOCK WATCHERS

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Two clock-watching patrolmen, Charles Hunt and Melvin Young, were suspended for three days after they stopped their investigation of a collision promptly when their tour ended at 3:10 p.m., leaving a traffic jam behind them.

Business Briefs

Mrs. Barbara Koch Joseph, formerly of Monroe, has joined the staff of Shell Oil Company's treasury department in New Orleans.

Mrs. Joseph attended Neville High School in Monroe and also studied commerce for two years at Louisiana State University.

R. G. Mitchell, Armour and Company Grocery Products Division sales representative, will attend the national sales meeting Dec. 7 and 8 at the Statler-Hilton Hotel, Dallas, Texas.

Mr. Mitchell lives at 2605 Chaucer St., Monroe.

Jim Boone, for the past four years represetative of the New York Life Insurance company in Bastrop, has been transferred to Monroe.

Boone was a graduate of Northeast State in 1952. He has been a resident of Bastrop for the past 14 years.

The Boone's and their young son reside in Lakeshore.

Wheat, Corn Futures Lose As Others Gain

CHICAGO (UPI) — Nearby wheat and corn futures lost ground, but other grains advanced this week on the Board of Trade.

Compared with last week, wheat was off 1¼ to up 2; corn off ⅜ to up ⅜; oats up ⅜ to 1½; rye off ½ to up 1½; soybeans up 1⅝ to 3¼ and lard up 10 to 20 points.

Much of the week's activity centered in liquidation of the December contracts and spreading transactions. Tenders were liberal in wheat.

December wheat fell off more than a cent as longs liquidated and other traders exchanged it for deferred contracts. The distant months were strong. Spreaders took December against sales of March and May.

Cash wheat prices were ½ to 1½ cents lower.

Corn showed little change. Liquidation and spreading operations were active. Commercial and export interests bought. Spot corn lost ⅛ to 1 cent.

In oats, support came from cash and shipping houses. Offerings were easily absorbed. The cash market added ¾ cent to previous gains.

Soybeans were irregular, but the market finished higher on speculative buying.

Rye was uneven.

Mamie Slated To Leave Today For Denver

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mamie Eisenhower will leave Sunday night for Denver, Colo., to visit her 81-year-old mother, Mrs. John S. Doud.

She planned the trip to coincide with the period that the President is out of the country on his goodwill mission.

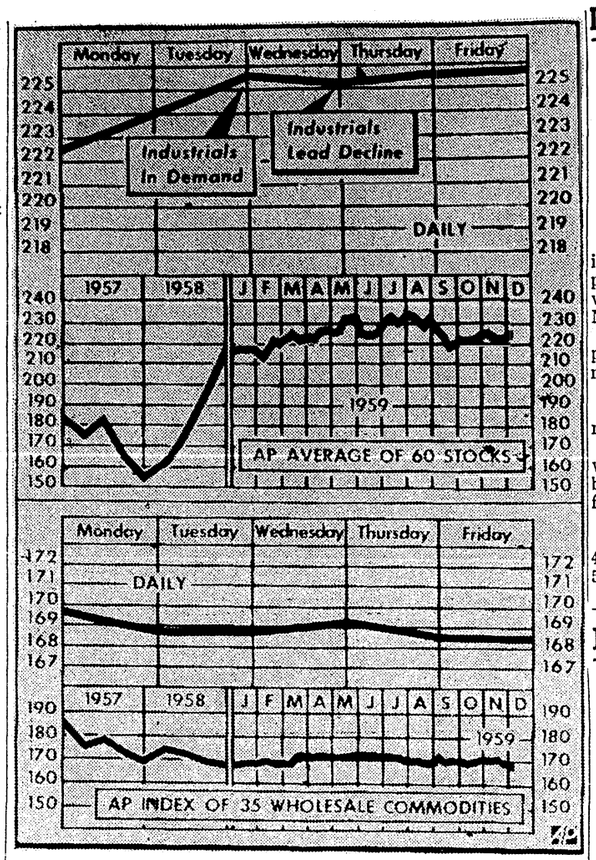
The White House denied reports that the First Lady might make a stopover at Maine Chance a desert resort near Phoenix, Ariz., where she has vacationed in past years.

Mrs. Eisenhower is expected to make the trip to Denver by train.

Her sister, Mrs. G. Gordon Moore, who usually accompanies her, will not go along this time. Mrs. Moore said she has just come back from a Thanksgiving visit with Mrs. Doud.

Mrs. Doud has been ailing recently and both daughters have made frequent visits to Denver to be with her.

There was no indication from the White House as to how long Mrs. Eisenhower will remain in Denver.



STOCKS UP, COMMODITIES DOWN — The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced for the second straight week, closing at 22.8 from 222.5 the previous week. This was the best weekly gain since July 31. The commodity index, led by the industrial and livestock components, declined to 168.4 from 169.7 in the preceding period. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

FINANCIAL REPORT

Optimism Tumbles In Business Area

NEW YORK (AP)—Optimistic predictions for 1960 tumbled out of the business world the past week.

Developments showed that 1959 is a great business year except for those hurt by the steel strike.

This is what some authoritative sources said they expect in 1960:

The automobile industry will try to build more cars — some 2,240,800—in the first three months than in any previous quarter.

Food sales will reach an all-time high of 76 billion dollars.

New construction will hit a record of $55,300,000,000.

These developments added to the 1959 picture:

Machine tool orders in October totaled $67,130,000, highest since March, 1957.

Sales of the domestic electronics industry are expected to total nine billion dollars this year, up a billion from 1958.

Constructon contractng totaled $1,458,000,000 in November, highest ever for that month.

Business affected by the steel strike, and the steel industry itself, continued the past week to snap back as tension mounted over outook for a settement.

Steel production climbed to about 92 per cent of capacity, with the mills rushing to meet a great backlog of orders.

Auto production was stepped up after a long decline due to steel shortage. The industry hopes this was the last week of curtailed output.

General Motors has recalled 115,000 of 215,000 workers laid off because of the strike. It will resume production Monday. Chrysler,which also had closed down production lines, expects 10,000 workers to be back at their jobs within a week.

November production amounted to about 250,000 cars, more than 50 per cent below what the industry planned to build had steel been available.

A new entry in the auto field appeared with introduction of the Superba sedan and station wagon by Checker Motors Corp., taxicab manufacturer.

Retail trade scored a slight gain the past week over a year ago on a post-Thanksgiving increase in Christmas shopping. The dollar volume was up to four per cent higher than last year.

The Agriculture Department reported a drop of five per cent in prices of meat animals in November helped push farm markets to their lowest point since March, 1957. Prices also were lower for cotton and oranges. The declines were partially offset by somewhat hgher prices for dairy products, potatoes, wheat, turkeys and soybeans.

Briefly around the business scene: The British pound sterling was quoted below par of $2.80 in New York and London foreign exchange markets for the first time since December, 1958 . . . The Air Force cut the B70 supersonic bomber program to two test planes, dropping immediate plans to build a fleet . . . Midcontinent refiners raised heavy fuel oil prices 10 cents a barrel to $1.80, up 20 cents from a year ago . The toy industry estimates it will sell a record $1,650,000,000 worth of playthings this year . . . Radio Corp.of America received a $3,-940,000 Air Force contract for work on a new Pacific Ocean island research center at which new ways to counter enemy missiles will be sought . . . SEGREGATION

Two Bills Revived In Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Two hotly controversial segregation bills that lost in the 1958 Legislature have been revived with virtual assurance of passage next year, a legislative source said Saturday.

Returning legislators, meeting with newcomers to advise them of what to expect in the 1960 session, have been pushing the two bills, according to the reliable source who declined to be identified by name.

The two bills, differing only slightly from their 1958 counterparts, would:

1. Authorize individual Methodist churches to secede from their conferences and take with them all real estate and other property they donated to the conference as prerequisite to affiliation.

2. Authorize counties and municipalities to contribute public funds to the citizens councils.

The Methodist bill was killed in 1958 after opponents charged it would violate separation of church and state in that it would be state interference in church matters.

The Citizens Council donation bill was killed in 1958 after opponents charged the councils are private groups whose books are not available for public inspection, that some taxpayers oppose use of public funds to help support private groups, and that the bill would have permitted the council to spend the money for any purpose without state control or knowledge.

The Methodist bill was described as aimed at preventing the assignment of Negro preachers to white churches. The donation bill was described as aiding the fight to preserve segregation.

Two events during the past 18 months gave virtual assurance of passage to the two bills:

1. The Alabama Legislature enacted into law a bill permitting churches to secede from their conferences.

2. Ross Barnett, an outspoken segregationist and a strong member of the Citizens Councils, was elected governor beginning with the 1960 Legislature.

Barnett's presence in the governor's office could lend sufficient influence to pass both bills.

W. J. Simmons, national and state administrator of the Citizens Councils, has said the councils are not supporting either bill. But they are not opposing them, either.

Only this week, the councils mailed dues statements to members and urged them to become either sustaining members at $25 a year or contributing members at $100 a year.

"To be quite frank," the council statement read, "it is impossible to operate your council on just regular ($5) memberships, as important as they are."

INDEPENDENT OPERATOR

Oilman In Texas For Modernizing

HOUSTON (AP)—A Texas oilman believes oil states must modernize petroleum conservations or risk federal control.

"Partial conservation is a made to order vehicle for the proponents of federal control," said Michel Halbouty, an independent operator.

"The best protection lies in shoring up state conservation laws and regulations in Texas and elsewhere if we are to avoid federal control."

The Houston geologist and petroleum engineer who recently expanded his operations to include explorations in Alaska said some current conservation laws actually encourage rather than prevent waste of gas and liquids when applied to modern gas fields.

"We know that within a very few years it will take twice as much oil to meet the requirements of the people in this country as it takes t day," he said. "Therefore, petroleum conservation is far more vital today than it was in the 1930s when most of the present laws on the subject were placed on the books."

Halbouty said an attack on state level conservation of oil and gas was made in a book published last month under a direct grant from the American Petroleum Institute. "Integration and competition in the Petroleum Industry" was written by two economists, Melvin de Chazeau and Alfred Kahn.

Kalbouty said the book should be accepted by oilmen as a warning in that it advocates mandatory unitization under federal control for all pools throughout the nation.

Halbouty objected particularly to two paragraphs in the book.

The authors said:

"It is clear that state control under prorationing has failed to achieve attainable standards of efficiency in the development of oil reservoirs. . .

"In our view, these goals stand a better chance of attainment if a uniform federal statute governing oil development is substituted for the present multiplicity of state regulations."

Halbouty said such views are being supported by some of the leading business publications of the nation.

"Attacking our system of conservation by states has become a popular national pastime," he said. "These attacks should make us all realize that unless the conservation laws, the application and interpretation of these laws and the rules and regulations adopted under these laws are modernized to meet the needs and demands of the industry in 1960 as opposed to 1930, we are in real danger of having bureaucratic federal control imposed from Washington."

WILLYS AND CHECKER

Auto Industries' 'Little Two' Speak

DETROIT (UPI)—The auto industry's "ignored two" aren't competitive with the giants of the industry, but they're happy about it. In their little niches, they're making money.

Generally, everyone thinks of the American auto industry as the "big three" and the "little two," ignoring completely the fact that Willys and Checker Motors have carved out unique little corners of the industry all for themselves.

But the lack of recognition does not bother either of the companies.

Checker even fosters it.

"We don't like to give out those figures. When they are put alongside the figures for the other companies, it looks like peanuts. The average layman can't understand, that you don't have to have whopping production figures to make money."

And in the obscurity of small production figures and a plant location far enough away from the auto industry's central headquarters, Detroit, but close enough to benefit from the skilled labor in the area, Checker is making money.

On the basis of the solid foundation it has built with the sale on taxicabs, Checker is even venturing into the passenger car field, but again into a limited area where it won't compete head on with the bigger companies.

It is planning limited production of a four-door sedan built on the same chassis as the taxicab. It will feature greater interior room, durability and greater safety to attract a small group of customers who can't find enough of these features in the offerings of the big companies.

Kaiser - Willys has found its niche in production of the jeep and overseas sales.

"We tried competing on a model - for - model basis with the bigger companies until 1955," a spokesman for the company said. "We've made money since we stopped making passenger cars. We didn't before."

Many of the cars that tried to compete with the giant auto companies in the past are no longer on the scene.

Bit Willys jumped its production from 74,100 in the first 10 months of 1958 to 95,383 in the first 10 months of this year, with about 65 per cent of the output going to foreign markets in both years.

Mickey Cohen Free But Set To Appear

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Mickey Cohen was free today but must appear next week before a county grand jury in connection with the restaurant-slaying of a strongarm bookmaker.

Police released Cohen, his 18-year-old girlfriend, model Claretta (Sandy) Hashagen, and George Piocitelle, 28, who were seized after the Wednesday night shooting of Jack (The Enforcer) Whalen, 39.

The trio allegedly sat a a table six feet away from Whalen when he was killed at Ronelli's restaurant in nearby Sherman Oaks. Tony Reno, 25, with the Cohen party, was still in custody after voluntarily surrendering Thursday.

Ex-convict Cohen and his girl were given subpenaes before leaving the jail and driving off in a sports car with an unidentified man. Cohen sneered at officers but broke into a big smile when he again tasted freedom.

Police Chief William H. Parker said the three were released because the case remained too complex to seek complaints from the district attorney's office. State law requires a suspect be released within 48 hours of arrest if no complaint is filed.

Singing Meet Scheduled To Convene Today

The regular first Sunday Booster Singing convention is scheduled to convene at 1:30 p.m. today at Booster Hall, 400 Ouachita Avenue, according to Garland May, convention president.

The evening program will continue through 4 p.m., and will include singing groups from throughout the parish, state and Arkansas as well.

Three major music companies will introduce their latest song books to the convention, and these new books will be used during the convention, May added.

He extended an invitation to the public to attend the singing convention today.

The 1960 Raven National sailboat races will be held at Marblehead, Mass.

2 Others Hunted After Bookie Shot

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A crony of Mickey Cohen and a former manager of stripteaser Candy Barr, were hunted Friday as suspects No. 5 and 6 in the Wednesday night rubout of a strongarm bookie.

Already behind bars— and booked on suspicion of murder— are Cohen and three friends who were eating with him when Jack (The Enforcer) Whalen was shot dead at a restaurant in the suburban Sherman Oaks district.

Still sought are Sam Frank Locigno, one of Cohen's pals, and Joe De Carlo, ex-business associate of Candy Barr.

Police think Locigno and De Carlo were at Cohen's table when Whalen hit the floor with a bullet in his forehead only a few feet away. They think Locigno and De Carlo slipped out after the shooting. And they also think at least one of the shots fired came from the vicinity of the table where Cohen and his friends were seated.

Investigators said Catherine Gainey, 23, a friend of the slain hoodlum, told them Whalen recently got a phone call from a man named Sam.

She quoted the caller as saying: "Mickey is pretty hot at you and he's plenty mad. He would like to talk to you."

Homicide men want to find out whether this Sam and Locigno are the same man.

Booked with Cohen Thursday were George Bart Piscitelle, alias George Perry, of Beverly Hills; Anthony (Tony Reno) Amereno, and Claretta (Sandy) Hashagen, an 18-year-old model. Piscitelle identified himself as a liquor salesman. Amereno is a singer. Miss Hashagen said she has been going steady with Cohen about 10 days.

There was more than one version of why Whalen was killed. Parker said: "We hear he was out to collect some kind of a gambling debt. One source said it was about $900."

This suggested Whalen might have been killed in a beef.

Whalen was known as an enforcer, a man who put pressure on delinquent bettors.

Richard Rogan, chief deputy state attorney general, had another report.

"We have heard," Rogan said, "that Whalen had said he was willing to divulge information concerning police protection of his gambling operations in the San Fernando Valley. He was said to have gone to someone in the Los Angeles administrative vice squad to tell them about it, hoping this would help him get a new trial —on an extortion conviction."

This suggested Whalen might have been wiped out for threatening to turn stool pigeon.

But Police Chief William Parker said: "Under my orders, the administrative vice squad brought about Whalen's prosecution and conviction. I think that speaks more loudly than all the rumors in the world."

Police were running out of time in their case against Cohen and his friends. The law provides suspects may be held only 48 hours then must be formally charged or released. Investigators say there isn't enough evidence for formal charges, and the 48-hour deadline is Saturday noon.

Federal Loans Received By 19 Collegians

Northeast Louisiana State College has made federal loans totaling $4,000 to 19 students this semester.

J. O. Lancaster, supervisor of scholarships and placement, said the average loan was about $200.

Applications for second-semester loans from students in attendance and from entering students will be accepted, Lancaster said. He said the most essential criteria for judging eligibility for the loans are financial need and, for students in attendance, progress toward a degree.

Fifty-one students had applied for loans under the National Defense Education Act. Lancaster said refusals were based on insufficient evidence of financial need, lack of normal progress toward a degree and lack of a full academic load.

Man Lunges At Ike's Car

ROME (UPI)—A former mental patient lunged at President Eisenhower's limousine as it was leaving the residence of U. S. Ambassador James D. Zellerbach Saturday night but was seized immediately by police.

Italian press reports said the man got so close to the limousine the driver was forced to slam on his brakes, but a police spokesman could not confirm this.

The incident occurred as the President was leaving a party he held to repay his host, Italian President Giovanni Gronchi, for the warm reception given him in Rome.

UP TO 900

Air Force Slated To Retire Crafts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force will retire up to 900 aircraft under administration pressure to save money for missiles and other atomic-space age equipment.

The manned airplanes, mostly combat types, will be laid up over the next 12 months. This will parallel the expected closing of a dozen or more operating bases.

These economy moves come on top of recent drastic cutbacks and cancellations in costly but promising programs for the development of advanced warplanes such as the F108 long-range interceptor and the B70 long-range supersonic heavy bomber.

The Air Force is bearing the brunt of economy and streamlining actions imposed by the administration's determination to hold the line on defense spending and keep it running at about the current 41 billion dollars a year level.

The Army, which in past years has absorbed heavy cuts in money and men, appears to be holding its own better than usual in current plans and in the new defense budget that will be submitted to Congress next month.

The Navy will make a substantial contribution to the economy campaign, probably by mothballing additional ships within the next 12 months and by postponing, at least, the start of construction and conversion of ships costing about half a billion dollars.

Within the Air Force, the Air Defense Command is taking a heavy portion of the cuts. At least eight of the command's 79 defense squadrons will be inactivated before the end of 1960. This means the retirement or transfer to the National Guard or reserve forces of some 600 aircraft most of them supersonic fighter types.

The Air Defense Command, in a streamlining move which will save some men and money, has abolished its three regional area command headquarters.

The Air Force units announced or scheduled to feel the economy axe include three air rescue squadrons and five air transport squadrons.

In the bomber field, the major loss over the next few months will be in the aging B47 medium bomber fleet that now numbers about 1,200 jet aircraft.

Although no precise breakdown is available, informed sources agreed that five wings, each containing 45 jet bombers, will be taken out of operation. It is possible that even more B47s will be removed from the active list.

The Air Force has already cut back the current year's purchase of the new supersonic B58 medium bombers from 40 to 32. This leaves 93 of the Hustlers completed or on order with some more to be purchased with money available after next July 1.

Police Raid Bookmaking Setup Here

Monroe police officers Friday smashed a local gambling operation in a surprise raid on a bookmaking joint at a local motel, Police Chief James Kelly Jr. said yesterday.

Arrested on gambling charges were W. A. "Smitty" Smith, 42, Jack Jacosa, 66, and Bunny "Ace" Kennedy, 46, all three of Monroe.

Smith was identified as the owner of the Texas Motel, 2408 Louisville, where the gambling operations were carried on, Chief Kelly said.

LOCATION

In the bookie setup, located in one of the motel rooms, bets were made on "football games, basketball games, horse races, or practically everything else that could be bet on," Kelly commented.

In the surprise raid, all ledgers and other office books were confiscated by officers. The ledgers carry complete listings of those persons who have made bets with the gambling setup, Kelly said.

He added that further investigations into the case were being made, and more developments are expected.

Friday's raid came after the police department had made investigations into reports that a room of the motel was being used as a bookmaker's setup.

The three men arrested in the case each posted bond of $1,000, Kelly said. A state charge of gambling has been lodged against them, and all information in the case has been turned over to the district attorney's office for prosecution, Kelly stated.

West Monroe Greets Santa; Parade Held

Despite the feverish excitement of a seething election day, The West Monroe Chamber of Commerce yesterday conducted one of the most illustrious Christmas parades ever held on downtown West Monroe streets.

Floats, bands and marchers were featured in the mammoth street show which starred Santa Claus himself. Children squealed and waved as the exciting procession passed through all downtown streets.

Results of the judging in the float and band contests were announced by George Wylie, manager of the Chamber of Commerce.

First place in the float division went to St. Paschal's Church who collect a $50 cash award; Ridge Avenue Baptist Church, second, $30 and Memorial Presbyterian Church, third, $20.

In three divisions of the band judging $25 cash awards went to Neville High School, Oak Grove High School and Ouachita Parish Junior High school. The Ouachita Parish Junior High School won the sweepstakes award of $50.

The three were identified as Eligah Allen, 33, Negro, of 3004 Pearl street, Monroe, charged also with driving without proper state driver's license and reckless driving, and placed under $500 bond; Roger Allen Simpkins, 21, Rt. 2, Eros, charged also with being drunk and disorderly and reckless driving, and placed under $450 bond, posted; and C. C. Ruker, 46, Negro, 3809 Pippin, Monroe, charged also with reckless driving and disturbing the peace.

Samuel P. Flinty, 27-year old Monroe Negro, was arrested on charges of aggravated battery. He posted bond of $360, officers reported.

CHARGED

Joy Dale Guice, 33-year old Bastrop woman, was charged by police on three counts: one of theft and two of disturbing the peace. Officers said she was charged with theft of cab fare, being drunk and disorderly and attempting to destruct public property. She posted bond of $500.

Washington Farley, 48, Negro of Monroe, was arrested by police on a peace warrant. No bond had been set yesterday, officers reported.

Willie L. Simmons, 22-year old Negro of Foster Homes, was charged with crime against nature and simple criminal damage to property. No bond had been set yesterday.

Johnny Lee Bamburg, 21, of of Route 3, West Monroe, was charged by police with obscenity and with disturbing the peace by being drunk and disorderly. He posted cash bond of $135, officers reported.

State Solon Denounces 'Censorship'

WASHINGTON (Special) —Rep. Overton Brooks (D) La., yesterday denounced as government "censorship" a recent crackdown on institutional advertising by private electric power groups.

Brooks said that "the power to sit in judgment over advertising is, in fact, power to destroy a business. This is most assuredly not in the public interest."

The Shreveport Legislator's statement was directed against decisions by internal revenue service and the federal power commission not to permit cost of certain advertising to be deducted on income tax returns as business expenses.

RULED

The IRS ruled that advertisements placed in many newspapers and national magazines by the American Independent Light and power companies, a trade organization, constituted "propaganda designed to influence legislation."

The ad series has been a constant target of attacks by the national rural electirc cooperative association and other proponents of public power.

Brooks said, "It is significant to me that the demands and pressures on the government agencies to disallow certain advertising costs as business expense has come from the customers of the business involved.

"Neither has it come from the public. Instead, it has come from a few persons who seek to silence the voice of business that opposes what they are actively promoting.

SWEPT

"In the process many other businesses are being swept under the heavy thumb of this new power of government censorship."

Brooks noted that the subject of business deductions for this type of advertising was recently discussed at hearings of the house ways and means committee. He said the American Newspaper Publisher Association insisted that "no agency of the government should have the power of advertising censorship."

He added that, "once government assumes some regulatory power in a new area, the power always increases . . . . soon the agency will assume more control over advertising and eventually business will need to clear all copy with Washington."

Fifty-one students had applied for loans under the National Defense Education Act. Lancaster said refusals were based on insufficient evidence of financial need, lack of normal progress toward a degree and lack of a full academic load.

Under the act the government provides money to lend to wish to participate. If a college participates, it must provide one ninth of the amount the government supplies.

Man Lunges At Ike's Car

ROME (UPI)—A former mental patient lunged at President Eisenhower's limousine as it was leaving the residence of U. S. Ambassador James D. Zellerbach Saturday night but was seized immediately by police.

Italian press reports said the man got so close to the limousine the driver was forced to slam on his brakes, but a police spokesman could not confirm this.

The incident occurred as the President was leaving a party he held to repay his host, Italian President Giovanni Gronchi, for the warm reception given him in Rome.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS — Three of the four Crosby brothers answer questions by newsmen after their arrival from Montreal yesterday. Facing camera, from left to right, are: Dennis, Philip and Lindsay. They admitted they had a difference with brother Gary but said it was mainly because they insisted they cut short their engagement at a Montreal night club so that he could have sore throat treated. Air Force Slated To Retire Crafts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force will retire up to 900 aircraft under administration pressure to save money for missiles and other atomic-space age equipment.

The manned airplanes, mostly combat types, will be laid up over the next 12 months. This will parallel the expected closing of a dozen or more operating bases.

These economy moves come on top of recent drastic cutbacks and cancellations in costly but promising programs for the development of advanced warplanes such as the F108 long-range interceptor and the B70 long-range supersonic heavy bomber.

The Air Force is bearing the brunt of economy and streamlining actions imposed by the administration's determination to hold the line on defense spending and keep it running at about the current 41 billion dollars a year level.

The Army, which in past years has absorbed heavy cuts in money and men, appears to be holding its own better than usual in current plans and in the new defense budget that will be submitted to Congress next month.

The Navy will make a substantial contribution to the economy campaign, probably by mothballing additional ships within the next 12 months and by postponing, at least, the start of construction and conversion of ships costing about half a billion dollars.

Within the Air Force, the Air Defense Command is taking a heavy portion of the cuts. At least eight of the command's 79 defense squadrons will be inactivated before the end of 1960. This means the retirement or transfer to the National Guard or reserve forces of some 600 aircraft most of them supersonic fighter types.

The Air Defense Command, in a streamlining move which will save some men and money, has abolished its three regional area command headquarters.

The Air Force units announced or scheduled to feel the economy axe include three air rescue squadrons and five air transport squadrons.

In the bomber field, the major loss over the next few months will be in the aging B47 medium bomber fleet that now numbers about 1,200 jet aircraft.

Although no precise breakdown is available, informed sources agreed that five wings, each containing 45 jet bombers, will be taken out of operation. It is possible that even more B47s will be removed from the active list.

The Air Force has already cut back the current year's purchase of the new supersonic B58 medium bombers from 40 to 32. This leaves 93 of the Hustlers completed or on order with some more to be purchased with money available after next July 1.

Police Raid Bookmaking Setup Here

Monroe police officers Friday smashed a local gambling operation in a surprise raid on a bookmaking joint at a local motel, Police Chief James Kelly Jr. said yesterday.

Arrested on gambling charges were W. A. "Smitty" Smith, 42, Jack Jacosa, 66, and Bunny "Ace" Kennedy, 46, all three of Monroe.

Smith was identified as the owner of the Texas Motel, 2408 Louisville, where the gambling operations were carried on, Chief Kelly said.

LOCATION

In the bookie setup, located in one of the motel rooms, bets were made on "football games, basketball games, horse races, or practically everything else that could be bet on," Kelly commented.

In the surprise raid, all ledgers and other office books were confiscated by officers. The ledgers carry complete listings of those persons who have made bets with the gambling setup, Kelly said.

He added that further investigations into the case were being made, and more developments are expected.

Friday's raid came after the police department had made investigations into reports that a room of the motel was being used as a bookmaker's setup.

The three men arrested in the case each posted bond of $1,000, Kelly said. A state charge of gambling has been lodged against them, and all information in the case has been turned over to the district attorney's office for prosecution, Kelly stated.

West Monroe Greets Santa; Parade Held

Despite the feverish excitement of a seething election day, The West Monroe Chamber of Commerce yesterday conducted one of the most illustrious Christmas parades ever held on downtown West Monroe streets.

Floats, bands and marchers were featured in the mammoth street show which starred Santa Claus himself. Children squealed and waved as the exciting procession passed through all downtown streets.

Results of the judging in the float and band contests were announced by George Wylie, manager of the Chamber of Commerce.

First place in the float division went to St. Paschal's Church who collect a $50 cash award; Ridge Avenue Baptist Church, second, $30 and Memorial Presbyterian Church, third, $20.

In three divisions of the band judging $25 cash awards went to Neville High School, Oak Grove High School and Ouachita Parish Junior High school. The Ouachita Parish Junior High School won the sweepstakes award of $50.

Police Blotter

ARRESTED

Monroe police yesterday reported the arrest of three persons on charges of driving a motor vehicle while under the influences of intoxicating beverages.

The three were identified as Eligah Allen, 33, Negro, of 3004 Pearl street, Monroe, charged also with driving without proper state driver's license and reckless driving, and placed under $500 bond; Roger Allen Simpkins, 21, Rt. 2, Eros, charged also with being drunk and disorderly and reckless driving, and placed under $450 bond, posted; and C. C. Ruker, 46, Negro, 3809 Pippin, Monroe, charged also with reckless driving and disturbing the peace.

Samuel P. Flinty, 27-year old Monroe Negro, was arrested on charges of aggravated battery. He posted bond of $360, officers reported.

CHARGED

Joy Dale Guice, 33-year old Bastrop woman, was charged by police on three counts: one of theft and two of disturbing the peace. Officers said she was charged with theft of cab fare, being drunk and disorderly and attempting to destruct public property. She posted bond of $500.

Washington Farley, 48, Negro of Monroe, was arrested by police on a peace warrant. No bond had been set yesterday, officers reported.

Willie L. Simmons, 22-year old Negro of Foster Homes, was charged with crime against nature and simple criminal damage to property. No bond had been set yesterday.

Johnny Lee Bamburg, 21, of of Route 3, West Monroe, was charged by police with obscenity and with disturbing the peace by being drunk and disorderly. He posted cash bond of $135, officers reported.

The El Miro Temple 187, Knights of Khorrassans, will hold a meeting and supper Monday night at Castle Hall, 127½ St. John Street.

Royal Vizier W. S. Nield and Secretary Jim Tolson urge all Dokeys to make reservations as soon as posisble.

State Solon Denounces 'Censorship'

WASHINGTON (Special) —Rep. Overton Brooks (D) La., yesterday denounced as government "censorship" a recent crackdown on institutional advertising by private electric power groups.

Brooks said that "the power to sit in judgment over advertising is, in fact, power to destroy a business. This is most assuredly not in the public interest."

The Shreveport Legislator's statement was directed against decisions by internal revenue service and the federal power commission not to permit cost of certain advertising to be deducted on income tax returns as business expenses.

RULED

The IRS ruled that advertisements placed in many newspapers and national magazines by the American Independent Light and power companies, a trade organization, constituted "propaganda designed to influence legislation."

The ad series has been a constant target of attacks by the national rural electirc cooperative association and other proponents of public power.

Brooks said, "It is significant to me that the demands and pressures on the government agencies to disallow certain advertising costs as business expense has come from the customers of the business involved.

"Neither has it come from the public. Instead, it has come from a few persons who seek to silence the voice of business that opposes what they are actively promoting.

SWEPT

"In the process many other businesses are being swept under the heavy thumb of this new power of government censorship."

Brooks noted that the subject of business deductions for this type of advertising was recently discussed at hearings of the house ways and means committee. He said the American Newspaper Publisher Association insisted that "no agency of the government should have the power of advertising censorship."

He added that, "once government assumes some regulatory power in a new area, the power always increases . . . . soon the agency will assume more control over advertising and eventually business will need to clear all copy with Washington."

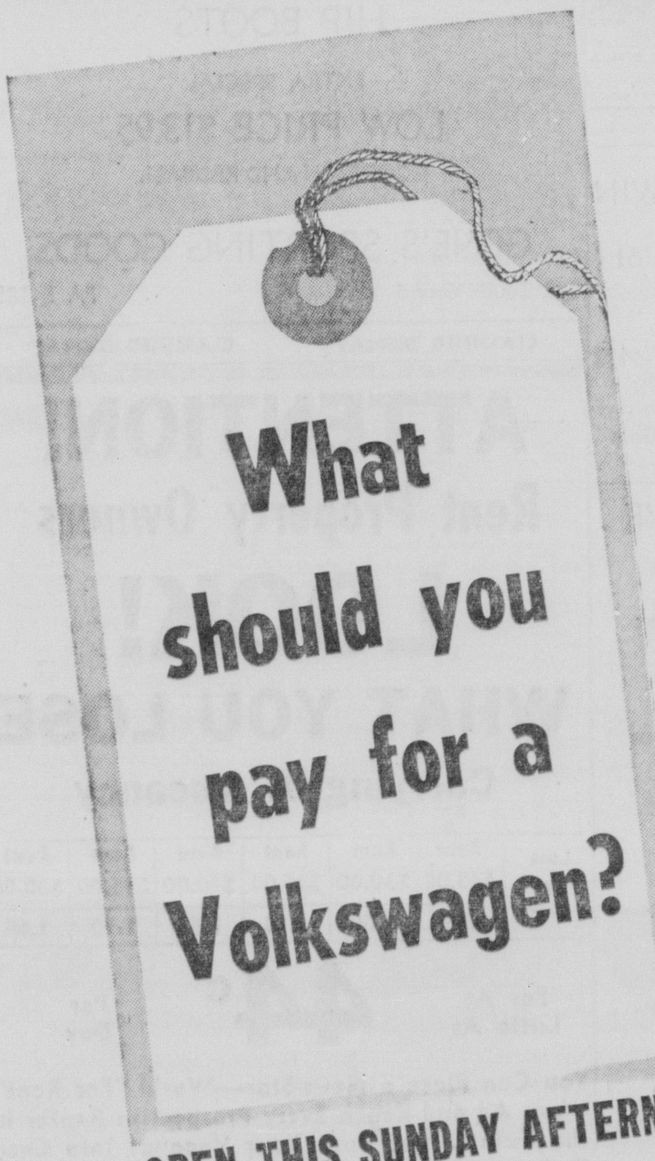
Coleman-Edwards Receives 2 More Van Loads Famous Volkswagens!



Our low Authorized Dealer price for a new VW Sedan is $1601. That's all you pay for a car completely equipped at the factory to American specifications. Unless you want to add one or more of the very few extras Volkswagen offers: radio, white walls or a side mirror. Even the heater is included — built into the car.

In addition, you get two important advantages only an Authorized Volkswagen Dealer can offer:

1. A guarantee for 6 months or 6000 miles, parts and labor. (Compare that with other cars at any price.)
2. The right service by our factory-schooled mechanics using Volkswagen tools, parts and materials. And detailed inspections and service at 300 and 3000 miles are free!

Look for our Authorized Volkswagen Dealer's symbol when you buy. It assures you of the exact model and color you want — brand-new, pre-tested and ready to roll. The sooner you see us, the sooner we can deliver the VW you choose. Come in this week . . . drive one.

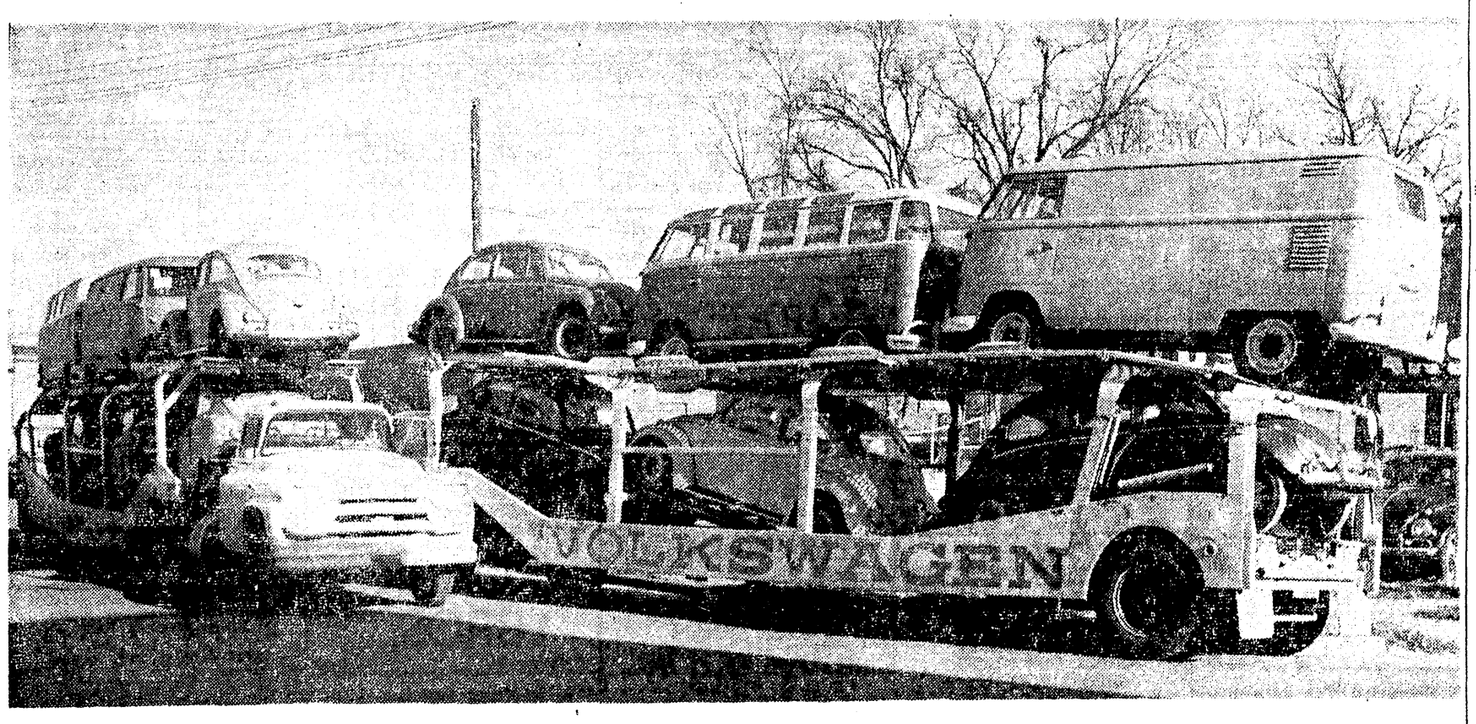
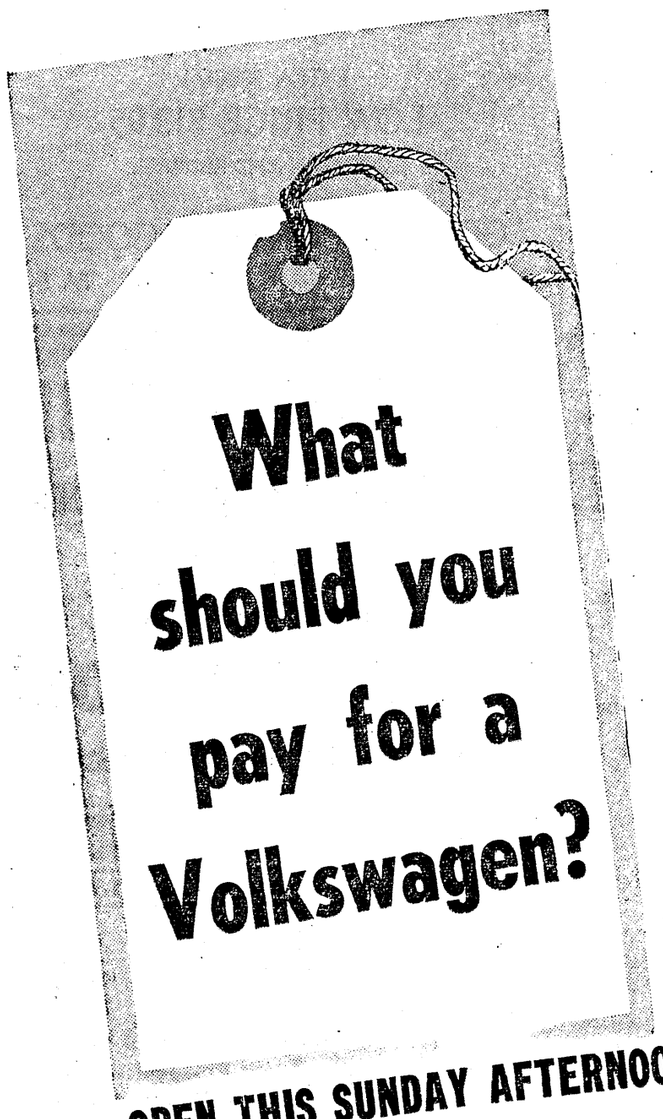
Coleman-Edwards Receives 2 More Van Loads Famous Volkswagens!





Our low Authorized Dealer price for a new VW Sedan is $1601. That's all you pay for a car completely equipped at the factory to American specifications. Unless you want to add one or more of the very few extras Volkswagen offers: radio, white walls or a side mirror. Even the heater is included — built into the car.

In addition, you get two important advantages only an Authorized Volkswagen Dealer can offer:

1. A guarantee for 6 months or 6000 miles, parts and labor. (Compare that with other cars at any price.)
2. The right service by our factory-schooled mechanics using Volkswagen tools, parts and materials. And detailed inspections and service at 300 and 3000 miles are free!

Look for our Authorized Volkswagen Dealer's symbol when you buy. It assures you of the exact model and color you want — brand-new, pre-tested and ready to roll. The sooner you see us, the sooner we can deliver the VW you choose. Come in this week . . . drive one.

NOW IS THE TIME TO PLAN FOR A CAREER IN PRINTING
THE Printing Industry needs well-trained Linotype and Intertype operators, Letterpress Pressmen, Offset Cameramen, Offset Pressmen and Offset Platemakers. The Southern Institute of Graphic Arts, the South's oldest and largest Printing Institution has complete courses in all these printing fields. Courses are open to Korean Veterans, Non-Veterans, men and women.

PRETTIEST ON PRETTY STREET
HIGHLAND PARK COUNTRY CLUB is within sight of this engaging 3 bedroom brick. One bedroom is pine paneled and could be converted into a den. The kitchen and dining area is quite spacious. The ceramic tile bath is splashproof. Central heating assures you of a "draftless" winter. The living room has hardwood floors that will be the pride of the lady of the house. This 3-year-old beauty is awaiting the visit of your charming family.

HAPPIER LIVING
Will be yours in this attractive 3 bedroom brick home in a very desirable WEST MONROE SUBIDVISION. The master bedroom is quite spacious. The kitchen has ample natural cabinets, double sink, vent, PLUS a large dining area. Central heating will prevent drafty, chilly rooms this winter. Who wouldn't be proud to own such a home as this for just $100 down and closing costs.

BARGAIN HOME
Homes below $7,000 are few and far between, but we have a six room home just outside West Monroe city limits. It's supplied with natural gas, water, and septic tank. There's enough room with the 210x420 lot (OFF HY. 80, W. M.) to divide it into 2 to 4 lots. Sure, it needs some work, but look at the price! It's truly maximum value in the low priced field.

TRIUMPH IN BEAUTY
You're sure to agree when you see this well constructed new home. It's on the NORTHSIDE, just ONE BLOCK FROM LEE JUNIOR HIGH. The 1½ tile baths add to the convenience of this modern as the minute home. Mom's kitchen is beautiful with its built-in Tappan oven and range and Nutone hood. The 1500 sq. feet of this lovely home is adequately cooled by central air conditioning. Dad's heart will be made glad at the sight of the roomy double carport. Quality usually cannot be bought for this price (less than $20,000).

TIRED OF LIVING? . . .
In a rented home . . . do something about it. In this 2 bedroom home just 5 blocks from PLUM STREET SCHOOL, there's good value. The spacious living room will be a great asset when company or family drop in for a visit. The kitchen provides work space enough to suit any homemaker. Oak floors add beauty to this feature-packed home. Your children will have a safe playground in the fenced back yard. This is an unusually good house and exceptionally low priced, below $8,500.

CAREFREE LIVING
Is yours in this 3 bedroom brick home in KIROLI WOODS, WEST MONROE. Wall heaters maintain even heating throughout this compact home. There are 1½ baths with shower over tub. The children will have a play park of their own as there's cyclone fencing. Your ticket to carefree living in this home is just $500 plus closing costs.

PRIDE OF BUILDER'S ART
This beautiful new 3 bedroom brick located in a prestige area (Off LOOP ROAD) is ideal for holiday entertaining. The spacious living room is luxuriously carpeted and has one brick wall. Terrazzo tile floors, exposed beams, indirect Neon lighting, and a fireplace add up to a most attractive cherry paneled family room. The cherry paneled kitchen features built - in oven and range, Westinghouse dishwasher and disposal, and built-in freezer and refrigerator. There's central heating and air conditioning for year 'round comfort. This home will be your pride and joy as you entertain during the holiday season.

STERLINGTON
For just $250 cash you can own this attractive 2 bedroom home. The living room is quite large. Drapes are included throughout to add a "homey" touch for the new owner. Floor furnaces assure you of winter comfort. You'll have privacy with the front and back storm fence. This is an excellent home buy for less than $7,500.

4 BEDROOM HOME AND ACREAGE
For Christmas, buy Mom this family home of masonry construction just a few minutes drive from downtown Monroe. Two baths add to the convenience of this spacious home (approximately 1700 sq. feet). Central heating assures you of comfort throughout the entire house. Here's maximum value in a lovely home plus acreage.

NOW IT CAN BE SOLD
And for less than $15,000. This older home is located NEAR CLAIBORNE SCHOOL. There are 2 unusually large bedrooms. The breakfast room will be the gathering place for attractive holiday meals. Mom and Dad will enjoy the small study off the front bedroom. This home nestled among pine trees contains over 1300 square feet. Now it can be sold—to you and your lovely family.

HARK! THIEVES!
This 2 bedroom home OFF ARKANSAS ROAD can be stolen for less than $9,500. Both bedrooms are unusually large. The dining room provides ample space for serving your many holiday guests. This home contains over 1100 sq. feet. The lot is 100x150. All of this value can be yours for $300 and closing costs.

LOOKING FOR REVENUE?
You've found it in this duplex located OFF RIVERSIDE DRIVE. The 3 bedroom apartment includes a sitting room and separate dining room. The spacious living room has a double fireplace. The 2 bedroom apartment boasts a large living room and a separate dining room. Make your moeny work for you in this investment property.

PRETTIEST ON PRETTY STREET

HIGHLAND PARK COUNTRY CLUB is witnin sight of this engaging 3 bedroom brick. One bedroom is pine paneled and could be converted into a den. The kitchen and dining area is quite spacious. The ceramic tile bath is splashproof. Central heating assures you of a "draftless" winter. The living room has hardwood floors that will be the pride of the lady of the house. This 3-year-old beauty is awaiting the visit of your charming family.

HAPPIER LIVING

Will be yours in this attractive 3 bedroom brick home in a very desirable WEST MONROE SUBDIVISION. The master bedroom is quite spacious. The kitchen has ample natural cabinets, double sink, vent, PLUS a large dining area. Central heating will prevent drafty, chilly rooms this winter. Who wouldn't be proud to own such a home as this for just $100 down and closing costs.

BARGAIN HOME

Homes below $7,000 are few and far between, but we have a six room home just outside West Monroe city limits. It's supplied with natural gas, water, and septic tank. There's enough room with the 210x420 lot (OFF HY. 80, W. M.) to divide it into 2 to 4 lots. Sure, it needs some work, but look at the price! It's truly maximum value in the low priced field.

TRIUMPH IN BEAUTY

You're sure to agree when you see this well constructed new home. It's on the NORTHSIDE, just ONE BLOCK FROM LEE JUNIOR HIGH. The 1½ tile baths add to the convenience of this modern as the minute home. Mom's kitchen is beautiful with its built-in Tappan oven and range and Nutone hood. The 1500 sq. feet of this lovely home is adequately cooled by central air conditioning. Dad's heart will be made glad at the sight of the roomy double carport. Quality usually cannot be bought for this price (less than $20,000).

TIRED OF LIVING? . . .

In a rented home . . . do something about it. In this 2 bedroom home just 5 blocks from PLUM STREET SCHOOL, there's good value. The spacious living room will be a great asset when company or family drop in for a visit. The kitchen provides work space enough to suit any homemaker. Oak floors add beauty to this feature-packed home. Your children will have a safe playground in the fenced back yard. This is an unusually good house and exceptionally low priced, below $8,500.

CAREFREE LIVING

Is yours in this 3 bedroom brick home in KIROLI WOODS, WEST MONROE. Wall heaters maintain even heating throughout this compact home. There are 1½ baths with shower over tub. The children will have a play park of their own as there's cyclone fencing. Your ticket to carefree living in this home is just $500 plus closing costs.

PRIDE OF BUILDER'S ART

This beautiful new 3 bedroom brick located in a prestige area (Off LOOP ROAD) is ideal for holiday entertaining. The spacious living room is luxuriously carpeted and has one brick wall. Terrazzo tile floors, exposed beams, indirect Neon lighting, and a fireplace add up to a most attractive cherry paneled family room. The cherry paneled kitchen features built - in oven and range, Westinghouse dishwasher and disposal, and built-in freezer and refrigerator. There's central heating and air conditioning for year 'round comfort. This home will be your pride and joy as you entertain during the holiday season.

STERLINGTON

For just $250 cash you can own this attractive 2 bedroom home. The living room is quite large. Drapes are included throughout to add a "homey" touch for the new owner. Floor furnaces assure you of winter comfort. You'll have privacy with the front and back storm fence. This is an excellent home buy for less than $7,500.

4 BEDROOM HOME AND ACREAGE

For Christmas, buy Mom this family home of masonry construction just a few minutes drive from downtown Monroe. Two baths add to the convenience of this spacious home (approximately 1700 sq. feet). Central heating assures you of comfort throughout the entire house. Here's maximum value in a lovely home plus acreage.

NOW IT CAN BE SOLD

And for less than $15,000. This older home is located NEAR CLAIBORNE SCHOOL. There are 2 unusually large bedrooms. The breakfast room will be the gathering place for attractive holiday meals. Mom and Dad will enjoy the small study off the front bedroom. This home nestled among pine trees contains over 1300 square feet. Now it can be sold—to you and your lovely family.

HARK! THIEVES!

This 2 bedroom home OFF ARKANSAS ROAD can be stolen for less than $9,500. Both bedrooms are unusually large. The dining room provides ample space for serving your many holiday guests. This home contains over 1100 sq. feet. The lot is 100x150. All of this value can be yours for $300 and closing costs.

LOOKING FOR REVENUE?

You've found it in this duplex located OFF RIVERSIDE DRIVE. The 3 bedroom apartment includes a sitting room and separate dining room. The spacious living room has a double fireplace. The 2 bedroom apartment boasts a large living room and a separate dining room. Make your money work for you in this investment property.

Jalousies installation will increase the living space of your home by as much as 20% . . . Make your porch a useful room.

YOU GAIN YEAR 'ROUND COMFORT

Jalousies offer positive control of ventilation . . . can be opened fully to capture the gentlest breeze, partially closed to exclude rain or closed tightly to make your porch warm and snug.

YOU ADD A ROOM AT ⅓ OF NORMAL COST

Your porch provides the most expensive parts of a room—the roof, ceiling, foundation and floor. Let Jalousies provide permanent walls of silvery aluminum and sparkling glass that can't rust, peel or discolor. Friction-free operating mechanism will give you fingertip control of ventilation, and for colder climates, easily removable aluminum screen can be replaced with storm sash.

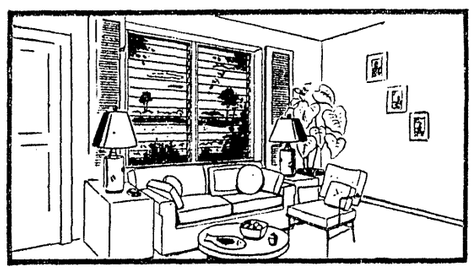
YOUR PORCH
Becomes Your Casual Room...
When Enclosed With JALOUSIES

NOW . . . enjoy the luxury of that extra room you've always wanted. Jalousies transform your porch into a den, playroom, study or bedroom . . . at a fraction of the cost of adding a room.

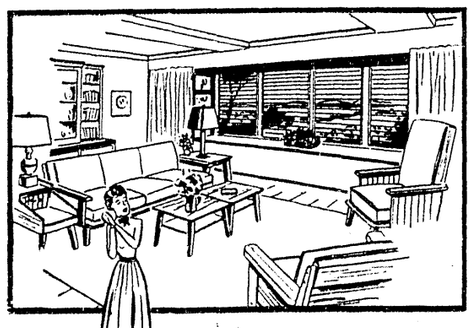


YOU GAIN MORE LIVING SPACE

Jalousies installation will increase the living space of your home by as much as 20% . . . Make your porch a useful room.

YOU GAIN YEAR 'ROUND COMFORT

Jalousies offer positive control of ventilation . . . can be opened fully to capture the gentlest breeze, partially closed to exclude rain or closed tightly to make your porch warm and snug.



YOU ADD A ROOM AT ⅓ OF NORMAL COST

Your porch provides the most expensive parts of a room—the roof, ceiling, foundation and floor. Let Jalousies provide permanent walls of silvery aluminum and sparkling glass that can't rust, peel or discolor. Friction-free operating mechanism will give you fingertip control of ventilation, and for colder climates, easily removable aluminum screen can be replaced with storm sash.

NORTH
14 CARAT LOOK

RELAXED and happy living can be yours with a fine home like this! Convenient to schools, churches, shopping centers, this lovely 3 bedroom, den, 2 bath home is sturdily constructed of brick and redwood. You'll feel its relaxed charm from the moment you step into its living room and luxurious living room .... there's a unique and modern off-the-floor fireplace that's a center of interest and also serves as a divider to make a separate dining room . . . . and kitchen is chock full of cabinets and owner will leave Frigidaire range and refrigerator cause they were made to match this beautifully decorated kitchen. Other features you'll appreciate are . . . its white crushed rock lifetime roof .... York year 'round air conditioning .... wall to-wall carpeting .... $2000 worth of decorator drapes .... call now —we'll gladly show anytime! Price, $33,500.

PLAY SANTA

AND MAKE this a Christmas your family will always remember. This new Early American brick charmer was custom built for its owner and has .... 3 bedrooms .... 2 baths .... family room of warm, rich mahogany paneling adjoins mahogany - paneled kitchen .... with central heating and central air conditioning, besides a host of many extra features. This is a truly quality house, and you can assume its 5½ per cent FHA loan with only $2600 down and monthly payments of $92. Owner's transferred, so you can have immediate possession ... call today and enjoy Christmas in it!

A SUGAR PLUM

YOUR Christmas pudding will taste sweeter in this lovely 9 - month-old brick .... it's air conditioned and centrally heated .... and there's 3 nice size bedrooms and a "workless" kitchen .... disposal, dishwasher, cabinets galore, spacious dining area. The whole house is tastefully decorated in luscious colors with drapes to match. Payments are $92 a month including insurance and taxes. We'd be glad to show you this anytime!

CHRISTMAS BONUS

HERE'S A 3 bedroom house with such a low down payment that even a very modest bonus will move you in! Located near Lexington School, it's one of the older homes and needs a little paint here and there, but it's solid and well worth the fixing. You have all the advantages of an older home .... spacious bedrooms .... living room with fireplace (especially for Santa Claus) .... separate dining room (or den) .... lot full of shrubbery and a tremendous pecan tree. Kitchen has a new G. E. dishwasher and adjoins utility room already plumbed for washer. It's selling well under its FHA appraisal, so you can afford to do a bit of painting. Vacant and you can move in for only $200 down!

LAKESHORE
A REAL CHRISTMAS

CAN BE yours in this home of your own! It's a lovely 3 bedroom brick that boasts an unusually large pink ceramic tile bath. LO! AND BEHOLD! Here's one you should see! It's a 9-month-old rock-faced brick with 3 bedrooms; tile bath with shower over tub; and kitchen has built-in oven and range, pine paneled cabinets (Formica tops), ventahood. There's also: drapes, central heat, attic fan, double sliding door closets, carport, storage, and shady 100x200 lot. See this by all means today!

NORTH 10TH ST.

AN OLD FASHIONED DOLLAR'S WORTH! Only $100 "cash" makes the move into this 2 bedroom and den home . . . with pine paneled study, dining room has China cabinet . . . hardwood floors, blinds, central heat, attic fan, double carport, storage, garage, and shady St. Augistine lawn (100x150) with fenced back yard, barbecue pit. All that's needed is your look-see!

NICHOLS DRIVE

HOW MUCH MORE COULD YOU EXPECT? We think you'll say you get full value for your home - buying dollar in this brand new brick home! For $400 "cash" moves you in (or we'll trade) — and among other features you'll own: 3 bedrooms, tile bath, natural finish cabinets (Formica tops), ventahood, central heat, attic fan, carport, storage, and 95 ft. shady lot overlooking Kiroll School! Call — delay may mean disappointment!

MITCHELL LANE

LIKE OLD TIMES — a lot for your money in this home (could be used as duplex)! There's spacious (14x19) living room, den, 3 bedrooms, 2 baths . . . blinds, double garage, and 80 ft. lot with 2 pecan trees. $400 and closing will handle — a call provides a look-thu!

HINKLE DRIVE

BURNING THE MIDNIGHT OIL won't disturb the rest of the family in this extra large (19x19) pine paneled den (with bookcases and drapes). There's also: 3 bedrooms (each with 2 closets), wall heating, blinds, attic fan, and shady lot a block of school. Tarry not—see this now!

French Police Use Want Ads To Capture Murderer

French police were up a blind alley trying to track down a murderer's suspected accomplice. The Chief Inspector placed in every Paris paper a Help Wanted Ad, offering a job in the suspect's profession. The 11th applicant was the accomplice who was arrested on the spot.

STEVE CANYON

MILTON CANIFF

THOSE CLOWNS HAVE THE BEST EQUIPMENT, MOVIES, CHOW, AND THEY'RE ON AN EXCITING ASSIGNMENT

THEN ONE CUTE CHICK BLOWS INTO THE LOCAL VILLAGE AND OUR MULTI-MILLION-DOLLAR BIRD IS AN ORPHAN OF THE STORM!

STEVE, WHAT DID YOU FIND OUT?

...WHEN HE DIED HIS SOLE HEIR WAS A NIECE, MINDÉE LUDEESCH...

MINDÉE CAME TO SETTLE THE ESTATE - SAW WHAT WAS GOING ON OVER HERE - AND RE-OPENED THE PLACE! - THE TROOPS CALL HER LA DISH!

LET'S SEE WHAT THIS DOLL HAS THAT CAN COMPETE WITH THE BRAILLE BOMBER

...STRIKE THAT FROM THE RECORD... I KNOW WHAT SHE'S GOT!.. LET'S GO!

STEVE, PUT OUR OFFICE OF SPECIAL INVESTIGATIONS ON THIS - AND ASK THE CANADIANS TO DO THE SAME

YOU THINK SHE'S A RED PLANT, SIR?

I DON'T KNOW ANYTHING! THE NIGHT BEFORE PEARL HARBOR I TOLD MY BROTHER WE'D NEVER GO TO WAR!

WELL, NOT HARD TO KNOW WHICH IS CHEZ LA DISH!

ALOUETTE, GENTILLE ALOUETTE, ALOUETTE, JE TE PLUMERAI

GOING INSIDE, SIR?

NO! BETTER THAT THE MEN DON'T SEE ME...

ONLY ONE WAY TO STOP THIS MASS DIVERSION!

DECLARE THE PLACE OFF LIMITS?

NO... IT CALLS FOR THE SUPREME SACRIFICE...

... I'LL MOVE IN AND COURT THE GIRL MYSELF!

Copyright, 1959, Field Enterprises, Inc.

BRINGING UP FATHER

HOW MANY TIMES DO I HAVE TO TELL YOU NOT TO SIT AROUND THE HOUSE IN THAT OUTFIT?

I GIVE UP! HOW MANY?

PUT YOUR SHIRT AND COLLAR AND JACKET ON! -- AND SHAVE BEFORE YOU COME DOWN!

NOW THAT I'M THOROUGHLY UNCOMFORTABLE, I HOPE MAGGIE WILL BE SATISFIED.

WATCH THOSE ASHES! HOW MANY TIMES HAVE I TOLD YOU TO USE AN ASH TRAY?

© 1959, King Features Syndicate, Inc., World rights reserved.

EVERY DAY OF MY LIFE I HAVE TO WARN YOU NOT TO GET YOUR ASHES ON THE RUG!

THAT'S ALL YOU EVER DO -- NAG - NAG - NAG -- OOPS -- THAT REMINDS ME---

I ALMOST FORGOT TO GIT MY BET DOWN ON THAT NAG!

JIGGS - I SEE THAT HORSE YOU LIKE, 'FLYING SAUCER', WON TODAY AT TWENTY TO ONE -

WOW! I HAD A BET ON HIM!

DARLIN', WILL YOU REMIND ME AGAIN TOMORROW NOT TO GIT MY ASHES ON THE RUG?

Smack
